RAIL WORKERS' 6½ PER CENT CUT PLAN LOST

Carrier Executives Turn Down Four Counter-Proposals.

NEGOTIATORS MEET AGAIN THIS MORNING

Second Joint Conference of Day Failed to Break Wage Deadlock.

Chicago, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The joint railroad wage conference of nine company executives and representatives of 20 labor unions adjourned after a two and a half hour session tonight without reaching an agreement. Another joint meeting will be held by the representatives of both sides tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and spokesman for the executives, said that the meeting had developed a general discussion of the 10 per cent wage cut, the roads have asked the workers to accept for one year and related subjects. He added that it apparently was "going along to a satisfactory conclusion" but did not immediately amplify his statement.

Tonight's joint meeting, the second of the day, followed a definite rejection by the executives of a union counterproposal for a 6½ per cent wage cut for a period of a year.

Rejection Promptly Made.

The management only required half an hour to decide earlier today on the labor propositions and the prompt "No" threw the wage question back to the labor group in a more or less "take it or leave it" status. The presidents had previously replied to labor's employment stabilization program in a manner that was termed unsatisfactory by the labor leaders.

It was the workers' next move, the presidents having responded fully to their counter proposals and the next joint session in the negotiations between the two groups was subject to the call of the labor delegation.

One of the propositions submitted by the brotherhoods would have bound the railroads to pay 100 per cent on the present basic rates for a full year after the year in which a reduction was agreed to. This was given to the presidents as a proposition which would apply to each of the other three proposals and it was the one on which one of the big brotherhoods based its authorization for continued negotiations.

"In consideration of the agreement of the employes for a pay roll deduction for a period of one year, with basic rates to remain as at present," the proposition read: "The railroads agree that they will not undertake to reduce wages for a period of one year after the termination of this agreement."

Collateral Propositions.

The other propositions, each of which would have been combined with the first one, read as follows:

"Six and one-half per cent to be deducted from each pay check for a period of one year. Basic rates to remain as at present. This arrangement to terminate automatically twelve months after the plan becomes effective.

"Six and one-half per cent to be deducted from each pay check for a period of one year. Three and one-half per cent additional to be deducted from each pay check for a period of one year to be repaid in monthly installments during the following year to the individual employes or their heirs.

"Six and one-half per cent to be deducted from each pay check for a period of one year without limitation as to use. Three and one-half per cent additional to be deducted; the

One Dead, 220 Hurt In Bombay Rioting

Mounted and Foot Police Repeatedly Charge Hindu Mobs.

Bombay, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—The most riotous day in Bombay since the Nationalist "Satyagraha" was proclaimed ended late tonight with the police in control of the situation, but with one dead, 30 seriously injured, and more than 200 wounded as the result of repeated police charges against Hindu mobs.

Processions, forbidden by police order, formed and reformed in spite of stubborn interference by mounted and foot police. As soon as one demonstration had ended the police were called to quell another disturbance.

In the darkness, the crowd set fire to piles of British cloth, attracting mobs that blocked traffic on the city's main thoroughfare. Members of the mobs finally dispersed to rooftops, where they continued the battle by hurling tiles at the police below.

Austria Solves Crisis With Buresch Cabinet

Vienna, Austria, Jan. 29 (A.P.). Temporary solution of Austria's cabinet crisis was effected tonight when President Miklas approved the proposal of Chancellor Karl Buresch for a new cabinet which does not include Johann Schober, former minister of foreign affairs, or Dr. Hans Schurff, former minister of justice.

The new cabinet was sworn in tonight with the exception of a minister of interior, who has not yet been apointed. Franz Winkler, former minister of interior and vice chancellor, retained the latter post and was named head of the credit section of the chancellory. Dr. Schuschnigg was named minister of justice.

The remainder of the old cabinet, which resigned on January 27, is unchanged. Herr Hantsch, police director of Salzburg, is expected to succeed Winkler in the interior post.

HOOVER AND CURTIS INDORSED IN KANSAS

New Jersey Delegation May Go to G. O. P. National Conclave Unpledged.

Topeka, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The Kansas Republican State central committee unanimously indorsed the administration of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis today and pledged them support for renomination and reelection.

The committee decided to hold the State convention at Topeka, March 8, to select delegates to the Republican national convention.

Kansas Republicans renewed tonight their allegiance to the party's principles and cheered mention of President Hoover at the annual dinner of the Kansas Day Club on the 71st anniversary of the State's admission into the Union.

Implored by Charles F. Scott, editor of the Republican national committee's Weekly News Letter, to "cast out fear" and to march with the President to "certain victory," in the 1932 campaign, they gave, with their applause, apparent approval of the Chief Executive's legislative program as reviewed by the speaker.

Chuckles greeted what Scott said were Alfred E. Smith's "sovereign remedies" for the country's economic ills. The former New York State executive's program for reconstruction, Scott said, was "bonds and beer."

Trenton, N. J., Jan 29 (A.P.).—The Republican State committee appointed today six of its members to advise it on February 26 whether New Jersey's delegation should go to the national convention pledged to the renomination of President Hoover.

Indications were the special committee would recommend the State's delegation of 35 members not be pledged to the President's renomination. This view, expressed by several members of the State committee, was

Representative Leech Resigns for Tax Post

(Associated Press.)

Representative J. Russell Leech, Republican, yesterday resigned as a member of the House from the Twentieth District of Pennsylvania.

Leech first was elected to the Seventieth Congress and was reelected to the Seventy-first and Seventy-second Congresses. He has been appointed by President Hoover and confirmed as a member of the Board of Tax Appeals.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS SUPPORT NOMINATION

$2,000,000,000 U. S. Body Soon to Begin Its Task; Speed Is Discussed.

(Associated Press.)

The directorate of the two billion dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation was completed yesterday with the selection by President Hoover of Wilson McCarthy, of Salt Lake City.

Mr. McCarthy is a Democrat, as required for the seventh post, and was proposed to the President by members of his party with the indorsement also of Republican leaders. He is a lawyer and also a banker.

Means of "speeding the action of the corporation" were discussed with President Hoover at a White House luncheon conference attended by other officials of the corporation.

The board is ready to operate but the three appointed directors confirmed Thursday by the Senate—Charles G. Dawes, Harvey C. Couch and Jesse Jones—cannot be sworn until next Wednesday. Their paper of commission must wait in the Senate three "legislative" days.

Bank Bill Next List.

During the day, Senate Democrats got behind the next piece of emergency legislation—the Glass bill intended to aid depositors of closed banks and revise the banking laws.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the party leader, announced after a meeting of the Democratic steering committee that the group favored getting to work on this legislation as soon as such modifications as may be necessary are completed.

President Hoover Thursday arranged for Senators Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, and Walcott (Republican), of Connecticut, to confer with Treasury and Federal Reserve experts on modifications.

The Democrats also studied the La Follette-Costigan $375,000,000 direct Federal aid bill, which is opposed by the administration. A committee was named to consider this controversial legislation. Senator Robinson said a motion to recommit the measure would be made if the bill is brought up Monday.

Hoch May Seek Senate Seat in Harmony Plan

Topeka, Kans., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Representative Homer Hoch, of the Fourth Kansas District, said today he was "disposed to seek reelection to the House," but might later decide to run for the Republican nomination to the United States Senate.

Hoch has been suggested by former Senator Henry J. Allen and others as a "harmony" candidate for the Senate who could draw the support of all factions of the party at the general election.

FAR EAST STAND IS DISCUSSED AT CABINET PARLEY

British Cooperation Is Pledged for United Front.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President Hoover yesterday held his Cabinet to a two-hour discussion of the crisis in Shanghai while the Secretary of State revealed the details of Anglo-American cooperation in the region.

Promised further cooperation in the formation of a united British and American front in Shanghai was contained in a second memorandum which the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, handed the Secretary of State late yesterday afternoon.

The two visits in the same day from the British Ambassador to Secretary Stimson were interpreted as an earnest of the intimate understanding reached between the foreign office and the Department of State for meeting all emergencies in the International Settlement at Shanghai.

Fleet to Leave Monday.

Negotiations regarding the Shanghai incident were not entirely confined to diplomatic exchanges, however. Final orders were sent by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams immediately after he had left the White House Cabinet meeting.

These orders provided for the departure of the American battle fleet next Monday for Asiatic waters. Under the command of Admiral R. H. Leigh, a formidable armada of American warships will sail for Hawaii from San Pedro and San Diego. In the group will be 9 battleships, 4 light cruisers, 2 aircraft carriers, 21 destroyers, 5 submarines and numbers of auxiliary craft.

The scouting fleet which is now at Guantanamo Bay will also be under orders to proceed to the same point. The occasion of this formidable mobilization of American naval strength is the annual maneuvers of the two branches of the service. However, it was remarked as a significant coincidence at this time when a naval demonstration by both the United States and Great Britain in the vicinity of Shanghai was under consideration by the diplomats of both nations.

United Front Pledged.

The British Ambassador in his first visit to Secretary Stimson had brought the reassurances of the British government for any united front against invasion of the International Settlement at Shanghai. The Secretary of State in his formal statement thus interpreted the memorandum:

"Several days ago when the situation first became acute, I consulted with the British Ambassador in regard to the crisis in Shanghai and asked him to confer with his government.

"I discussed with him the making of representation to Japan that, in view of the efficient police and other sources of protection already available in the International Settlement, there should be no military occupation of that settlement by Japan unless the municipal force became clearly inadequate to protect life and property.

"I learn this morning from the British Ambasador that his government has made the same suggestions to Japan that were conveyed by ourselves."

Similar Stands Taken.

Corroboratory support to the British position was furnished by Sir Ronald in his second visit when he

Carload of Liquor Seized in Richmond

Richmond, Va., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Prohibition officers tonight were attempting to trace the shipment of a freight carload of liquor captured last night in the R. F. & P freight yards here.

The spirits, 4,000 quarts of choice rye whisky and other liquors, were unloaded from the car and stored in the basement of the Postoffice building. A deputy marshal checked each truckload.

Estimating the cargo's value at prevailing bootleg prices of $4 a quart, prohibition officers said the liquor was valued at about $16,000. The liquor was consigned to a Northern city and was seized by the officers as it entered Richmond from the South over the Seaboard tracks.

SOVIET PUTS HARBIN ISSUE UP TO CHINESE

Moscow Bares Attitude on Japanese Troops' Use of Railroad.

Moscow, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—The Soviet tonight agreed to permit Japan to use the Chinese Eastern Railroad in Manchuria for transportation of troops, providing the Chinese, as half-owners of the road, do not object. Japan also must agree not to harm the interests of the railroad.

Leo Karakhan, assistant foreign commissar, informed the Japanese Ambassador of the Soviet's attitude after a conversation regarding recent Japanese military activities within the Soviet sphere of influence in Manchuria.

The Soviet also protested to Japan against seizure of a Chinese Eastern Railroad train by Japanese troops en route to Harbin, where there has been serious fighting which threatened to embroil Russia in the Far Eastern conflict.

Japanese Ambassador Hirota explained to Karakhan that the Japanese troops had acted to protect life and property of their nationals at Harbin against Chinese rioters.

Harbin, Manchuria, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—The threat of serious complications in relations between Japan and Soviet Russia increased tonight as Japanese airplanes bombed the Harbin area preparatory to the arrival of 1,000 Japanese troops under Gen. Hasebe.

Fighting between the Chinese troops of Gen. Ting Chow, defending Harbin, and the Kiren troops, which are pro-Japanese and seeking to sieze the city, has been in progress for several days, with hundreds of casualties among soldiers and civilians.

The Ting Chow forces were reported retiring last night, but today the peace proposals of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan appeared to have broken down and the Ting Chow troops were again in control of the most important points.

MacDonald Calls Crisis In Shanghai Deplorable

Thornley, Durham, England, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald told a crowd of his own constituents tonight that the "state of things at Shanghai is deplorable."

"Apart from the details of diplomacy, I express without reserve the moral and rational regrets of everybody that such events should happen," Mr. MacDonald continued. "For the moment I assign no blame. I take no sides, but the experience is a very disappointing one."

All Chinese Native Banks Close Doors

Reported Action Is Aimed at Japanese; Tie-Up of Trade to Be Result.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The closing of all Chinese native banks as a protest against "Japanese aggression" was reported today in cables to Wall street.

Officers of the Chase National Bank said the action virtually would tie up all business there. The message they received from their Shanghai branch said the banks did not plan to reopen until the Japanese had withdrawn from China.

A message received by the National City Bank of New York from its Shanghai office read:

"Chinese foreign-style and native banks temporarily closed as protest. Fighting continues in native city. Settlement under military control and no appearance of cause for anxiety."

Veiled Threat to Quit League Made by Japan

Tokyo, Saturday, Jan. 30 (A.P.). A veiled threat of eventually withdrawing from the League of Nations if the league insists upon what Japan considers to be an unreasonable attitude in the Sino-Japanese controversy was advanced in official circles today.

An authoritative spokesman pointed out in this connection that such a move would be entirely in line with a resolution adopted at a general meeting of the Seiyukai (government) party shortly before Premier Inukai, head of that party, came into office.

Tokyo is considering making a proposal that the commission of the league council, which is preparing to start to Manchuria, be dissolved in view of the fact that the Chinese have invoked Article XV of the league covenant. This article also provides for the naming of a commission.

CREW OF LOST M-2 GIVEN UP FOR DEAD

British Admiralty Notifies Relatives Hope Is Gone; Search Continues.

Portland, England, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—The British admiralty, acting on reports from salvage crews that have swept the ocean floor for miles in the vicinity of the lost submarine M-2, today informed relatives of the 60 missing men that they must abandon all hope. The M-2 never came up after a dive in the English Channel Tuesday morning.

Salvage operations continued, but it was the steel shell for which the navy men were hunting. If they find it, they know it will contain no life. But they may discover the

8 WARSHIPS POISED FOR SHANGHAI DASH

U. S. Cruisers at Manila Get Ready for Service in New Conflict Area.

Manila (Saturday), Jan. 30 (A.P.). Eight more destroyers of the American Asiatic fleet were geared here today to dash for Shanghai, on short notice, for possible service in the new area of conflict between China and Japan.

Four destroyers sailed hurriedly yesterday, and the additional preparations were made as alarming reports of fighting in the Chinese city were received.

The new cruiser Houston, flagship of the fleet's commander, Rear Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, was undergoing minor repairs at Cavioe, on Manila Bay, but the admiral said it could be ready to sail on 24 hours' notice.

Three other destroyers, a dozen submarines and a small fleet of colliers, mine layers and tenders, were available for instant use.

Cavioe was the scene of unusual activity recently when stores for an extended voyage were put aboard the Houston. Manila, easternmost American outpost, buzzed for a time with reports that war between America and Japan had been declared.

There were rumors of possible trouble between the large Chinese colony here and the much smaller Japanese settlement, but the consuls general of the two countries denied the reports.

Admiral Taylor, great nephew of the fighting President Zachary Tay-

AMERICAN MISSION SMASHED BY TROOPS

International Settlement Is Threatened; Japanese Forced Back.

(Associated Press.)

A conflagration raged in the Chapei native section of Shanghai today as the troops of China and Japan, both strengthened by reinforcements, pressed on with the sanguinary battle that has caused repercussions in the capitals of all great powers.

Chinese sources in Shanghai reported that former President Chiang Kai-Shek had succeeded in getting his crack troops into the city in preparation for a determined effort to drive out the Japanese invaders.

Shortly before dawn great machine gun activity was heard in Chapei by observers in the International Settlement. At that time flames 75 to 100 feet high leaped up from the wood and mud-brick houses of the Chinese area.

Truce Is Rejected.

Published reports of a truce were nullified by the steady advance of Japanese marines in their onslaught to occupy Chapei and the dogged resistance of Chinese soldiers as they retreated step by step.

As a matter of fact, an armistice which did not go into effect was arranged between Japanese consular officials and Chinese municipal authorities, with the cooperation of the American and British consuls, but the truce was rejected by both the Japanese and Chinese military leaders.

The British government in London announced it would take joint action with the United States in bringing about a cessation of the Shanghai hostilities and requested a statement from Japan as to her further intentions. France and Italy were invited to make similar representations.

League Arranges Probe.

The League Council in Geneva on the appeal of the Chinese member cleared the way for a neutral investigation of the Shanghai conflict by the diplomatic representatives of the great powers. The move was made under articles 10 and 15 of the league covenant.

In Moscow the foreign office informed the Japanese Ambassador in effect that whether Russia would allow the Chinese Eastern Railway to be used for the transportation of Japanese troops depended on the attitude of the Chinese, who control the road with them.

In Manila eight additional U. S. destroyers were ready to leave at a moment's notice to join the four others that sailed yesterday to protect American lives and property in Shanghai. The British cruiser Kent was ordered from Batavia, Java, to sail for China.

Washington Essay Contest Is Indorsed by Mrs. Seton

Well-Known Author and President of League of American Pen Women Praises Benefit to Minds of Children Through Participation in Competition.

The Post Washington Essay Contest has only about six weeks to run before midnight of March 14, when the last entry will be received and the judges, including some of the most noted educators in the city, will start on their task of selecting the winners.

In the six weeks more remaining of the contest it is hoped by the officials in charge of the contest for The Washington Post that thousands of essays will be submitted from boys and girls up to and including the age of 18 years, students at public, private and parochial schools of Washington, and nearby territory in Maryland and Virginia, who are eligible to compete in the contest.

Judging from the essays already submitted the contest may be a very close one especially in the matter of the first and second prizes. Added zest has been given to the competition by the announcement that in addition to the $1,000 in cash prizes to be distributed among 108 prize winners eight beautiful bronze plaques containing a replica of the Houdon head of George Washington will be presented to the classrooms attended by the first and second prize winners. These plaques are to be properly marked with the names of the boys and girls winning them and thus they will remain in these rooms for years as memorials of the success of a former pupil during the bicentennial year.

That literary celebrities are paying close attention to the contest was attested anew yesterday when Mrs. Grace Thompson Seton, national president of the League of American Pen Women and an author of note indorsed the contest in an appreciative statement. Speaking of the contest, Mrs. Seton said: "In this age, when the young person is habituated to the steady flow of other people's brains and activities through the radio and talkies, any contest that will make for concentrated efforts of our brains such as The Post is inaugurating now is very much to the point and to be desired."

Mrs. Seton also urged upon the contestants that they make a thor-

Adams Agrees on Freeing 4 In Hawaii on Probation

Approves Plan Whereby Mrs. Fortescue and Three Co-defendants Obtain Freedom Under Bond as Judge Determinedly Blocks Defense Moves.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Adams last night approved an arrangement under which the four Americans held in Honolulu in the Massie case will be released on probation with the Navy cooperating to keep them within the jurisdiction of the circuit court.

After receiving a report from Rear Admiral Stirling citing conditions under which Judge Cristy agreed to permit Mrs. Fortescue and the three other defendants freedom under moderate bail provided they reported daily to a probation officer, Secretary Adams cabled his approval.

He directed Stirling to take custody of the defendants and to cooperate within the jurisdiction of the court.

Stirling advised that Mrs. Fortescue had agreed to the arrangement. Under it, Mrs. Fortescue will be released under $5,000 bond and Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and two naval enlisted men under $2,500 bond.

Honolulu, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Circuit Judge A. M. Cristy today blocked legal moves to remove his jurisdiction over Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three Navy men charged with lynching a young native.

After questioning defense counsel about alleged moves to "usurp" island jurisdiction by proposed congressional action, Judge Cristy demanded cash bail of $50,000 for ea defendant unless the Navy Department agreed to "cooperate" with the insular judiciary.

The judge then denied a defense motion to quash the second degree murder indictment against the four. The motion charged Judge Cristy with coercing the grand jury into bringing the indictment and contended that the bill of accusation did not represent the true findings of the inquisitorial body.

(Dispatches from Washington tonight said Secretary Adams had approved an arrangement under which the Americans will be released on probation with the Navy cooperating to keep them within jurisdiction of the court.)

Mrs. Fortescue and her codefendants, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, were temporarily turned over to the police pending an exchange of communications between local naval officers and Secretary Adams.

STOCKS SHOW RALLY ON RUMORS OF WAR

Commodity Prices Also Rise While Japanese Bonds Suffer Losses.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—America's leading security and commodity markets yesterday reflected a varied feeling over Sino-Japanese developments in Shanghai—Nipponese bonds dropped $10 to $30 or more for $1,000 units, while "war stocks" rallied.

After a listless morning in which stock market prices drifted steadily lower, there was a sudden renewal of moderate speculative buying starting in the early forenoon.

This buying whipped up a mild degree of interest based on the possibility of war—a possibility which leading Wall street executives described as remote, but nonetheless an interesting will-o-the-wisp for speculators who started talk of a "war boom."

Commodity Markets Gain.

At about the same time the grain and cotton markets responded to better buying. The silk market, important to Japan because silk is one of that country's principal commodities, eased off. The Japanese yen also gave ground, piercing the year's former low point of 35 cents reached on January 2.

The main body of leading industrial stocks was down $1 to $3 a share when the market sluggishly entered the afternoon period. At that time, news from the Far East took a little more serious turn, with dispatches reporting the Chinese warning of an attack on the International Settlement at Shanghai. Some of the bolder speculators began buying the "war stock," prompting short covering.

The Japanese yen receded nearly 1 cent to its closing quotation of 34.85 cents. The previous low for the year had been 35 cents.

Japanese Bonds Dip.

Japanese government 5½ and 6½ per cent bonds yielded around $20 each for denominations of $1,000. The Great Consolidated Electric Power bonds of Japan declined as much as $52.50 for 31,000 units.

American buyers of raw silk withdrew substantial buying orders early in the day, the quotation declining as much as 7 cents a bale. Later, better buying developed and prices closed with net losses confined to 3 cents or less a bale for various options.

The cotton market, which is being closely watched because Japan is an important consumer of this American staple, closed with only nominal change.

Building Is Sold At Auction Here

The Securities Building, nine-story stone office structure, at 729 Fifteenth street northwest, in the center of the financial district, was sold at public auction yesterday to William L. Browning, attorney, for $300,000. Mr. Browning, said to have represented "certain financial interests" in the purchase, was the sole bidder. The sale was advertised by the Commercial National Bank as trustee, and Vernon G. Owen was the auctioneer. Approximately 200 persons were in attendance.

The building was erected in 1925. Wardman Construction Co., Inc., was its builder, designer and original owner. The original estimated cost of the building, which has a width of 25 feet and a depth of 136, is listed as $275,000. The current assessed valuation of the property is $2,124,952, of which $225,000 is for building and $1,899,952 for land.

Its owners, according to District building records, have been Thomas P. Bones and Harry Wardman, Henry P. Hunt and Henry P. Blair, Maj. Julius I. Peyser and M. M. Doyle, the last-named three as trustees in bankruptcy of the estate of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey.

Mrs. Judd Enjoys Jail Birthday Party

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A birthday in jail turned out not so badly for Winnie Ruth Judd after all. Her trial for murder of Agnes Anne Leroi in recess until Monday, Mrs. Judd tonight enjoyed the birthday party on which she had set her heart, and looked forward to 60 hours of rest before she again must appear in public.

Her silver-haired parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, who came from Darlington, Ind., to lay the stigma of insanity on the family name in an effort to save her from the gallows, spent an hour with her behind the steel bars, as did also Dr. William C. Judd, her husband. Birthday flowers had preceded them.

Mrs. Judd, who also is under indictment for slaying Hedvig Samuelsonn, was 27 years old today. Prospects that she would spend the day in solitude sent the slender-waisted, black-frocked woman into court this morning in a fretful, complaining mood, to hear Judge Howard C. Speakman recess her trial until next Monday because of illness of two jurors.

Bankruptcy Petition Is Entered by Tailor

William M. Freeny, of 3311 Macomb street northwest, who described himself as a tailor, yesterday filed a petition in the District Supreme Court asking that he be adjudged a bankrupt. He listed his debts at $25,406.64 and his assets as a life insurance policy for $25,000.

At the same time, the W. M. Freeny Co., Inc., a Delaware corporation, asked that it be adjudged bankrupt. The company, through Attorney R. B. Dickey, listed assets of $2,000 and liabilities of $35,133.75.

GUARDING SETTLEMENT AGAINST INVADERS

HOOVER AND CABINET PLAN MOVE IN CRISIS

announced he had deposited with Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr., a memorandum regarding "subsidiary features" of the Anglo-American operations. It was further emphasized at the British Embassy that the second note contained still more comprehensive assurances of the identity of views shared by Prime Minister MacDonad and President Hoover with regard to the Shanghai gesture.

Both the Foreign Office and the State Department have informed Rome and Paris of their common actions with regard to the critical situation at the mouth of the Yangtze but it is not expected that any formal assurances of cooperation will be given by the French government.

Italy has no interests in Eastern China beyond a small concession and a steamship line, but nevertheless the consent of the Italian government to harmonious action with London and Washington in the face of any attempted incursion of Japanese or Chinese elements in the international compound is expected.

Held Unnecessary.

Preparations being made by the British and American authorities for repelling settlement invasions in Shanghai were dismissed as unnecessary by Japanese authorities. It was affirmed at the Japanese Embassy heer that the Tokyo government entertains no political designs in Shanghai.

The nature of the Japanese attack on the Chinese quarter of the city was described as a punitive measure to repress further outbreaks of anti-Japanese feelings, which were becoming rife throughout China and seriously threatened the security of Japanese interests in the interior of the country.

These assurances were specifically made in the note which the Japanese government forwarded to Secretary Stimson yesterday. Secretary Stimson declared regarding these Japanese promises:

Uncertainty Prevails.

"We have now received an answer from Tokyo assuring this Government that the international rights and interests in Shanghai would not be interfered with."

The greatest possible uncertainty prevails with regard to the situation in Harbin, where 1,000 crack Japanese troops in flush of their recent victory over Chinese Gen. Ma are verging on the Siberian city, where Soviet and Chinese authorities are desperately resisting continued acts of terrorism. The American Consul General at Harbin, George Hanson, has not been heard from by the State Department due to the cutting of the telegraphic lines between Harbin and Changchun.

The Japanese Ambassador returned yesterday from Cuba, where he presented his letters of credence, and has announced his intention of interviewing Secretary Stimson today to be advised of all recent developments in the situation. A general statement reviewing the Shanghai incident from its beginning three days ago was issued by the Tokyo government yesterday and will in all probability form the basis of the ambassador's conversations with Secretary Stimson.

Dress Trade Gets Strike Permission

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Sanction for a strike in the dress trade in Cleveland in March was granted today by the general executive board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, as it concluded its business meetings.

Philadelphia was chosen for the next convention, which about 250 delegates from dress centers in the country and Canada are expected to attend. The convention opens May 2. The question of whether to call a general strike in the dress trades of Toronto was referred to the national officers of the union.

The same action was taken in the request for sanction to strike by the Children's Dressmakers' Union, Local 91, representing some 8,000 workers in New York City, and by pleaters and hemstitchers here, involving about 3,000 workers.

FIRE THREATENS SHANGHAI AS FIGHT GAINS HEADWAY

of the positions in the native city they had seized in a day and a half of hard fighting.

Two battalions of Japanese reinforcements from the cruiser Tatsuta and four destroyers, which anchored in the Whangpo River after a fast trip from the Sasebo naval base, were landed to meet this new threat.

In the confusion attending the renewal of the battle, made greater by a vast conflagration creeping slowly toward the International Settlement from Chapei, it was impossible to identify the Chinese troops responsible for the sudden and determined offensive movement. It was reported that well trained units of Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek's forces, which were supposed to have succeeded in entering the city during the night, had got into action.

Japanese military authorities announced at 9 o'clock this morning that Chinese reinforcements had made it necessary for them to execute a partial withdrawal movement to the east toward the north Szechuen road, which is the base of Japanese operations outside the International Settlement.

The cruiser Tatsuta and four destroyers arrived from the Sasebo naval base today and two battalions of marines were landed. Japanese officials indicated that the resumption of bombing was likely at any moment.

A Japanese military spokesman said that the Chinese had brought field guns into position in Chapei and had fired a number of shells upon the Japanese headquarters. No heavy shelling was audible in the International Settlement.

Warning From Chinese.

The day brought a threat to the International Settlement as well as to the Chapei district, where unknown numbers of Chinese have been killed during the sanguinary fighting of the last few days.

The Chinese military command warned the settlement authorities that unles they used their influence to halt the rising tide of the invaders, Chinese guns would be trained on the international area, where United States marines, with the troops of other nations, have been walking guard over foreign interests worth millions of dollars.

At the same time it was authentically reported that, with the consent of British Consul General J. F. Brenan, the Japanese would take over the international area.

All Shanghai was brilliantly lighted early this morning by the flame of Chapei, which leaped 75 to 100 feet in the air. The roar of the conflagration could be heard for a great distance. It was estimated that already damage amounting to $5,000,000 had been caused.

Against the threat of Chiang Kai-Shek's troops the Japanese ordered new landing parties from their cruisers anchored in the Whangpoo.

Beyond the lines of the International Settlement thousands of terrified Chinese attempted to make their way toward the magic foreign area where they might find safety.

Here was a major danger, comparable to the threat of action by the armed forces of China who, it was feared, might decide to enter the settlement in the belief that by sheer numbers they might overwhelm the comparative handful of men defending the area's long and tortuous borders.

The second day and night of Japanese occupation brought a series of dramatic developments. An attempt by civilian authorities to effect an armistice failed. Japanese marines, aided by air bombers, continued their advance in Chapei in the face of stubborn resistance by Chinese soldiers.

An American mission in the international settlement was invaded by the Japanese. The Shanghai wireless station was bombed out of commission. A shell fell in the settlement, but no one was hurt.

Thousands of Casualties.

Bombs, machine guns and rifles spread death and destruction through the native districts. Illumination and communication facilities were blotted out. Flames devoured what the battling soldiers left. The casualties were listed in the thousands.

The quarters of the Southern Methodist Mission were entered by Japanese soldiers early this morning and the furniture was demolished. They excused themselves by saying they were searching for guns and anti-Japanese literature, but mission officials said they would file a claim for damages through the American consulate.

Chapei was a regular theater of war as the Japanese strove to consolidate positions already captured and extend their control over the entire area. At no point did the Chinese offer mass resistance, but they impeded the progress of the invaders by sniping at them from every conceivable vantage point. The issue still was in doubt long after midnight.

The hours brought terror to the civilian population as the flames, started by Japanese bombs, licked at the ancient, ramshackle structures and filled the tortuous streets and alleys with smoke and firebrands. The people became the targets of the bullets of both sides in the confusion of battle.

A dozen Japanese airplanes wheeled and circled above the beleaguered area, dropping carriers of death that sent up enormous eruptions Japanese marines stole through the streets in groups, picking off snipers with machine guns. The Chinese called on their knowledge of the city to harass the enemy at every step with small arms fire. Over all the conflagration snapped and cracked, threatening to wipe out the area.

During the holocaust the Shanghai-Nanking Railway Station, captured and lost by the Japanese, burned to the ground. Japanese headquarters were besieged by the Chinese and they came dangerously near to taking it.

Lights Are Shot Out.

The railroad line was severed and telegraph and telephone lines crashed to the ground, lights were shot out and darkness presented a new problem. A bomb dropping within the settlement ignited another blaze, but it was quickly squelched.

Chinese refugees streaming into the settlement reported that the casualties among the 200,000 people were enormous and that the dead and dying would reach into the thousands. Eyewitnesses said sickening scenes were observed in first-aid stations, where the bodies of women, children and babies—riddled with bullets—were brought in.

One group of defenders pushed into the settlement and fired on Japanese defense troops, but were driven off. Another band attacked a Japanese club close to the boundary and also was thrown back. Reports that additional troops were on the way from Nanking spurred them to frenzied activity.

General Strike Declared.

Commercial activity in the settlement and native cities came to a complete standstill. Banks and business houses closed their doors. The Chinese Chamber of Commerce declared a general strike in protest against Japanese operations. Foreign officials looked on the developments with growing anxiety and their nationals waited with apprehension for what nightfall might bring.

Published reports of an armistice grew out of the efforts of Japanese consular officials and Chinese civil authorities to bring an end to the hostilities. Their work was nullified by military chiefs on both sides who took the position that a truce could not settle the controversy.

Supporting this premise, the Chinese command issued a statement accusing the Japanese of "murdering our people, burning our homes and seeking to create a situation which would give them an excuse for aggression in the Yangtze Valley.

"We intend to defend our territory and as long as we have a single man or a single round of ammunition we will oppose these invaders until they are expelled."

American Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham kept a close watch on the strife throughout the day and night but would not commit himself as to the possible effects on American lives and interests. The U. S. S. Borie arrived from Manila, bringing the number of American fighting vessels in Shanghai waters to ten, and more were on the way.

Lieut. Van Winkle Is Ordered Retired

Chief of Woman's Bureau Recommended as Too Ill for Duties.

Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle was ordered retired by the District Commissioners yesterday as head of the Woman's Bureau of the police department because of total physical disability. The action was recommended by both the Policemen's and Firemen's Retiring and Relief Board and the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons.

The report points out that Lieut. Van Winkle is 51 years old and has served 14 years in the police department. Her ill health began to interfere with her duties in October, 1930, although she was not placed on the sick report until August, 1931. She is suffering from spinal arthritis and hydronephrosis.

While no mention was made as to her successor, Sergt. Rhoda Milliken is expected to be promoted to the post.

150 Pennies Store Thief's Loot.

Breaking the transom over a show window in a drug store at 237 G street northwest, a thief early yesterday entered the store and stole 150 pennies from a cash drawer. The theft was discovered and reported by Irving Siroga, proprietor.

CHURCH ALARMED FOR MISSIONARIES

Methodists Seek Information on Japanese Bombing of Property.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Alarmed by press dispatches from Shanghai telling of Japanese soldiers invading the Southern Methodist Mission and of a bomb being dropped on church property, the church's board of missions today cabled its representatives in China for detailed information. Telegrams also were sent the State Department in Washington.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South, which has mission headquarters here, started missionary work in China in 1848 and has valuable holdings, including schools, hospitals and churches, in Shanghai and the nearby cities of Foochow, Huchow, and Changchow. Property acquired in the suburbs of Shanghai years ago is situated now in the center of the city, it was explained by Dr. O. E. Goddard, foreign secretary of the board, and is extremely valuable.

Virginians in Danger Zone.

But it is the safety of the missionaries, rather than of the property, that concerns Methodist officials. Those now in Shanghai include:

Dr. J. C. Hawk, formerly of Dade Springs, Va., his wife and family.

S. R. Anderson, Gainesville, Tex.; Mrs. Anderson, Nashville, Tenn., and their two babies.

H. K. King, Jonesboro, Ark., who recently arrived in Shanghai to promote the Board of Missions' program of religious education.

Bishop Paul B. Kern, who was chosen bishop in 1928 while pastor of the Travis Park Methodist Church, San Antonio, Tex., is now in charge of Oriental conferences in China, Japan and Korea, with headquarters in Shanghai. His family is with him.

Many Women in Area.

Other workers there are:

Miss Nettie Peacock, Macon, Ga.; Miss Julia Wasson, Ethel, Miss.; Miss Louise Robinson, Decatur, Ala., Miss Sue Stanford, Waco, Tex.; Miss Nina Stallings, Mexico, Mo.; Miss Muriel Smith, Nottingham, England; Miss Marguerite Clark, Richmond, Va.; Miss Mary D. Overall, Dyer, Tenn.; Miss Lucy Jim Webb, Forsythe, Ga.; Miss Anne Herbert, Darlington, S. C.; Miss Jean Craig, Richmond, Va., and Miss Pearl McCain, Searcy, Ark.

Miss Peacock and Miss Stallings are quartered in an apartment house in the Allen memorial compound, into which a bomb was dropped, but with slight damage. Also situated in the compound, named for a Georgia missionary, are the Young J. Allen Memorial Church, the parsonage and a law school.

U. S. Women Asked To Boycott Japan

Friends of China Group Pleads for Ban on Nipponese Goods.

An appeal to American women to boycott Japanese goods, until Japan recognizes the decisions of the League of Nations, and withdraws from its invasion of China, was made yesterday in a resolution passed by the Friends of China.

Judge Paul Linebarger, legal advisor of the Chinese government, said: "If American women declare that they will not buy any silk goods known to contain Japanese silk, that the Japanese will soon withdraw from their invasion of China."

More than $200,000,000 goes to Japan each year for exports of silk to this country, he pointed out, and he urged that American women use rayon hosiery, and dress goods made of silk from France and China. He also urged that women boycott glassware made in Japan.

cause of the accident and piece together the story of the M-2's last hours since her disappearance three days ago.

One obstruction on the ocean bottom over which divers and mine sweepers worked diligently for hours proved to be the hulk of an old sailing ship.

The earlier discovery of a canvas case containing a pair of submarine hand flags brought hope that location of the M-2 might be near, but there were no further tangible evidences of her location. The flags were sent to London for identification.

King George and Queen Mary sent their personal condolences to the families of the missing men and to their comrades in the undersea forces.

Arrangements were being made today for impressive funeral services for the victims. The ceremony will take place at sea, over the spot where M-2 made her last dive. Relatives, naval contingents and mourners will be taken to the place in tenders, followed by an escort of destroyers and sloops. A naval chaplain will conduct services over the supposed grave, and wreaths will be scattered on the waters.

(Associated Press.)

Condolences from the United States Navy yesterday were sent to the British admiralty and families of victims of the M-2 submarine disaster in the English Channel by Secretary Adams.

The message of sympathy was dispatched upon receipt of official word that the British admiralty had abandoned all hope of rescuing the M-2 crew.

8 WARSHIPS POISED FOR SHANGHAI DASH

lor, said he was maintaining close touch with the situation by wireless. His only statement was:

"Whatever decision is reached, depends upon developments."

Action in Far Eastern waters would be nothing new to the ruddy-faced 62-year-old bachelor admiral. He was with Dewey when the American fleet won its memorable victory of the Spanish American War in the battle of Manila Bay in 1898.

Manila was celebrating its annual carnival with characteristic gaiety when the orders came that sent the four destroyers speeding toward Shanghai.

The hurried round-up of men on shore leave and the quick sailing gave rise to the rumor that war had been declared.

LEAGUE CLEARS WAY FOR SHANGHAI QUIZ

Brushes Aside Objections of Japan With Cooperation of U. S. in View.

Geneva, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Impressed by the extreme gravity of developments in the Far East, the League of Nations Council today brushed aside Japan's technical objections and cleared the way for immediate organization of a neutral inquiry into the conflict at Shanghai.

It was an unexpected manifestation of firmness, explained in part by the knowledge that the United States views the disturbance with profound concern and appears ready to cooperate energetically in restoring peace in the Pacific.

Dr. W. W. Yen, for China, invoked Articles X and XV of the league covenant when the Council met. Article X guarantees the political independence and territorial integrity of the signatories, and Article XV gives the Council the right to act in circumstances such as these without the vote of the interested parties.

Challenge by Japanese.

Naotake Sato, for Japan, challenged the Council's right to act, contending that the situation at Shanghai is entirely different from that envisaged in the covenant.

The chairman overruled him and asked the Secretary to make all the necessary arrangements for full investigation of the dispute between China and Japan. The Secretary said he would present his proposals tomorrow.

Tonight it was believed the investigation proposed would be made at Shanghai by a commission composed of the diplomatic representatives of the United States and the other great powers now in China and Japan. The first step would be to obtain a promise of American participation. Thereafter the commission could assemble at Shanghai on a few hours' notice.

Test of Peace Machinery.

The determination of the council to deal fully with this problem which heretofore was left largely to the neutral commission set up by the league some weeks ago, was indicated by the chairman's announcement that the council would continue its sessions indefinitely despite the approaching disarmament conference which opens on Tuesday.

Assembly of the statesmen of 64 nations at that conference offers a unique opportunity to test all the international machinery for peace at short notice.

It would be possible to call a meeting of all the signatories of the nine-power treaty, of the Kellogg pact, or of the League covenant, all of which are concerned in the present situation.

View on Withdrawal.

Geneva, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—The Japanese government must decide whether proposed League of Nations action to curb Japan in the Far East is grounds for withdrawal of Japan from membership in the league, Naotake Sato, delegate to the League Council, said tonight.

Sato indicated that the public reaction in Japan might result in action by the government if the league approves China's demand for drastic action.

In event of such action the Chinese government and its delegate, W. W. Yen, must be held responsible, Sato indicated.

Japanese Visitors Defend Homeland

Nation Does Not Intend to War on China, Two Say in New York.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The assertions that Japan does not intend to make war on China, and that the "open door" will be maintained in Manchuria despite all reports to the contrary, were made today by two prominent Tokyo industrialists in addresses at a luncheon in their honor given by the New York Bond Club.

The visitors from Nippon were Count Aisuke Kabayama, member of the House of Peers, director of numerous corporations and confidant of the Japanese imperial family, and Takashi Komatsu, managing director of the Asano Shipbuilding Co.

Count Kabayama traced the history of the Japanese occupation of Manchuria and declared investigation by the League of Nations inquiry committee would disclose that his country had acted within her right in sending troops into the three northern provinces to protect the lives and property of her citizens.

Hale to Stress Japan's Big Navy

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Hale, of the Senate naval committee, sponsor of a bill to authorize building the American Navy up to treaty strength, yesterday planned a Senate speech shortly comparing the American and Japanese fleets.

He hopes to get his bigger Navy bill enacted this session, but the House naval committee has sidetracked moves there to report such a measure now due to the condition of the Treasury.

There were indications that in the light of Far Eastern developments naval legislation might be taken up in committee soon again. Hale expects to call attention to figures brought out in recent hearings, which portray the Japanese fleet as growing more rapidly than the American or British navies.

3 U. S. Arms Delegates Established in Geneva

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Three members of the American delegation to the disarmament conference, which opens on Tuesday, established headquarters tonight at a hotel in the heart of the city, and the two others were nearby at Berne.

Senator Claude A. Swanson and Dr. Mary Emma Wolley came in from Paris to join Norman Davis, who has been here for several days. Hugh Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, and Hugh Wilson, Minister to Switzerland, remained at Berne. On the same train with the newcomers was Arthur Henderson, former British foreign secretary, looking wan and thin.

MERCURY TUMBLES IN CENTRAL STATES

Kansas City, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A quick and savage thrust of winter, launched in western Canada, tonight fastened the rigors of subzero weather on the North Central States, Rocky Mountain region and threatened to extend the icy frontiers.

In drought-stricken northern Nebraska, where starving live stock was reported freezing, Red Cross workers battled the triple handicap of driving winds, snow-blocked roads and 6-below temperatures to succor desperate farmers.

The Nebraska drifts delayed trains and marooned a freight at Apex, between Norfolk and Sioux City. Snow had blocked highways and delayed trains, too, in Minnesota, North Dakota, Iowa and Idaho. It was falling in northern Utah, Wyoming and parts of Missouri.

Storm warnings were issued for Lake Michigan, with a cold wave, snow and temperatures of 15 below zero forecast for Wisconsin.

Temperatures which had fallen rapidly in 24 hours or less, ranged from zero downward in Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, northern Colorado, western Iowa and Minnesota. Near zero weather was reported in neighboring States.

Zero weather was predicted for Kansas, where the large wheat acreage was without the protection of snow.

Japanese at Hankow Fear Chinese Attack

Hankow, China, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Residents of the Japanese community feverishly constructed barricades today as tension over the Sino-Japanese controversy grew high.

Stimson's Correspondence Reveals Shift From Broad Peace Pleas to Anxiety for Americans' Property and Established Trade Rights.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

New and grave problems growing out of the Sino-Japanese crisis have been thrust upon statesmen of the Western world by Japan's resort to drastic armed action in Chinese areas of the great Oriental City of Shanghai.

Danger of incidents there which might bring Japanese policy into direct clash with the necessity of the United States, Great Britain and other Western governments to protect the lives and property of their nationals in the Shanghai Settlement, or elsewhere in China, for the moment overshadow the Manchurian phases of the crisis that have been brewing since last September.

It was this immediate emergency at Shanghai which prompted Secretary Stimson's conversation with the London and perhaps other European governments, designed to safeguard the lives and property of Western nationals at Shanghai.

Detailed examination of correspondence by the Washington Government over the Manchurian phases of the crisis disclosed that at no time up to the developments at Shanghai had Washington raised the question of commercial or other material rights of its nationals in China. Throughout his exchanges, either with the League of Nations or with the Japanese and Chinese governments, Mr. Stimson confined his diplomatic intervention in the Sino-Japanese crisis to the basis of concern over the broad question of world peace.

Only after the occupation of Chinchow by Japanese forces, despite urgent representations by the United States and the League of Nations, did Washington go to the extent of a formal reservation of all American rights in China, coupled with a warning that no new Chinese-Japanese treaty procured by force or in any way infringing those rights would be assented to by the Washington Government.

It was upon that declaration as to the situation in south Manchuria and with the support of twelve members of the Council of the League of Nations, acting under the covenant of the league, that the United States was standing when Japanese action at Shanghai shifted the center of interest.

Note of September 18.

The published American diplomatic correspondence begins with a note on the incident of September 18, 1931, when an explosion on the line of the Japanese-owned South Manchurian Railway near Mukden brought Chinese and Japanese troops into conflict. Four days later, September 22, Mr. Stimson addressed his first communication to Japan via Ambassador Debuchi.

"This situation is of concern morally, legally, and politically to a considerable number of nations," Mr. Stimson said. "It is not exclusively a matter of concern to Japan and China. It brings into question at once the meaning of certain provisions of agreements, such as the nine-power treaty of February 6, 1922, and the Kellogg-Briand Pact."

Two days later Mr. Stimson sent an identic note to China and Japan calling upon them under those treaties "to refrain from any further hostilities" or from "activities which may prejudice the attainment by amicable methods of an adjustment of their differences."

The Japanese reply noted "the friendly concern and the fairness of views" of the American Government, adding that Japanese forces in Manchuria had been instructed to refrain from further hostilities unless their own safety, the security of the railway zone or Japanese lives and property within the zone were jeopardized "by the aggression of Chinese troops or armed bands."

The note also asserted Japan's desire for settlement by direct negotiation with China.

On October 11 Mr. Stimson informed the Japanese foreign minister that he could not "understand how the bombing of Chinchow," 50 miles from the railway zone "can be minimized." He was constrained to regard the incident "as of very serious importance," he added. There was no direct reply to this memorandum or to its request for information.

Stimson Cites Obligations.

On October 20 Mr. Stimson formally called the attention of China and Japan to their obligations under the anti-war treaty. "A threat of war, wherever it may arise, is of profound concern to the whole world," he said.

Japan answered with an expression of appreciation of "the sympathetic concern of the American Government in the maintenance of international peace," but called attention "to the organized hostile agitation against Japan now in progress in various parts of China."

In a memorandum delivered in Tokyo November 5, Mr. Stimson said the American Government could not escape the conclusion that Japanese operations had "temporarily, at least destroyed the administrative integrity of China in South Manchuria. Withdrawal of Japanese forces within the railway zone would "destroy the idea," he added, "that Japan intends to use military pressure" to bring about settlement of broad issues between herself and China. Japan had already given public assurance that she had no such purpose, the communication added.

American Views Welcomed.

Japan replied that she welcomed the American views, "so thoughtfully expressed" and added that she had "no intention" of insisting on final adjustment of all her controversies with China as a condition of withdrawal to the railway zones. The communication went on to say, however, that a Sino-Japanese arrangement of "certain fundamental principles," including suppression of anti-Japanese agitation in China, "will pave the way for early withdrawal."

By November 27 development of the Japanese movement to occupy Chinchow had reached a point where Mr. Stimson advised Tokyo of his concern, recalling assurances given him November 24 by the foreign minister "with the concurrence of the minister of war and the chief of staff" that there would be no such movement.

A retirement of Japanese troops behind the line of the Liao River followed.

On December 10 the Council of the League, Japan's representative concurring, adopted a resolution for solution of the Manchurian crisis. Mr. Stimson issued a statement welcoming that action, but pointing out that it in no way gave legal sanction to the situation existing in Manchuria. The efficacy of the resolution, he said, depended upon the good faith with which the pledge against renewed hostilities was carried out.

Both Ministries Resign.

On December 11 the Japanese ministry of Premier Wakatsuki resigned. On December 15 the Chinese government of President Chiang Kai-Shek resigned. On December 22 word came of Japan's intention to occupy Chinchow.

On December 24 Secretary Stimson communicated with the Tokyo foreign office, sharply calling attention to his statement that the efficacy of the league resolution depended on the good faith with which the pledge against renewed hostilities was carried out. Reports from American and other neutral observers in Manchuria, he added, yielded "no evidence that the Chinese have engaged in or are preparing for any offensive military movement."

The Japanese reply of December 24 noted this statement as to reports from observers on the ground, but brushed it aside with a counter assertion of the responsibility of Chinchow military authorities for bandit operations in the area that it was "feared might bring about a fundamental bankruptcy of general peace and order in south Manchuria."

Occupation of Chinchow.

Japanese occupation of Chinchow followed, regular Chinese forces withdrawing beyond the Great Wall and avoiding a conflict.

On January 27 Secretary Stimson sent the last American note of the published correspondence to both China and Japan, saying that the last administrative authority of China in south Manchuria "has been destroyed," declining to admit "legality of the situation de facto" in Manchuria at any time after September 18, 1931, and warning both governments that Washington "does not intend to recognize" any new treaty between them violative of American rights, or the open-door principle in China, of the sovereignty, the independence or the territorial and administrative integrity of the Chinese republic, or which may be brought about by means contrary to the commitments of the pact of Paris against resort to war for purposes of national policy.

So far as publicly known, the Washington Government was standing on that declaration of its own present and future policy as to the Sino-Japanese crisis in Manchuria when the Japanese operations at Shanghai changed the theater of events from Manchuria to China proper.

COLD ADDS TO PERIL OF FLOOD'S VICTIMS

Freezing Temperatures Are Forecast in South; Two Die in Cloudburst.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Flood victims in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana encountered a new hardship tonight—cold weather.

Snow fell in Little Rock, Ark., this afternoon and sleet and cold rain were general in many other portions of the State. The Weather Bureau forecast freezing or near freezing temperatures in the flood zones of the three States.

A cloudburst in Kentucky today flooded streams and two persons drowned at Ellisburg as the torrents swept through their home. The dead are John Russell, 60, and Alice Grubb, 6.

1,500 Refugees Helped.

More than 1,500 refugees are being cared for by the Red Cross in a half a dozen towns east of the Mississippi flood zone.

The Ouachita River at Camden, Ark., which reached a crest of 35.1 feet yesterday, was falling today, but was expected to rise again as a result of fresh rains.

The fight at Big Lake, where a levee break would flood additional land in Mississippi County, continued, and west of Kennett, Mo., the levee sacking forces were doubled.

The Red River has reached a stage of 31.6 feet at Fulton, Ark., 4½ feet above flood mark, and is expected to continue rising for about two days.

Flood Record Forecast.

One thousand men toiled in the rain at Monroe, La., to prevent breaks in leaking levees along the Ouachita River. The water stood at 49 feet there today, 9 feet above flood stage.

Nightfall brings no end to the labor. Day and night, trucks filled with workers, tools and sandbags, hurry through the streets, moving from one strategic point to another. Vacant lots are being excavated for dirt to fill the sandbags. The Salvation Army has served 3,500 meals to levee workers there within the past three days.

The Government forecaster at New Orleans expects the Ouachita at Monroe will reach the all-time record of high water—49.2 feet—by Sunday or Monday.

Anniversaries Marked By Curtis and Kansans

Vice President Charles Curtis, celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary as a member of the United States Senate, was the guest of honor last night at the annual banquet and dance of the Kansas State Society in the Raleigh Hotel.

More than 300 native Kansans turned out not only to celebrate the Vice President's anniversary, but also the seventy-first anniversary of the admission of Kansas into the Union. Representative U. S. Guyer was the principal speaker. The program closed with the singing of Kansas songs to the strains of "Happy" Walker's Orchestra.

Two Children Fail To Halt Poisoning

Despondent Mother Near Death After Taking Disinfectant Fluid.

Mrs. Margaret Krause, 39, of 326 N street southwest, was in a critical condition at Gallinger Hospital last night as the result of drinking a quantity of a strong disinfectant fluid. The woman took the draught after two children, Margaret, 12, and Harry, 9, had pleaded with her against her intentions, even attempting to wrench the bottle from her hands.

It was learned that Mrs. Krause had been in low spirits because of the unemployment for nearly two years of her husband, Julius Krause, a butcher. The daughter, Margaret, home from school at lunch time yesterday hid another suspicious appearing bottle after noticing her mother was distraught.

Mrs. Krause was at first taken to Emergency Hospital, but was later transferred to the municipal institution. There are four other children besides Harry and Margaret—Julius, 17; Albert, 14; Mrs. Loretta Donaldson, and Mrs. Marie Kersey. The younger children are being cared for now by Mrs. Donaldson.

West's Democrats Held "Strong" for Roosevelt

(Associated Press.)

Mayor Richard L. Metcalfe, of Omaha, Nebr., yesterday said Gov. Franklin Roosevelt of New York did not need any western headquarters as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination "because the Democrats in the west are overwhelmingly for him."

Metcalfe has been mentioned as a possible manager for Roosevelt campaign headquarters in Chicago but he yesterday denied any knowledge of the suggestion. It had been reported he was to resign as Mayor of Omaha to accept the Roosevelt post.

McKellar's Parcel Post Plan Advances in House

(Associated Press.)

A House postoffice subcommittee yesterday approved the McKellar resolution to take away from the Postoffice Department the ability to alter parced post rates.

Postmaster General Brown opposed the change, holding new rates suggested by the department and approved by the I. C. C. should continue to go into effect. The new increase would make them subject to congressional approval.

INDEPENDENCE PLEA OF ISLANDS BACKED

U. S. Farm Interests Join Filipino Mission at House Hearings.

Support by American agricultural interests of the movement for Philippine independence was voiced yesterday by witnesses before the House committee on insular affairs. The committee also discussed amendments to the Hare bill suggested by the Philippine Independence Mission. These called for elimination of a plebiscite on independence, a period of economic transition and the fixing of an annual quota of 100 immigrants from the Philippines during the period prior to complete independence.

Speaker Manuel Roxas, of the Philippine House of Representatives, said the amendments were designed to reconcile all points of view in the Philippines and the United States. He said also the period in which the Philippines could provide for complete independence without allowing any time for economic liquidation would be two years.

Chester H. Gray, of the Farm Bureau Federation, opposed the provision in the Hare bill for a plebiscite on the ground it would prolong the time necessary for a settlement of the Philippine question and make more difficult the economic adjustment.

He also said he favored a gradual imposition of tariff rates on both sides rather than the limitation of tonnage. It was his contention that the Filipinos would need the money they might gain through the gradual imposition of tariffs on American products to finance their complete independence.

Fred Cummings, of Colorado, president of the National Beet Growers Association, spoke in behalf of speedy independence for the Philippines not only as a duty that the United States owed the Filipinos but to protect the beet farmers of the United States.

Fred Brenckman, of the National Grange, contended that as far as the farmers of the United States are concerned the Philippines are an economic liability. He cited the fact that 80 per cent of the American exports to the Philippines are manufactured products, while virtually all of the islands' exports to the United States are raw materials which come into direct competition with American farm products.

Man Commits Suicide After Wife Deserts Him

When Martin Riddle, 38 years old, former resident of Greenville, S. C., showed Howard Heflin, operator of a rooming house at 616 G street northwest, a half-empty soda-water bottle, which Riddle said had contained poison he had drunk, Heflin thought he was joking. The jest was a grim one.

The rooming-house operator found Heflin dead a half hour later in his room on the third floor. He had gone back there and swallowed the rest of the contents of the bottle. Heflin told police that Riddle had been in town about a month. Heflin said Riddle's wife left him last night and that the man had been despondent.

Uncle Sam Is Old Enough To See Cause for Alarm

By JOHN J. DALY

AFTER Uncle Sam, through his diplomatic agents, asked what all the shooting was about in Shanghai, a Japanese foreign office spokesman said the old gentlemen seemed unduly alarmed.

There is nothing, the official report states, to get excited about. Of course, there has been a little misunderstanding between Japan and China, but remember how distant these two countries are from the United States. It is true that Japanese marines and aviators drove back Chinese troops through the Chapei District of their native city, Shanghai, but this was only field practice and no cause for alarm.

Motor lorries and armored cars lumbered through the International Settlement, where Americans live, but alongside the British, French and other nationals, but these instruments of war were only battering and battling their way to the burning North Railroad Station, which the Chinese stubbornly defended. It was nothing to worry about, only a little skirmish.

* * * *

WHEN all is said and done, this is merely a controversy between the Chinese and the Japanese. As Japan has no idea of aggravating the situation, so the spokesman says, everything is lovely and the goose honks high. There is no danger outside of the danger zone.

Just the same, the United States sends four destroyers toward China, while Japanese cruisers and destroyers, Shanghai bound, leave the Sasebo naval base. Up to this time there had been no intimation of a regatta in Chinese waters. Yet the foreign office man says there is no cause for alarm.

* * * *

AT Woosung Fort, at the mouth of the Whangpoo River, 30,000 Chinese troops are concentrated. They are probably awaiting orders to stage a maneuver. It looks like war, but Japan's spokesman says there is nothing to indicate hostilities.

While the Japanese push their occupation to Pootung, the cotton mill center, Mayor Wu Teh-Chen protests to the Japanese consul general at Shanghai that the use of armed force is "unwarranted and illegal." The mayor has been served by Japanese officials with demands to end anti-Japanese disorders and boycotts.

That seems to be the trouble. There is no war, just a boycott, and while boycotts will be boycotts they sometimes end in war, which makes Uncle Sam so unduly alarmed.

The old gentleman has been through the mill—and he knows a thing or two.

COAL MEN TO FIGHT NORRIS LABOR BILL

Operators Assert It Would Exempt Miners From Injunction Law.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Coal operators will "fight to the limit" the antiinjunction bill of Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, which they say would exempt labor from any of the provisions of the injunction law.

This was made plain today at a meeting of the government relations committee of the National Coal Association, comprising 20 operators from many States. Charles O'Neil, New York, is chairman.

"We are convinced it is unconstitutional to the core," asserted C. B. Huntress, of Washington, D. C., secretary of the association.

The committee approved a proposed tariff of $1 a barrel on crude oil and 50 per cent ad valorem on refined products. It opposed the Davis-Kelly bill, described by the operators as a plan of regulation by Government commission, which would result in unionization.

Approval was given the Goss bill, endorsing a Hoover commission's recommendation for private operation of Muscle Shoals. The operators said the plan would provide a market for $1,000,000 worth of coal annually from Alabama, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Willard Named in Suit For $50,000 Damages

The Willard Hotel was named defendant in a $50,000 damage suit filed yesterday in the District Supreme Court by George B. Kennedy, of 3605 Livingston street northwest, through Attorneys Charles Henry Smith and Lucian Vandoren.

Mr. Kennedy alleged that as he was walking on F street in front of the hotel, on June 20, last, a metal screen dropped from one of the upper windows of the hotel and struck him on the head. He said that he had been confined to a hospital for a long time, and that he is still suffering from the effects of the blow from the screen.

Seth Parker and Troupe Appear to Aid Mission

A capacity audience at Constitution Hall last night attended a reappearance here of "Seth Parker" and his "Jonesport neighbors" staged for the benefit of the Central Union Mission. "Seth" in real life is Philips H. Lord.

Proceeds of last night's performances are to go to the establishment of a summer camp for the children cared for by the mission. Practically the same company which appeared here with Mr. Lord last year participated in the performance last night.

25-Year Prison Term Given Dice Game Slayer

Charles A. Grandison, colored, 30 years old, was sent to the penitentiary for 25 years yesterday when he was brought up before Justice F. Dickinson Letts after having entered a plea of guilty to second degree murder. He had been indicted for first degree murder, but he was allowed to plead to a lesser charge because of mitigating circumstances.

Testimony indicated that both men had been drinking.

Jobs Agencies Bill Hearing Set Today

Rigid License and Bonding Provisions Planned in House Measure.

Regulation of private employment agencies here, with rigid licensing and bonding provisions, will be considered by the judiciary subcommittee of the House District committee at hearings in Room 377 of the House Office Building at 10 o'clock this morning.

The proposed measure is one of several House bills on which hearings will be held at that time, according to Chairman Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland. One bill would remove many of the qualifications required for grand jury service in the District.

Other measures to be taken up provide for protection of union labels in the District, giving the District government greater powers under the condemnation law and punishment for perjured statements before the Police and Fire Trial Boards.

Maj. Hernandez Charges Cruelty in Divorce Suit

Pittsburgh, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Maj. Pedro A. Hernandez, veteran Army officer, testified today in his suit for divorce that his wife, Rachel, threatened to kill him and herself, destroyed pictures of his mother and his daughter by a former marriage, and once struck him with an iron rod.

Maj. Hernandez, a son of Jose H. Hernandez, chief justice of the Porto Rican Supreme Court, flew here from Washington to testify. He claims he has been confined at Walter Reed Hospital there because of a nervous breakdown resulting from mistreatment at the hands of his wife.

resulting funds to be allocated by agreement between the contracting organizations and each individual railroad to provide additional employment or direct relief for furloughed railroad employes."

These four propositions were the product of four days' deliberation on the part of the unions. Last Sunday night, after ten days of negotiations, the managements delivered final answers to the labor program on unemployment relief, making some concessions but failing to satisfy the workers' requests in the more important matters of employment stabilization and the six-hour day.

Lewistown Democrats Favor Gov. Roosevelt

Lewiston, Pa., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Although indorsing no candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Democrats of the Eighteenth Congressional District last night favored Franklin D. Roosevelt for the nomination by a vote of 25 to 2.

It was understood the members attending the conference here had been instructed not to indorse any candidate because of the few possibilities in the field at present. The vote was taken merely to express the present preference, it was announced. Delegates to the national convention were not named.

Massachusetts Support Is Seen for Roosevelt

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—James M. Curley, Democratic Mayor of Boston, called on Gov. Roosevelt today to tell the New York executive that he probably could count upon the support of the Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic national convention, at which Mr. Roosevelt will be a candidate for the presidential nomination.

Mayor Curley said he was convinced the New York Governor would have the delegates from all New England States and if nominated would carry all New England, with the possible exception of Maine.

TREASURY PERSISTS ON RETROACTIVE TAX

Mills Tells Garner That House Stand Will Delay Collections.

(Associated Press.)

The Treasury still believes that new taxes now in the making should affect 1931 incomes, despite the opposite decision of the House ways and means committee.

Undersecretary Mills told Speaker Garner yesterday the Treasury had not changed its attitude, adding that if the levies did not apply on incomes last year, more revenue must be raised from miscellaneous source to balance the budget in two years.

At a conference in the Speaker's office, Mills said the action of the committee in deciding not to make the bill retroactive would delay the collection of additional income taxes until March 15, 1933.

At the same time, the Undersecretary said the Treasury would make any information it had available to the committee to assist in formulating a new $1,000,000,000 tax bill.

Chairman Collier said the ways and means group "will call upon the Treasury for any assistance we need and will be glad to have any suggestions Undersecretary Mills has to offer, although we won't accept everything submitted."

Garner said about $450,000,000 would be raised in excise taxes and that under the usual procedure these would become effective 30 days after the bill is enacted, or about April 15. This would go immediately toward reducing the prospective $2,200,000,000 deficit. He did not answer when asked to name articles affected.

By not making the taxes retroactive, Garner said, the committee had prevented an added hardship on the people and business by saving them about $200,000,000. He added it was doubtful whether the bill would be passed by March 15, the last day income-tax returns may be filed.

Chairman Collier said he did not "think Mr. Mills or the Treasury will get very far in advocating making the taxes retroactive, after the 25 members of the ways and means committee turned it down."

Meantime, the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor sent a letter to Collier in which it opposed increased taxes on income in the lower brackets.

The committee, however, advocated a 5 per cent tax on motor cars, saying "it would not affect the poor".

Writ Seeks Release Of Attack Suspect

Through a plea for a writ of habeas corpus filed in the Marlboro Circuit Court yesterday, Attorney J. Wilson Ryon sought the release on bond of Gus Chaconas, of Washington, charged with criminal assault. The hearing on the writ will be held next Tuesday before Judge Joseph O. Mattingly.

Chaconas was accused by Olga Iglehart, also of Washington, who said he attacked her near Oxon Hill. At a preliminary hearing before a magistrate he was held without bond, as criminal assault is a capital offense in Maryland.

supported by the fact three of the six committeemen were known to favor an unpledged delegation.

E. Bertram Mott, State chairman, who appointed the special committee, has already publicly advocated an unpledged delegation. Daniel E. Pomeroy, national committeeman, and former Gov. E. C. Stokes, member of the committee, were understood to be of the same opinion.

Mrs. Lewis S. Thompson, formerly a national committeewoman, was the only member of the special committee committed to a delegation pledged to the President. Mrs. Elizabeth C. Verga, of Camden, and William P. Bowman, of Somerset, the remaining members, have expressed no opinion.

The special committee also was requested to suggest the names of candidates to receive the State committee's indorsement for delegates at large and to take planes for the trip to Chicago.

Mott said the committee was anxious to call attention to the fact that an unpledged delegation would not mean New Jersey was opposed to the President's renomination. He indicated the delegation probably would support the President for a second term whether pledged or unpledged.

Walter E. Edge, Ambassador to Paris, who is expected to return to the United States February 8, was mentioned as a probable delegate at large, as also was Senator Hamilton F. Kean. Committee members said if the slate of delegates indorsed by the committee is unpledged, Ambassador Edge may himself run pledged to the President, his close personal friend.

It was at the suggestion of Senator Kean that definite action on delegates was postponed until February 26. His suggestion was made in a telegram to the committee.

Post Gallery of Notables

SENATOR GEORGE M. MOSES.

UNITED STATES SENATOR GEORGE HIGGINS MOSES, of New Hampshire, has a jaw that resembles the corner of a good-sized trunk. In other words, George Moses is a fighter.

He has no use for politicians who label themselves Republicans and then turn around and vote with the Democrats on a tariff bill.

Feeling thus, he got up at a banquet here a couple of years ago and called George Norris, Smith Brookhart, Gerald Nye and all the other so-called Republican Progressives the "sons of the wild jackass."

In retaliation the Progressives tried to oust Moses from his office as president pro tempore of the Senate. They voted against him for a score or more of ballots, but when the balloting was concluded Moses was the victor. He was still president pro tempore, the man who presides in the absence of the Vice President.

The son of a clergyman, Senator Moses, after leaving Dartmouth, planned to become a college professor. By chance, however, he became a newspaper reporter. Those who know him think that he would have made a terrible professor, but a great editor.

In 1909 President Taft named Moses American Minister to Greece. Three years later, Moses witnessed the outbreak of the Balkan War. A bit later, he returned to this country, plunged into New Hampshire politics, and in 1918 was elected to the United States Senate.

In his fourteen years in the Senate Moses has acquired the reputation of being that body's most devastating satirist and one of its leading political oracles.

He foresaw far in advance the election of Calvin Coolidge and the election of Herbert Hoover. He also predicted that the Democrats would capture the House in this Congress and would make Jack Garner the Speaker.

In the 1928 campaign, at a luncheon in the old Waldorf, Moses said:

"It will be easy to elect Herbert Hoover in 1928. It will be easier to reelect him in 1932."

ernor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Commissioner Bestor, of the Farm Loan Bureau, are ex officio members of the corporation board.

The directors are going ahead with all preliminary arrangements, but it is not likely that any funds will be loaned by the corporation before Gen. Dawes, the president of the board, and Mr. Jones and Mr. Couch are sworn.

Mr. McCarthy's name will be submitted to the Senate for confirmation when it convenes Monday. No doubt over his approval is held by leaders. Both Senator Robinson and Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, indorsed him.

Senator Robinson said he did not regard the banking legislation as partisan. Regarding the Glass bill, he said:

"It was generally agreed that such revisions as may be deemed advisable shall be made expeditiously and the bill brought forward for consideration and action as soon as practicable.

"It is thought the bill ought to get before the Senate in a few days.

"I am not able to announce the changes that may be anticipated, if any, in the banking bill. These matters must be given further consideration by the (banking) subcommittee and others.

"There was no sentiment expressed regarding the segregation or elimination of the section on insolvent banks.

"It may be pointed out in this connection that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill carries assistance for closed banks and that there is little likelihood that the fund referred to will be exhausted before a decision can be reached on the bill.

"Also there was no sentiment expressed for elimination of the stock speculation features."

Regarding the La Follette-Costigan bill, the Arkansas senator said:

"A subcommittee was appointed with instructions to make a study of it and advise the group later as to its conclusion and suggestions.

"Whether the Senate proceeds to consideration of the bill on Monday or declines to do so, I believe it may be found desirable to recommit the bill.

"The subcommittee will be composed of Senators Walsh, Montana; Wagner, New York, and Black, Alabama."

McCarthy Expresses Hope That He May Do Good Job

Salt Lake City, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The hope "that I'll be able to do a good job," was Wilson McCarthy's response today to information that he had been named the third Democratic director of the Federal Reconstruction Corporation.

Mr. McCarthy's preparation for the job goes back to the days of his youth, when his association in his father's livestock business took him over the broad ranges of the Rocky Mountain country.

After his graduation from Columbia University law school in 1913, he continued to devote much of his attention to livestock and land matters, but also became interested in financial affairs. The latter led him into directorships in banks here and at Park City, Utah, and to a position as manager and vice president of the Pacific Coast Joint Stock Land Bank.

He is also a director for many corporations in Utah, Idaho, Nevada and Wyoming and counsel for other agricultural, banking and livestock interests.

Active as a Democrat from his early manhood, Mr. McCarthy was elected district attorney here soon after his graduation from law school. Two years later he was appointed district judge.

In 1928 he was elected to the State Senate, where he had an active part in taxation revision legislation providing for State income and corporation taxes. He was a representative of Utah in conferences among southwestern States preliminary to the Boulder Dam project.

Besides his business interests here, he owns a 1,000-acre ranch in western Canada. Married in 1910, Mr. McCarthy is the father of five children. He was born at American Fork, Utah, in 1884.

House Is Warned Geneva List May Have to Swim

(Associated Press.)

Despite the remark that if cuts continued, the delegation to the Geneva arms conference might have to "swim across the Atlantic," the House yesterday accepted the Senate amendment reducing the appropriation for the delegation's expenses to $300,000. The measure now goes to the Senate.

A House committee first fixed the limit at $450,000. Mr. Hoover asked for an appropriation of $415,000. This was cut to $390,000.

After Chairman Byrns of the appropriations committee asked the House to accept the Senate amendment, Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, said:

"If you keep on slicing this, the delegation will have to swim across."

2 Youths Rob Gem Shop Of $25,000; Injure Man

Indianapolis, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Two young men invaded a jewelry store on the fifth floor of a downtown office building today and escaped with diamonds and jewelry valued at $25,000.

The robbers entered the Platinum Shop, Inc., seized Louis Bassler, president; his son, Joseph M. Bassler, and an errand boy, Sam Pilz, and threw them on the floor. Clarence Hasen, gas meter reader, who entered the shop, was seized and beaten with a revolver. After completing the robbery the men rode to the main floor on an elevator.

County School Budget Discussed.

Meeting with County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp last night, County Manager Roy S. Braden discussed plans for the preparation of the school budget for the county. It is expected that the matter will be further discussed by the county board at its meeting next Saturday at the courthouse.

Paul Junior High Awards Diplomas to 103 Students

NAVY'S PLAN TO SELL LOS ANGELES BARED

House Group Is Told Funds Would Make Akron 'Twin' Largest in World.

(Associated Press.)

Naval officials hope to sell the airship Los Angeles to pay for enlarging the ZRS-5 now under construction, and retain for the United States the distinction of having the biggest and most efficient lighter-than-air craft in the world.

This was revealed yesterday before the House naval committee, which is studying reported defects in the Akron, the recently completed sister ship of the ZRS-5.

At the same time a naval subcommittee decided to make a personal inspection of the Akron to see if there are any hidden flaws that might cause her to break to pieces in midair.

Commander Garland Fulton, of the Navy's design division, made known the plan to sell the 7-year-old Los Angeles while rebutting criticisms of the Akron.

Sale Already Considered.

Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, reminded Fulton that the German-built Los Angeles, which the United States obtained without cost as a result of the Versailles Treaty, can not be used for military purposes. He asked whether Fulton thought it would be advisable to sell the Los Angeles and use the money to make the ZRS-5 a million cubic feet larger than the Akron.

"I think that would be a very good trade," the naval officer answered. He added "We have suggested" that to the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation, which built the Akron and is constructing the ZRS-5.

Fulton also read a recommendation Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy's Aeronautics Bureau, has made to Secretary Adams that the ZRS-5 be increased in size from 6,500,000 to 7,500,000 cubic feet.

Cites German Project.

Moffett told the Navy Secretary the work would cost $300,000 to $400,000 and allow the "United States Navy to keep abreast of progress." He pointed out that a 7,000,000 cubic foot vessel is being built in Germany.

With the increased size, Moffett wrote, the ZRS-5 would be able to cruise nearly 13,600 land miles instead of about 10,000.

Chairman McClintic, of the Akron investigation subcommittee, said his group would make an inspection of the airship, "probably the latter part of next week."

He explained he thought that was necessary because "the country won't be satisfied the Akron is all right unless some of us make a personal investigation."

Jerome G. Hunsaker, vice president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, who was present at the committee hearing, said later his company was "seriously considering" the proposition of taking the Los Angeles in payment for enlarging the ZRS-5.

Admiral Moffett subsequently added he thought it was a "little early" to expect to operate a satisfactory transatlantic airship line, but that experiments could be performed with the Los Angeles between North and South America.

FIRST LADY PLANTS ELMIRA CLUB TREE

Bicentennial Elm Placed in Earth on George Washington Campus.

Acting in her capacity as an honorary member of the Elmira College Club, Mrs. Herbert Hoover yesterday planted an elm tree on the campus of George Washington University. The tree, a Bicentennial gift of the club, was accepted by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university.

Sent from Elmira, N. Y., the tree was presented by Mrs. Clinton O. Ward, president of the club. Mrs. Hoover was given a corsage of spring flowers in Elmira College colors by Miss Mary Jane Cricher, daughter of Mrs. A. Lane Cricher, former president of the club; and John Charles Donaldson, son of Dr. John Donaldson, dean of the school of government at George Washington.

Others present at the ceremonies included Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the Treasury; Miss Esther Hart, a charter member of the club, and Miss Cynthia A. Crocker, the youngest member.

Mrs. Hoover received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Elmira College during the 75th anniversary of the founding of the college in 1930. Following the ceremonies yesterday she was presented with a membership to the American Tree Association.

The association announced that more than nine million trees have been planted throughout the world in honor of George Washington.

Press Club President To "Let George Do It"

Bascom N. Timmons, new president of the National Press Club, intends to be a working president, but announcement yesterday of his appointment of the house committee of the club showed he intends to "let George do it," when George is available and willing. Each of the members of the committee bears the name George.

George W. Stimpson, of the Pathfinder, is chairman. Other members of the committee are George W. Combs, of the Baltimore Sun; George R. Holmes, International News Service; George F. Authier, Minneapolis Tribune; George H. Barrows, Washington Post; George Adams Howard, Washington Star; George L. Tarry, Wall Street Journal, and George H. Manning, editor and publisher.

In addition to this George A. Benson, of the Minneapolis Tribune, is chairman of the entertainment committee, and George E. Durno, International News Service, is financial secretary.

CLOTHING WE WEAR

By H. G. WELLS

SO soon as our 1,900,000,000 people are assured of food, the questions of clothing, shelter and ornament arise. The search for comfort begins. Man—and still more woman—arrays himself against the elements and to encounter his fellow creatures. He dresses, he arranges his personal background.

It might be interesting and profitable here to go into the question of what should be included in the modern man's wardrobe. I am not thinking here of the wardrobe of a smart man-about-town. But what should a sailor or an agricultural laborer or an engine driver or a clerk in a modern civilized community possess in the way of hats, shirts, boots, shoes, suits and ties and collars? And what, in fact, does an exceptionally prosperous individual o. these classes buy for himself nowadays? That ought to be ascertainable, but I know of no one who has attempted to ascertain it. I think we should find a considerable gap between the equipment that is reasonably desirable and the equipment actually possessed in most cases. I think we should find the world is shockingly underclothed today by the criteria of either efficiency or desire.

* * * *

IN the first place every worker in a soundly organized community should have proper working clothes, and by that I mean not simply overalls, but such underclothes as are best for him to toil and sweat in. I doubt if the expense and trouble of procuring this working costume should be left to him. They are the concern of the efficiency-seeking director as much as the space and lighting of his work-place. The modern agricultural worker, quite as much as the miner or factory hand, should have his working costume. And men and women are mere industrial slaves if there is not a considerable part of their waking life spent out of working clothes. That means suits and dresses and fresh underclothing into which they can change. The old-time peasant almost everywhere had his or her traditional "best," the go-to-meeting array, the provincial "costume." This was handed from one generation to another. It might be amusing to give a series of illustrations to show how alike those "old-world" costumes were and how distinctive they were felt to be. The modern worker has little need for such parade costumes for feasts and rare occasions, but more for varied personal clothing during his ever increasing leisure. He wants first his sound and adequate "producer" costume as this or that sort of worker, and next his sufficient and satisfying individual "consumer" wardrobe as a free and independent citizen. The Lancashire operative usually has a "berryin' 'at" for funerals and state occasions, a last trace perhaps of the peasant's "best" regalia.

* * * *

I BELIEVE myself that the present underclothing of the world is disgustingly dirty, ragged and defective. A contract to put that right and keep it right would set every woolen and cotton factory in the world enlarging itself and working overtime. And would keep it working overtime until fresh factories arose.

It is not simply for the oily mechanic, the miner and the farm hand, that we have to consider this two-sided wardrobe. There is an old-established but increasing disposition in most of the organized work of the world to put the worker on duty into a uniform. In the past he was usually expected to share or bear all the expense of that. When I was a draper's apprentice the clothing expenditure of that shop assistant's wages was controlled by the fact that the men had to appear behind the counter in a white shirt and collar, black tie, black tail coat and dark gray trousers, or some such similar rig—it varied with the establishment—while the shop woman was under similar obligations. For shop assistants living in, this meant that from a quarter to a third of their wages was earmarked for uniform. In off time there was nothing for it but to go on wearing the same things. As a natural reaction against this obligation, it was the supreme ambition of every assistant to possess a colored lounge suit. That was the symbol of one's (temporary) freedom, one's citizenship, one's manhood. One felt, when one wore it, no longer a shop hand but a man. One might be anyone in mufti. A select few treasured the equivalent of the peasant's gala costume in a cherished dress skirt or so, a white waistcoat, and a carefully folded evening dress coat and trousers. They wore this gear at chapel dances and genteel occasions of that sort. Heads of departments got to tweeds and deerstalker caps. Nowadays there are thousands of young men in plus-fours who have never handled a golf club in their lives but who wear them as the outward and visible escape from some quasiuniform imposing occupation.

* * * *

I DO NOT know how it is with the clothing of shop assistants today. Nor do I know on what terms the hall porters, hotel waiters, bus drivers, railway conductors, postmen, delivery boys, lift attendants, and the like, that increasing band of uniformed men and women, are clothed.

The social effect of the uniform, however, is very plain. The uniform limits both control and obligation. It is no longer an affair of lord and inferior; your personalities disappear in the formalized relationship. The first obligation of the man in uniform is to respect his uniform—as the scientific worker must respect his research or the doctor the public health.

Wife of Adm. Reynolds Succumbs in Florence

Florence, Italy, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Mrs. Nellie G. B. Reynolds, wife of Rear Admiral W. Edwards Reynolds, retired, of Washington, D. C., died in a hospital here early today following infection of a wound in her right arm. She was 68 years old.

The body is to be cremated and the ashes sent to Washington.

Senate Group Approves Tariff Board Nominees

(Associated Press.)

Without a record vote the Senate finance committee yesterday approved the nominations of Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Massachusetts Republican, and Ira M. Ornburn, Connecticut Democrat, as chairman and member, respectively, of the Tariff Commission.

FARMER IS RETICENT IN M'BRIDE KILLING

Grilling of Temple Biggs by Prince Georges Officers Affords No Clews.

Although Temple Biggs, a farmer, held in connection with the murder of Barney McBride nearly ten years ago, was questioned for almost an hour yesterday he refused to admit any knowledge of the killing of the wealthy Indian oil man, Prince Georges County authorities said yesterday.

Biggs, according to Sheriff W. C. Hopkins, maintained a sullen silence. He has not yet been confronted with the two persons to whom he is said to have recounted details of the murder. The prisoner was arrested at his home near Camp Springs, Md., Thursday afternoon, and is being held on investigation charges. The 48-hour limit allowed for investigation expires this afternoon.

Other persons connected with the case are being sought, Sheriff Hopkins said, but he does not expect to find them until sometime today. Until they are found, no determined effort to break Biggs' silence will be made.

McBride, an Oklahoma Indian, who had grown rich through oil lands he owned, came to Washington in 1922 to lease them to the Government. Three days after arriving here his body was found in a ditch near Meadows, Md., not far from Biggs' home. He had been robbed of a quantity of money and an expensive diamond ring.

Bolivia Will Send Chaco Reply Soon

Rejection of Paraguayan Proposals Is Probable in Expected Note.

(Associated Press.)

Presentation of Bolivia's reply to Paraguayan Chaco proposals is expected within a week.

There is every indication that proposals put forward by the Paraguan delegates will not meet approval of the Bolivians, especially in their provision for retirement of patrols to limits set forth in the treaty of 1907.

The Bolivian delegates to the Chaco nonaggression conference, Dr. Diez de Medina and Dr. Finot, have been working on a reply ever since the submission of the Paraguayan counterproposal to Bolivia's first communication to the present conference.

It is predicted the Bolivian thesis will be of considerable length and will outline the history of Bolivia's position since trouble started over the question of ownership in the Gran Chaco. Several days more will be required for completion of the note.

MESSAGES OF BANK ON COLOMBIA BARED

Correspondence of National City With Bogota Is Made Public.

(Associated Press.)

Correspondence between the National City Bank and its representatives in Colombia regarding a loan to that country showing the Barco oil concessions was frequently mentioned along with other matters was was made public yesterday by the Senate finance committee.

The correspondence was placed in the record by Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, at the conclusion of the committee's investigation Wednesday, but the text was not available until yesterday.

It revealed the valuable oil concession often was referred to in connection with the $4,000,000 loan which the bank had contracted to make, but was withholding. Most of the correspondence, however, dealt with the bank officials said caused them to hold up the advance.

One cablegram from the bank's representatives at Bogota, June 24, 1931, said, "President Olaya has never intimated directly or indirectly petroleum or Barco law passed at the instigation or even suggestion of the bankers."

Telegrams From Bogota.

Officials of the bank denied, before the committee, there was any connection between the concession which was restored to the Mellon-owned Gulf Oil Co. and other American interests June 20, 1931, and the loan granted ten days later.

A telegram from W. J. Samels, Bogota representative of the bank on March 2, said the business outlook in Colombia was encouraging, and added:

"President of the republic authorized us to advise you petroleum law bill be signed this week and that contract settling Barco case will be signed tomorrow morning."

Another message, March 5, urged extension of the $4,000,000 loan, saying "passage of oil law and settlement Barco concession have contributed to material improvement business outlook during past week."

Barco Bill Mentioned.

Several messages mentioned the status of the Barco legislation, and on June 5 one said: "Passage of Barco bill which is imminent offers possibility of building up credit of Colombia if it is properly handled."

H. M. Jefferson, another representative in Bogota, cabled June 6 that he had authorized denial of press reports that Lazard Brothers & Co., an English banking firm connected with the loan, had withdrawn because the Barco bill turned the concession over to American interests.

President Olaya was quoted in a message June 20 as saying a proposal for higher interest rates on the loan was "inopportune" because he had forced through the Colombian congress "many constructive measures" including the petroleum and Barco laws, "which latter he has continually supported as credit building measure as evidencing intention of Colombian government to comply with foreign commitment."

President Olaya's Messages.

Olaya was said to have contended that increased interest rates "would represent his compensation for enactment of laws and appointment of official bankers and more so if increase in form of commission."

A copy of the Barco law was forwarded July 9.

Among the documents Johnson placed in the record also were two messages from President Olaya to the Colombian congress urging enactment of the Barco law. A third had already been filed by Johnson previously.

In one Olaya asked for settlement of the Barco dispute "by means of which the government hopes for economic and financial repercussions."

In the other, he said, settlement was "desirable" to solve "differences which arise with foreign capital," and added, "this contract opens propitious horizons for the financial possibilities of the republic abroad."

Veterans' Relief Will Be Delayed

Senate Group Decides Not to Push Aid Program This Session.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate finance committee decided yesterday against pressing any general veterans' relief measures this session.

The committee decided to await House action on hospital construction legislation and to consider only those compensation proposals that involve "unfair discrimination" against individuals.

The finance committee also discussed the resolution of Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, for a Tariff Commission study of the effect on American trade by depreciated foreign currencies, but deferred action until next Tuesday.

American Plane Believed Down in Sea Off Mexico

Mexico City, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Salina Cruz today led to the belief that an airplane piloted by James Angel or Joseph Glass, both of California, might be down at sea off Morro Ayuta.

The dispatches said an aviator had landed at Salina Cruz seeking assistance for another ship which had alighted in the sea. Angel and Glass, with their wives and several other passengers, left Mexico City in two planes early in the week for Villa Hermosa. They intended to go to Chiapas to transport coffee by air from the interior regions.

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 29 (A.P.).Governor General McNeill issued a proclamation today dissolving the Dail Eireann and setting February 16 as the day for a new general election.

Oklahoma City Oil Production Cut.

Oklahoma City, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—An order reducing the allowable production of the Oklahoma City oil field from 120,000 barrels to 95,000 barrels daily, effective February 1, was signed today by the State corporation commission.

Malaria Is Given Patients To Reduce Toll of Insanity

St. Elizabeths Scientists Reveal How "Fighting Disease With Disease" Has Cut Fatalities 90 Per Cent in Paresis Cases.

(Associated Press.)

Government scientists revealed yesterday how "fighting disease with disease" has reduced by 90 per cent the toll of a form of insanity that once meant swift and almost certain death.

Paresis, a mental disease that once was incurable, now apparently can be cured in 90 per cent of the cases by giving the patient malaria, the Department of the Interior announced.

Clusters of bacteria in the brain called spirochaetes cause paresis, but they can not endure a temperature of 104. By giving the patient malaria, which rasies his temperature to 104 or higher, the spirochaetes are killed and no longer can do harm.

The patient's life is saved, although his brain may be permanently affected by damage caused by the bacteria before they are killed.

Less than 10 per cent of 192 patients given the malaria treatment at St. Elizabeths Hospital, a Government institution, died during the first year, says a report of Dr. William A. White, superintendent. All who survived the first year are still alive five or more years after treatment. 40 have been discharged from the hospital and many others are at various stages of recovery or permanent improvement.

Among 214 paresis patients admitted before the malaria treatment was known, 127 died the first year and only 5 were living at the end of five years. There were no cures.

The malaria treatment does not harm the patients as it can be easily controlled. It was developed by Dr. Wagner von Jauregg, of Vienna.

U. S. WARSHIPS FREE TO LEAVE SALVADOR

Bolshevik Uprising Quelled, Admiral May Use His Own Judgment.

(Associated Press.)

With the communistic uprisings in El Salvador, tiny Central American republic, apparently conquered by the local military, the Navy has directed Rear Admiral Arthur St. C. Smith to use his discretion in withdrawing three American warships stationed nearby.

They are the cruiser Rochester, Admiral Smith's flagship, located at Acajutla, and the destroyers Wickes and Philip, at anchor off La Libertad. They were ordered from Panama last Saturday when Communists overran the interior, killing many persons, according to private advices.

Admiral Smith radioed the department yesterday he had received the following message:

"The chief of operations on the western front of the Republic of Salvador, General of Division Don J. T. Calderon, presents his compliments and sends greetings in the name of the government and Gen. Martinez and his own to Admiral Smith, of the U. S. S. Rochester; Commander V. G. Brodeur, of H. M. C. S. Skeena; Lieut. Comdr Hart, H. M. C. S. Vancouver, and has pleasure in advising them that peace has been reestablished in El Salvador, that the communistic offensive has been totally beaten and disbursed and will be entirely exterminated. Four thousand eight hundred Bolsheviks have already been accounted for."

There was no information as to whether this meant that number had been slain or what their fate was. Admiral Smith said further information in regard to this declaration was expected.

Salvador Customs Cash Will Go Into Treasury

San Salvador, Jan. 29 (U. P.).—The government has ordered that customs receipts, formerly paid a fiscal agent for use in servicing the country's foreign debt, hereafter should be diverted to the national treasury.

The government will resume payments to the fiscal agent as soon as possible, it was said.

Woman Boating to Gulf Desolate on NearingGoal

New Orleans, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The flat bottom boat of Miss Randy Lerohl, the paddling scrub woman of Superior, Wis., bore her southward tonight toward fulfillment of her ambition to hold a rendezvous with the mouth of the mighty Mississippi.

She left New Orleans today on the last 100-mile lap of the long journey from the river's upper reaches to the Gulf of Mexico, but she is no longer the chatty neighborly soul who made friends of thousands who lined the banks to greet and cheer her at St. Louis, Cairo, Memphis and numerous hamlets en route. She appeared desolate as the end of the journey drew near and refused to talk with newspapermen or even pose for their picture taking.

Boat Blast Fails to Halt Tropics Exploring Band

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Despite the destruction of its motorboat by fire and explosion here last night, the Pennsylvania Pan-American Expedition will continue on its scientific exploration of the tropics, J. Mortimer Sheppard, leader and guide, said today.

Sheppard declared Frederick H. Wright, of Rutgers University, and Stanley Stephens, of the University of Pittsburgh, who were burned in the destruction of their boat Quest, following a gasoline explosion, would probably return home, but that Edward T. Jones, zoologist, and Edward B. Foote, architecture student, both of the University of Pittsburgh, might continue.

Airplanes Follow Body Of Stinson to Cemetery

Detroit, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Army airplanes flying in formation with one space vacant followed the body of Edward A. Stinson, pioneer Detroit flier, to its grave in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery today.

A huge crowd, which included noted fliers and airplane manufactures and scores of personal friends, gathered at the Stinson home in Dearborn, two hours before the funeral services started. An airplane circled over the house until the funeral cortege left for Sacred Heart Church, where another large crowd had gathered.

Former Student of Gen. Lee Dies.

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Dr. Sidney Turner Moreland, 79, physics professor emeritus of the University of Tennessee, who was once a student under Gen. Robert E. Lee, died at his home here today. He received degrees at Washington and Lee University in 1874 and 1876.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW WILL OPEN TONIGHT

26 Different Makes Listed in Wide Range of Prices at Auditorium.

The Twelfth Annual Automobile Show to be held under auspices of the Washington Automotive Trade Association opens tonight at the Washington Auditorium and continues through all next week.

Twenty-six different makes of automobiles ranging in price from a little more than $400 on up to some that represent an investment in the neighborhood of $10,000 will be displayed on the two floors of the building which have been suitably decorated for the occasion. In addition there are ten accessory exhibitors and one boat display.

This year the show is an initial public display of models that, were, with the exception of two, first introduced at the New York Automobile Show three weeks ago. Of these two, one was introduced shortly before the beginning of the year and the other in the late fall.

In the matter of improvements and refinements this show is perhaps the most outstanding that has ever been held for the manufacturers, without exception, have striven to surpass one another in the way of new features that tend to make the riding in or driving of an automobile more of a pleasure than ever before.

In the matter of cylinders they range from four to sixteen, with eights predominating. There is one addition to the line of twelve-cylinder cars. As to horsepower they range from 70 on up to more than 200, and in the matter of speed some of them have 100-mile speedometers.

As was the case last year the show will be open on Sunday, and each day an automobile is to be given away to the holder of the lucky ticket, which is a part of the admission ticket purchased at the box office.

Smith's Son Is Cleared Of Blame in Auto Death

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—After a hearing in which three eyewitnesses placed the blame for the accident on the victim, Magistrate Guy Van Amringe in homicide court today dismissed a charge of suspicion of homicide against Walter Smith, 22-year-old son of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Smith had been accused in connection with the death of Harry Wallace, 59 years old, who was struck and killed by the Smith boy's automobile on Lexington avenue between 128th and 129th streets on January 15 last.

Holdup Nets $10,000 In Film Director's Home

Los Angeles, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Two masked men escaped with money and jewels valued at $10,000 in a daylight robbery of the Beverly Hills home of John Francis Dillon, motion picture director.

Herding together three servants, Mrs. Dillon and her daughter Pat, 3, the two forced the director's wife to open the door when Mrs. William Bailey, a friend, came to call, then, with the visitor also covered, Mrs. Dillon was compelled to open the safe containing the valuables.

WRIGLEY'S ILLINOIS FORTUNE DISCLOSED

Many Relatives Bequeathed Parts of "At Least $22,500,000."

Chicago, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—An estate in Illinois of "at least $22,560,000" was left by William Wrigley, jr., mostly to his immediate family in a will filed for probate today. The Chicago Cubs Baseball Club was bequeathed to his son, Philip K.

The fortune cemented together by chewing gum was probably the largest ever recorded here, attaches of the probate court said. However, it did not include the dead manufacturer's palatial homes in Phoenix, Ariz., Pasadena, Calif., and Catalina Island, for which he once refused an offer of $19,000,000; his mining and hotel properties in the West, or his estate at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Mr. Wrigley died Tuesday in Phoenix. With his bequest of the Cubs went an unwritten challenge to fulfill Wrigley's lifelong wish for a world's championship team.

$100,000 Annuities Given.

Mrs. Wrigley, Philip and Mrs. Dorothy Wrigley Offield, a daughter, each was granted an annual income of $100,000 from the estate in trust. An annuity of $6,000 was left to Wrigley's sister, Mrs. H. E. Price, of Germantown, Pa.; $2,000 to his brothers, Byron and Edward, of Germantown, and Charles Wrigley, of Pasadena, Calif.; $2,000 to a cousin, Mrs. Grace Wrigley Why, of Pasadena, and $1,500 to another cousin, Alma E. Wrigley, of Lake City, Fla.

Nieces and nephews given $10,000 each were Ada Blanche and Dorothy Wrigley, of Chicago; William Price, of Germantown, Pa.; William Wrigley, of Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Marie Wrigley Sayre, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Mildred Wrigley Clark, of Evanston, Ill.; Byron E. Wrigley, jr., of Sidney, New South Wales, and Mrs. Helene Wrigley Hanscom, of Philadelphia.

Residue Held in Trust.

Other cash bequests totaled $143,500. The remainder will be left in the trust of Philip Wrigley and the First Union Trust & Savings Bank here until December 5, 1944, Wrigley's fiftieth birthday. On that date six-tenths will go to Philip, two-tenths to Mrs. Offield, one-tenth to her husband, Ames R. Offield, and one-twentieth each to their children, Ada and Wrigley Offield.

The will was dated last October 19. A codicil on October 27 left Wrigley's home on Lake Shore Drive here to his widow. Mr. Wrigley's properties in other States will be probated in those jurisdictions. Hearing for admission of the will to probate will be held February 23.

Charity, which received thousands from Mr. Wrigley during his lifetime, was not mentioned in his will.

Illness Following Fete At Harvard Investigated

Boston, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—University authorities today were investigating the strange illness of some 50 students and doctors, living in Vanderbilt Hall of the Harvard Medical School, who were taken ill on Tuesday night.

Thirty of 35 students and doctors were stricken after a fraternity dinner and other students in the dormitory experienced a similar illness. Dr. Worth Hale, assistant dean of the medical school, said the illness was not of a serious nature and all were recovering. The students diagnosed their illness as para-typhoid, but Dr. Hale, said no definite diagnosis had been reached.

Governor of Wisconsin Volunteers Own Pay Cut

Madison, Wis., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Solomon Levitan, State treasurer, today said Gov. Philip F. La Follette notified him he would take a 20 per cent salary cut, dated from January 1 and effective for the year.

The reduction will give the governor $6,000 for the year instead of $7,500. The action followed closely suggested legislation by the governor that all State departments reduce budgets up to 20 per cent if deemed necessary to keep State expenditures within receipts.

Noted Catholic Scholar Dies.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Monsignor Andrew B. Meehan, D. D., widely known Catholic scholar and writer, who once refused a bishopric to continue his work as a professor at St. Bernard's Seminary here, died today after a long illness. He was 64 years old.

9 Legislators Prepare To Scan Akron Interior

(Associated Press.)

Picture nine members of Congress standing on a narrow runway in the dusky interior of the airship Akron peering through powerful binoculars at as many of the 8,000,000 rivets as they can see.

That is the way Representative McClintic (Democrat), Oklahoma, yesterday described the inspection his naval subcommittee will make to discover if there are any defects in the world's largest airship.

He added that since there was no money available to pay the expenses of the subcommittee to Lakehurst, "we may ask the Navy to send the Akron to Washington, pick us up, take us to Lakehurst for the inspection and then bring us back."

Shortridge Mends; Others Improving

Condition of Four House Members Reported to Speaker.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Shortridge, of California, operated on Thursday for a digestive trouble, was described yesterday at his hospital as "improving rapidly."

The condition of four Southern House members, ill for several weeks, was reported to Speaker Garner yesterday as improved. They are:

Representative McDuffie, of Alabama, the Democratic whip, recuperating from overexertions; Chairman Quin, of the House military committee, suffering from a stomach ailment; Chairman Warren, of the accounts committee, suffering from throat trtouble, and Representative McMillan, of South Carolina, recovering from an attack of la grippe. None is in serious condition.

Cleveland's Industrial Activity Enjoys Spurt

Cleveland, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Cleveland's wheels of industry today were turning faster than at any time in this district since the holidays. A survey showed employment has stepped up materially and that there are prospects that operating schedules of steel mills will be higher next week than at any time during the winter.

A new flood of orders from the automobile industry has strengthened conditions. Operations in the Cleveland steel district this week were at 35 per cent, the highest in the country, and it was predicted by various industrialists that the rate would reach 45 per cent some time next week.

9 STABBED TO DEATH BY MADMAN IN HOME

Victims Include 7 Children; Another Expected to Die; Farm Hand Sought.

Elma, Manitoba, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—In the darkness of night, an assassin crept into a farmer's home today, stabbed to death nine members of the household and fled after firing the house.

The dead are Martin Sipar, 55, his wife and seven of their ten children. Three children survived the attack. One of these, 3 years old, however, was in critical condition from knife wounds.

A hired man named Hildebrandt was hunted by police aided by neighbors.

Two little boys in the family escaped the assassin's knife. Aroused from sleep by screams, they fled to the home of their uncle, John Sipar, living nearby.

The house was in flames when John Sipar arrived. But he carried out the ten persons in it, seven of whom were dead. One of the two little children still living died this afternoon from burns suffered in the fire. The other also was badly burned.

Mrs. Sipar died an hour after she was carried out of the burning house, her head mutilated by knife wounds.

The tiny settlement of Elma is in eastern Manitoba, about 55 miles from Winnipeg on the Canadian National Railway. Farmers and townsfolk mobilized to aid in the search for Hildebrandt, begun by police when they arrived several hours after the killings.

The man came to this country from Europe, and had worked for the Sipars about two months.

Paris Stand for Rights Is Defended by Claudel

New York, Jan. 29 (A. P.).—France's policy of insisting upon her rights was defended by Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States today at the annual luncheon of the French Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

He said this policy, actuated by strong sense of justice, is one of the great stabilizing forces in the world today, and is helping hold Europe together. The address was in French. Jean Tillier, president of the chamber, said he deplored the world-wide rush to erect tariff barriers.

Actor of Old School Dies.

Somers Point, N. J., Jan. 29 (A.P.). George W. Monroe, 70, for many years a well known actor in New York productions, died today. Although he appeared in many musical comedy shows and revues, Monroe was best known for his characterization of Irish women types. He retired about 18 years ago.

Indictment Alleges White Slave Ring

Headquarters Was Near Capone's Hotel, U. S. Charge Says.

Chicago, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Two alleged leaders in what police said was a Nation-wide white slave ring with headquarters next door to Al Capone's hotel were indicted today by the Federal grand jury.

Charges against the two men, Charles White and Joseph Locrasto, include violation of the Mann act by transporting Hazel Brown from Michigan to Chicago. The girl also was named to insure her presence as a Government witness.

Police said she was one of hundreds of young women duped into coming to Chicago by the alleged syndicate with promises of reputable employment. Records of many women were said to have been found in a raid on a South Side beauty parlor near the Lexington Hotel, where Capone formerly made his headquarters. Another indictment named Mrs. Victoria Beeson in connection with bringing Josephine Ward here from Detroit.

Sister of Allen Neutral At Youth's Murder Trial

Philadelphia, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Counsel for Miss Rose E. M. Allen, sister of Edward H. B. Allen, charged with the killing of her friend, Francis A. Donaldson 3d, said today that she would be a neutral witness in her brother's trial.

"I will not testify in favor of either side," she said through her attorney, Elmer A. Schroeder, "but will answer questions and tell the truth only."

State Drought Aid Defended by Bryan

Opposes Plan to Place Red Cross in Charge of Operations.

Lincoln, Nebr., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Gov. Charles W. Bryan today said he would oppose any move to deviate drought relief work in northern Nebraska from the system now employed by the State.

A number of relief agencies at a meeting in Norfolk decided to permit the Red Cross to take charge of all forms of relief in the area, including the feeding of starving live stock. Gov. Bryan said the plan would merely result in waste and duplication of work. Omaha and Norfolk organizations recently started surveys and campaigns to aid farmers of the drought area.

The governor, who recently declined to call a special session of the Legislature to appropriate $2,000,000 for loans to farmers to feed live stock, charged the new relief movements were started to feed large herds of live stock in which Norfolk bankers and South Omaha live stock men were interested financially.

Champ Clark's Manager Dies.

Louisiana, Mo., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—E. A. Glenn, 70, for many years a nationally known Democratic politician and intimate friend of former Speaker Champ Clark and of Senator James A. Reed, died at his home here today. He managed the campaigns of Champ Clark from the beginning to the end of his political career.

EXECUTIVE COORDINATION.

Efforts to reorganize the executive departments, to coordinate the conflicting functions of different bureaus and thus overcome the duplication of work and public service, have more encouragement now than for many years. Congress is in a mood for economy. Confronted with a deficit that already amounts to $1,500,000,000 for this fiscal year, both the House and Senate realize the absolute necessity of reducing expenditures. Consolidation of the executive departments should have an appeal that it has never had before.

Some members of Congress have made valiant efforts to improve the situation, but without any measure of success. Every bureau clings to life with the proverbial tenacity of a cat. Officials can find a thousand reasons why their jobs should not be molested. Senators and representatives are importuned by officeholders from their home States. No politician is willing to sacrifice his own supporters. So consolidation schemes either end up in a pigeon-hole, or else they result in setting up another superstructure encompassing all the conflicting bureaus under a new chief, who must, of course, be allowed a considerable salary.

President Hoover has taken a special interest in this situation, having set up a commission to decide what reorganization is advisable. It may be assumed that this body will present an elaborate plan, and that its recommendations will be transmitted to Congress for enactment into law. But even with an enormous deficit and a widespread desire for economy, there is no reason to believe that such a measure could run the gamut of congressional log-rolling.

Senator George has devised a plan to overcome the effect of bureaucratic pressure on members of Congress who may sincerely wish to see the Government departments trimmed down and coordinated on an efficiency basis. He has introduced a joint resolution that would authorize the President to transfer independent boards and commissions to an appropriate executive department, and to consolidate the functions of any and all bureaus under his general supervision.

The advantage of this plan is obvious. Presidents are not subject to the same degree of political pressure as are members of Congress. Under this arrangement the President could submit to Congress a fait accompli instead of a political controversy. Since the President is the Chief Executive, he is in a better position to effect the reorganization of the executive agencies and bureaus than is Congress.

The George resolution provides a way by which a much-needed reform can be accomplished without exciting local geysers of politics into action. It is not flattering to Congress that its members are incapable of trimming off the dead branches that encumber the Government. But such is the fact. In view of its own impotence in the matter, Congress should not hesitate to give the President an opportunity to overhaul that branch of government under his control.

A NEW SALT LAKE.

The great salt desert of Oklahoma, consisting of 40,000 acres of salt plains, will soon become a lake. In 1928 Congress provided $50,000 for a preliminary survey of 100 lakes in a proposed system extending from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, to be made into refuges for migratory birds. The Oklahoma salt plains were turned over by executive order of President Hoover to the the waterline in 1930.

Biological Survey, which began a survey of

The salt desert occupies more than 40 square miles. After a careful study of the region, the Oklahoma Biological Survey found that this was not an old lake bottom, as was formerly believed, but the result of weathering of soil that would not support enough vegetation to prevent excessive erosion. The salt in the soil, being soluble, does not come to the surface as rock, but "sweats up" out of the ground. Over a period of millions of years the prairie was gradually covered with a white frosting of salt varying in depth from a thin coating to several inches.

This desert supports but four forms of life—two insects and two plants. For years the farmers of the vicinity have collected salt for their cattle on these plains, and before them the Indians gathered salt to season their food. A story is told that Coronado drove 1,000 sheep and cattle across the glistening expanse, and that somewhere along the way to the Gran Quivera, which is now Wichita, Kans., he buried a rich treasure of turquoise and beaten silver. But many searching parties have failed to reveal this fabulous wealth.

Residents of the district are pleased with the prospect that the new lake will alter the climatic conditions, which make the country semiarid and intensely hot in summer. Another feature which appeals to fishermen is that the lake will be stocked with salt water fish. The new salt lake will be surpassed in size by only two others in the United States—the Great Salt Lake in Utah and the Salton Sea in southern California.

VETERANS' LEGISLATION.

Veterans' organizations are making a drive for a special Senate committee to consider legislation affecting the welfare of former soldiers. At present such matters are handled by the Senate finance committee, working through a permanent subcommittee of five members. Veterans complain that the finance committee is so occupied with revenue, tariff and other fiscal matters that it can not give adequate attention to their needs.

This complaint brings to public attention a complex problem in the Senate. With only 96 members, including such absentees as Senator Huey Long, the Senate has 31 important standing committees. Virtually all of these committees have from 12 to 24 members. This means that the average senator serves on from five to seven committees at the same time. Since most of the committee meetings are held during the morning hours, it is not uncommon for one senator to have three committee sessions proceeding simultaneously. Hence, many of the chairmen have difficulty in securing a quorum, even when important legislation is under discussion.

In the House, with its 435 members, this problem does not exist. But in the Senate it is a source of great annoyance to both committee chairmen and members. Obviously, the remedy is not more committees. A further division of committee functions would only scatter the energy of the Senate to a still greater extent.

One other serious objection arises to the creation of a special committee on veterans' affairs. The finance committee has laid down a number of important policies that would not be binding upon a new group. One of these is to appropriate a lump sum for veterans' hospitals when such institutions become necessary, and allow the Veterans' Administration to allocate the funds where they are most needed. This frustrates log-rolling politicians. Such policies ought not to be abandoned by turning this legislation over to a new group.

Under any circumstances veterans' legislation is largely a matter of finance. Extensive demands are being made upon the Government at a time when taxes must be raised and the public debt is rapidly increasing. The finance committee is inclined to be much more conservative than a special veterans' committee would be. Hope that a veterans' committee would be more lenient than a group that must also pass on tax legislation is the central reason why an effort is being made at this time to change the system.

It would be extremely unwise for the Senate to release any brakes which now keep veterans' legislation in check. Exorbitant demands are being made upon the Government in many forms. There need be no fear that Congress will fail to consider legitimate relief measures of this kind, but the watchdogs of the Treasury should not be called off in this hour of emergency.

ANTARCTIC STILL UNKNOWN.

"Though the South Pole has been reached thrice and the coastline skirted," says a recent bulletin of the National Geographic Society, "of the interior only the pie-shaped sector leading inland from the shore of the Ross Sea has been explored." Dozens of explorers have seen the Antarctic continent. Amundsen and Scott trudged to the pole and left vivid tales of their discoveries. Admiral Byrd with his full staff of geologists, aviators, meteorologists, and other scientific men, spent a winter and two summers in the Antarctic. Yet it remains the most mysterious land on the globe.

But science has by no means resigned the task of exposing Antarctic secrets. A fortnight ago Admiral Byrd made known that he plans another excursion into this vast unknown area, even though the scientific data from his last trip have not yet been correlated and made public. Still more interesting is the plan of H. G. Watkins, the young British explorer, to trek across the frozen continent with dog sledges next winter.

Watkins is the 24-year-old leader of the British air route expedition to Greenland last year. In his Antarctic venture he will be accompanied by many of the intrepid young men who braved Greenland's forbidding wastes. The Watkins party will first attempt to map a vast stretch of the unexplored coastline from Graham Land to Luitpold Land. Then the explorers will strike out across the vast unknown continent—a distance of 1,400 miles of entirely unknown country—using motor sledges and dog teams. Their objective will be to "secure for the British flag the honor of being the first carried across the South Polar continent." In the course of their journey, these young men will attempt to solve the old riddle of whether the Ross Sea connects with the Weddell Sea, thus dividing Antarctica into two large continental masses.

This is one of the boldest expeditions ever undertaken. Mountains of which nothing is known may impede or frustrate the explorers. Mr. Watkins admits that he may be forced to turn back by impassable obstacles. He plans to take food enough to last his party a year, so that it will be prepared for any emergency. But he hopes to negotiate the transcontinental trek within four months.

If this journey succeeds, it will reveal to civilization a narrow strip across a mighty continent. Vast stretches of unexplored country will remain as a challenge to the world's most adventurous spirits for many years to come.

PERPETUATING IDLENESS.

In view of the various measures destined to stimulate credit and enable industry to secure the credit facilities necessary to a resumption of activity that will add many thousands of openings for the unemployed, there is little excuse for the persistent efforts to secure legislation making Federal appropriations for direct personad aid. A sound exposition of the far-reaching evils of that form of relief was voiced over the radio by Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business. "There is a profound difference," he said, "in programs of unemployment relief which create employment, and those which merely support the unemployed in idleness."

Members of Congress who are striving to curtail Government expenditures, and who are seeking means to reduce the ever-growing number of bureaus and commissions requiring Federal funds, should be the first to realize that a Federal dole appropriation would necessarily create such an army of employes as no agency short of the Postoffice Department today requires. The distribution of Government relief money to States would result in such rivalries as have never been witnessed in the mere parceling out of offices and building improvements. The demand for more and more assistance would be insistent and endless, and would be considered the opening wedge for all kinds of socialistic insurance and unemployment funds which are but doles under other names.

The demoralizing effect of direct Federal relief would not be confined to the National Capital. It would penetrate to every State, municipality and lesser community. With the first announcement that the Government was going into the business of handing out funds to the unemployed there would be an immediate cessation of personal effort, a general disposition to let Uncle Sam do it. The twofold result would be calamitous. In addition to the suspension of private effort, which today, in the aggregate is much greater than any public fund possibly could be, the individual incentive and initiative of many of those who are unemployed to care for themselves would be greatly lessened. There is always a percentage of those out of work who would be content to remain in that condition indefinitely if they could count upon even their bare needs being supplied by the Government.

Mr. Thorpe painted a stirring word picture of what happened to Rome when the politicians, to ingratiate themselves, decreed reductions in the price of grain, vying with each other until grain was distributed free. This was followed by one concession after another, until the populace could live without working at all. Necessities and even amusements were provided free. Every one knows the result, but it is not necessary to go back 2,000 years to learn the evils of such a system, or even the first stages of it. Germany and England exhibit today the blighting effects of direct cash relief that maintains the unemployed in idleness. It is an un-American procedure and one that present-day conditions in the United States do not by any means warrant.

The motorist gets it on every hand. They tell him he can't park on the streets because they do not belong to car owners. Then they introduce a bill to make him pay for the streets.

A knife, a button and a safety pin were found in a butchered cow. Probably left there by some veterinarian after an operation.

A Utah court has ruled that machines must be used to lower the cost of public projects. This may be a good tip to Tammany Hall.

It is now proposed to "arrest" deflation. Probably the charge will be violation of economic law.

Congress always comes along with a sales tax when it is hard to sell anything.

THE FARM BOARD

From the Emporia Gazette.

In a Washington committee room a little knot of earnest seekers after truth gathered to hear the Federal Farm Board's report to Congress and to speculate as to why its perpetual motion machine, designed to raise the price of wheat above the world level, failed to work.

We Kansans have a real interest in that machine. It was our farm organizations who demanded that it be built. It was our congressional delegation which supervised its design, and hailed the finished product with delight.

It was our candidates for office in 1930 who begged, pleaded and threatened the Farm Board in an effort to get them to buy more wheat to prevent this major Kansas product from following the downward trend of all other raw commodities for the last two years.

The report disclosed that the Farm Board at one time owned almost 300,000,000 bushels of wheat—more than the entire American export surplus. It has succeeded in disposing of about a third of this amount, and still has almost 200,000,000 bushels in storage, hanging over the market and depressing the present price. It is costing taxpayers 18 cents per bushel per year to hold this grain in storage.

It is difficult to see how the average farmer has benefited one red cent by the operations of the board. Its members point with pride to the fact that cooperatives have doubled in membership. Naturally so, and why not? Only by joining cooperatives could the farmers secure Government loans against their wheat on the basis of a price above the world market.

The Farm Board was handed a lot of bad advice—not from the grain brokers, but from representatives of the producers. It was urged to boost the American price 20 cents a bushel above the world level last spring, with the result that wheat exports came to a halt last year, and Russia was able to sell to Europe millions of bushels of grain, replacing wheat which would otherwise have come from America. Kansas joined in urging this bad advice on the board. Kansas again joined the clamor last summer to force the board to hold its surplus from the market. As a result the board agreed to sell not more than 5,000,000 bushels of wheat per month, so that next June we will still have about 150,000,000 bushels of old crop hanging over the market to depress the price of the new one—to say nothing of the millions of tax dollars paid out in storage charges.

So here it is, gentlemen, our own perpetual motion machine. We suggested it, we designed it, and we had more to do with its actual operation than was good for us. Of course, it didn't work. But isn't it a dandy? Aren't we proud of ourselves?

The Neglected Key.

POST HASTE.

What might the Japs have done at Shanghai if they had felt called upon to "aggravate the situation!"

If the railroad wage question can be settled there is no further excuse for delaying the Millennium Special.

To the anemic nations standing around wishing for a shot in the arm it must be trying to see in how many ways preparations are being made to inject stimulants for the circulation of Uncle Sam's cash and credit.

The House tariff bill, first Democratic measure to take off in two months, crashed smack into the Constitution before getting a Senate wing.

Japan will find that repercussion from the bombardment of a city that had ignominously granted everything demanded of it will not come exclusively from Chinese sources.

As the present Geneva delegation will not have to reciprocate Mr. Shearer's social attentions, possibly it can worry along on $50,000 a month.

The New York Building Trades Employers' Association is rough and determined. Instead of having a nice, friendly conference on a 10 per cent cut like the railroads, it announces a definite 25 per cent wage reduction for May 1.

Even while reading tomorrow's news today it is difficult to keep up with Shanghai, thirteen hours ahead of Washington time.

The United States has a good case against Japanese methods, having effectively overcome a Chinese boycott in 1905 without bombarding Shanghai.

If there still remained any question of Mussolini's courage after his campaigns in peace and war, religion and education, it must be dispelled by his latest attempt to remold on ampler lines the fashion of the slender flapper figure.

There is danger when Japan hears how much the United States has increased its consumption of rayon that she will consider it a silk boycott.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE BATTLE OF BRIDGE.
(A long time after Robert Southey.)

It was a winter evening
In nineteen sixty-one,
Young Peterkin picked up a book
By Ely Culbertson
Which seemingly made much ado
About a forcing bid or two.

Old Kaspar took it from the lad
Who stood expectant by,
And on its pages smilingly
He cast his tender eye.
"'Tis one of many books," said he
"About that famous victory."

"Pray tell me what 'twas all about!"
Young Peterkin, he cries,
And others in the room looked up
With wonder waiting eyes.
"Yes, tell us about the war
And what they fought each other for."

"It was their systems," Kaspar said,
"They quarreled long about,
But what they proved by such a war
I never quite made out,
But everybody said," quoth he,
"That 'twas a famous victory.

"By some the Culbertson approach
Was better thought to be
Than that approved by Sidney Lenz—
The official one, two, three.
It seemed all ballyhoo to me—
But 'twas a famous victory!

"And everybody praised the team
Which this great fight did win."
"But what good came of it at last?"
Quoth little Peterkin.
"Why that I can not tell," said he,
"But 'twas a famous victory."

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: The easiest way to avoid trouble is to be prepared for it, and for that reason I want you to understand the pitfalls and dangers prepared for you by your well-meaning sisters of other days.

The present way of life seems normal to you because you have known no other. Only those who have lived through the period of change, and thus obtained the evidence required for comparison, can realize how much the revolution of women altered their lives and how completely the spirit of revolution still rules their conduct.

Under the old dispensation, the law frankly classed women with children and idiots. They were delicate and useless playthings or beasts of burden. In law and in fact, men were their masters. They were but one degree from the harem.

A few brave and intelligent women, desiring nothing more than justice, demanded and eventually obtained recognition of the fact that women are people.

Women were "emancipated." They were given the right to vote; the law recognized them as man's equal.

But the movement for freedom didn't end there. The momentum of a successful revolution always carries it beyond its goal. Newfound freedom is a heady wine. When a colt kicks free of its harness, it always runs away. The aftermath of every revolution is a period of excesses and follies—liberty running amuck to celebrate itself.

You hear prohibition blamed for feminine folly. Girls no longer are offended when their escorts get tipsy. Some of them share the liquor. Women serve liquor in their homes. But prohibition isn't responsible. Women didn't do such things in dry States before they were "emancipated."

It was new-found freedom that shortened skirts, discarded undergarments, cultivated the tobacco habit, learned to drink liquor, and made sex a topic of conversation in polite society.

It is a temporary condition. All enthusiasms and excesses are temporary. Only the normal can endure.

But while it continues you will be tempted by reckless speech and example to copy the "freedom" of men—not freedom to be good, but freedom to be bad.

Watch your step, my dear. There will be a reaction and a return to the old standards of decency. But the guilty can't return to innocence. When it is no longer smart to be vulgar and common, there will be no way to undo the past.

Brands on the heart burn deep, and they can't be removed when the fashions change. Love, DAD.

Al Smith a Hard Problem.

Bennington Banner.

Al Smith must be a troublesome individual for those Democrats who are not in sympathy with his policies. Although he has not yet announced what part he intends to play in the coming presidential election, Smith continues to be the most powerful influence in the Democratic party. His power is unassailable, partly because his Democratic opponents realize that they would be courting political disaster if they attempted to curb it. Every faction in the party will breathe easier when Smith makes some definite pronouncement, so Democrats will know just what they are up against. Sometimes is looks as though the Democrats would have a harder time bucking Al Smith than they would the Republican party.

Basis of Debt Considerations.

Minneapolis Journal.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, put his finger on the flaw in the link between reparations and war debts to the United States when he declared that the reason, if any, for suspension of payments to this country is to be found in the economic condition of the debtor governments. Capacity to pay is not predicated upon the situation in Germany, but on the situations in the debtor countries. Moreover, as Senator Reed said, the debts owing to the United States are for loans made before there were any reparations. The obligation created was based upon quid pro quo as between the two parties to the loan.

Asiatic Plungers.

Lorain Journal.

Japan's the only outfit in the world that has the nerve, just now, to go into the real estate game in a big way.

Ladies in Politics.

Chicago Tribune.

Senora Margarite Robles de Mendoza, Mexican feminist, visiting in Washington, says that women, politically, are in the awkward stage. They have not learned how to handle themselves. They are, she says, at a loss when the occasion requires poise, self-confidence and quick wits. It is improbable that Senora de Mendoza has looked over the scene as thoroughly as she should.

Male politicians have been reduced to inarticulate sputtering in trying to do anything to the eighteenth amendment, but a lady politician, Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, formerly a Government prosecutor, now attorney for the California grape industry, threw wine bricks through the Volstead act into the cellar of the modest American home. Al Smith, astute and popular male in politics, did not get away from home plate, but Mrs. Willebrandt took the Department of Justice in one stride and the Prohibition Bureau in another.

An Omen Discovered.

Daily Oklahoman.

Just 40 years ago the Democrats nominated a presidential candidate in Chicago and he was elected on November 8. This year the Democrats will again nominate a presidential candidate in Chicago and the autumn election will be November 8. All of which proves what it proves.

And Throw Pineapples.

Detroit News.

"African planters maintain companies of baboons who are trained to pick coconuts." That's nothing. Chicago has gorillas who make out income tax papers when compelled to.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Suggests Order of Spizzerinktums to Preserve Useful Buildings Against Destruction.

To the Editor of The Post, Sir—Why not form the Loyal Order of Spizzerinktums? Americans like to join to cooperate for some common good and what is so deserving of solicitude and effort as the preservation of historic and handsome buildings in Washington? The Capital has seen a large number of them razed in recent years, so that the city, although it is ancient as cities go in America, seems as stridently fresh as a city under fifty years of age.

The State, War and Navy buildings, the Postoffice building and the District building are impressive monuments of their eras and should stand out to represent their age to the future generations. If these solid and handsome structures are razed what succeeds them will stand as monuments to inexcusable vandalism and extravagance. Congress has fortunately stepped in to save the structures. There can be no immediate razing of them as proposed, because it is going to be many a year before the Federal Government will come across fat years so that it can feel it can recklessly destroy property for the mere joy of it. The ultimate safety of the structures named will lie in the lap of the chairmen of the appropriations committees.

Senator McKellar promises to push legislation making any alterations in the State War and Navy building impossible except by express vote of Congress, and this idea should be extended to cover the Postoffice building and the District building and perhaps some others. More power to him.

The Post has to be thanked for permitting citizens in its columns to expose the futility, the vandalism and the extravagance as proposed in relation to the buildings, especially the State, War and Navy building. An overwhelming sentiment against the destruction and alterations halted the proposal. And by way of gratitude there should be elected as life honorary members of the Spizzerinktum order Chairmen Byrnes and Jones of the appropriations committee and other members of Congress who have come forward to block the plans of the vandals.

SPIZZERINKTUM.

Thinks Five-Hour Workday Would Speed the Millenium.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many people commit the error of placing all the blame on the rich for the lamentably chaotic condition in which the world finds itself today. For the most part, both rich and poor pride themselves as possessors of "rugged individualism," a high-sounding phrase which the selfish employ to soften the impeachment of ignoble greed. And lust for wealth is at the bottom of most of the evils that afflict the world today.

Fear of want is the motivating agent that impels people to strive for more and more gold. And, strange to say, the rich are just as much subject to this fear as are the poor. The rich are fearful lest they lose what they already have. And they have good grounds for such fear, for through the operation of the existing industrial system many are rich today and poor tomorrow, while others are poor today and rich tomorrow. As things are now, life is but a gamble, and it shall remain so as long as the present planless, haphazard system of industry continues to be the accepted method whereby people must sustain life.

What people most desire is security in life's blessings, and this may be attained only by the establishment of a social order guaranteeing justice and opportunity for all, in which there shall be neither rich nor poor, but plenty for everybody. A five-hour workday, with every wheel turning, would be a good start toward such a consummation.

WILLIAM ANDREWS.

Thinks Consumptive Capacity of Nation, if Developed, Would Make Wage Cuts Unnecessary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of the seemingly concerted policy of commercial and industrial enterprises to propose wage and salary reductions, it would appear consistent with available statistical information that where the Nation consumes approximately 90 per cent of what it produces, the stabilizing of wages and salaries could be effected without the necessity of drastic reductions.

As the most able minds are endeavoring to study the situation for the purpose of avoiding any future periods of depression and unemployment, the question of exorbitant or excessive executive salaries should be considered.

In the approximate 10 per cent of production, to equalize the possibilities of consumption and the restoration of confidence that the new reconstructive measures should bring about, business should respond promptly. Appreciation of how fortunate our people are can only be brought out by comparison with the taxes of other nations.

WM. H. BASTION.

All Animals Should Be Protected Against Vivisection.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heartily agree with a letter in The Post of January 28, protesting against vivisection of dogs and only regret that the bill referred to is not extended to protecting all domestic pets and animals against this frightful form of cruelty.

In England a widespread movement is under way to abolish vivisection entirely by pointing out its futility as well as its cruelty. I am glad the United States is joining in this movement. CONSTANCE BROWN.

Bradley to Quit G.O.P. Job for Customs Post

(Associated Press.)

Fred A. Bradley has informed the Senate finance committee that he will not be a candidate in April for reelection as Republican county chairman if he is confirmed by the Senate for reappointment as customs collector at Buffalo.

A finance subcommittee Thursday voted, 2 to 1, against confirmation of Mr. Bradley when he sent word he would not resign his political post. The full committee met yesterday, but no action was taken on the nomination.

BOXES and bundles of letters, telegrams, postcards, affidavits, copies of programs—numbering 1,065,500 pieces—from every section of the country are to be sold as "useless papers" by the Federal Radio Commission. Letters and requests addressed to the commission by individuals were answered and filed, but it is doubtuful if the contents of several of the boxes and bundles ever had more than a cursory glance.

Representing one of the most talked-of hearings the Radio Commission ever held is a huge wooden box containing 97,000 affidavits and letters introduced by W. K. Henderson in his efforts to establish "public interest, convenience or necessity" for Station KWKH. However, the largest single collection was 160,000 letters and cards written by listeners in behalf of Station WHT, Cleveland.

Other papers to be destroyed included 75,000 affidavits and letters for WWVA, 1,500 affidavits and letters for KTNT, 11,000 affidavits and letters for WPCC, 20,000 affidavits and letters for KGEF, 35,000 letters and cards, in addition to the box containing 97,000 pieces for KWKH; 500 copies of programs for WHT, 30,000 letters for WGY, 410,000 affidavits for WAIU, 25,000 affidavits for WWL, 5,000 cards for WNBA, 25,000 letters for WSAI and 146,000 letters, telegrams and postcards referring to miscellaneous stations.

THE fact does not set well with listeners that frequently all they are doing in complaining to the Radio Commission is furnishing more "useless paper."

There is an impression also that letters written to radio stations and networks receive scant attention. The result is that listeners more and more express the desire of knowing where to complain where it may really do some good.

Legislators have concerned themselves with other phases of radio regulation, but Senator Couzens, of Michigan, and Representative Ewin Davis, of Tennessee, are the first to take notice of complaints against the character of programs.

It seems strange more listeners do not take the short cut suggested by Capt. Stanford C. Hooper, U. S. N. Speaking as a listener and unofficially, Capt. Hooper advised complainants to write direct to the advertiser, the man who is putting out his money for good will. He maintains this man would want to know most of all whether his program pleases and whether he is getting the good will he is supposed to be paying for.

The second act of "Die Walkure," the second of the four operas forming Richard Wagner's great series of music-dramas, "Der Ring des Nibelungen," will be broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera House this afternoon (WRC, 3:15 p. m.). The young Swedish soprano, Goeta Ljungberg, who recently made her American debut singing Sieglinde in "Die Walkure," will sing the role of Bruennhilde today. This is her first time on the air since she has been in this country.

The role of Siegmund will be sung today by Lauritz Melchoir, tenor; Sieglinde, Gertrude Kappel, soprano; Hunding, Siegfried Tappolet, basso; Wotan, Michael Bohnen, basso, and Fricka, Karin Branzell, contralto. Artur Bodansky will conduct.

THE six-week-old project of A. Atwater Kent for the relief of his former employes in need is now aiding more than 3,500 persons in Philadelphia. The plan benefits former employes who were in the service of Atwater Kent after December 1, 1929, and who, altogether, served one year, either before or after that date.

In addition to the relief work, the company last week took back to the factory payroll more than 150 former employes who were out of jobs and in need, as factory production was stepped up. These reinstated workers and their families will continue to receive relief from the foundation until their first pay day.

Where need for relief is established, Mr Kent sends orders for goods, milk and fuel.

Commissioner Luther Reichelderfer and D. E. Replogle, vice president of the Jenkins Television Corporation, will formally open the new WMAL television station, W2XAP, next Saturday night. The station will be on the air with television for three hours, beginning at 8 o'clock. A full hour of the inaugural program will be broadcast by WMAL from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m.

Television receivers will be installed in the Mayflower, Shoreham and Wardman Park Hotels and in the studios of WMAL for the guests to watch actual reception. Special invitations are being issued for the opening night. The station will be open to the public after February 14.

RADIO'S largest client during 1932 will be the American Tobacco Co. Lucky Strike and Cremo programs. American Tobacco will spend more than $5,000,000 on these two offerings alone during the current year, according to Variety.

"The original $2,000,000 appropriated to Luckies' radio budget has been increased to more than $3,000,000," Variety continues. "Luckies alone is the most expensive account on the air. Each international hookup, if effected via short wavelength, costs about $1,500.

"If it is done via wire, as is necessary from Cuba, where they have no powerful short-wave sending station, it amounts to about $5,000 per hookup. For the Cremo broadcasts American Tobacco has appropriated about $1,700,000 for the year."

HIS HOLINESS POPE PIUS XI will bless radio listeners of America in an international broadcast from St. Peter's Cathedral, transmitted through Station HVJ, Vatican City, over combined networks of the National Broadcasting Co. Sunday, February 14, at 6 a. m. The occasion will be the first Sunday in Lent. The Sistine Choir also will take part.

The first act of Von Flotow's opera, "Martha," will be presented from the stage of the Chicago Civic Opera Co. (WJZ network, 9 o'clock tonight). The program concludes the series for this season. It also ends the fifth consecutive year of Chicago operatic broadcasts over NBC networks.

Tito Schipa, tenor, and Leola Turner, soprano, will take the roles of Lionel and Harriet.

Emily Goldenberg, mezzo-soprano, will sing a special program over WMAL tonight at 6 o'clock. Her program includes "My Lover Is a Fisherman" (Strickland), "Seligkeit" and "Der Neugierige," by Schubert, and "Love's Old Sweet Song."

ALEXANDER GRAY, barytone in "Music That Satisfies," stands 5 feet 10 inches, weighs 165 pounds and is of Scottish-American ancestry. His full name is Alexander Pringle Gray, the seventh consecutive one in his family to bear that moniker. It is a traditional christening for the first-born sons.

Jane Interprets the Mode

'MEMBER I told you earlier in the week about the popularity of combination dresses? Well, I had so many requests for one that Mrs. Average Woman could make or have made, and wear, that I just had to design one and sketch it for you today!

The dress itself is most flattering and practical and could be very easily made. One would make it in a heavy crepe, in black or navy, dark blue or dark red or brown or green. And one would spend more time and money on the sleeves and the tiny matching parts which go in the front of the dress than on the dress itself! Because the sleeves are all the chic of the dress, and, by having two or three different sets of sleeves on guimps, one has two or three truly elegant and expensive dresses!

Of course, one must have this dress and these sleeves made so that there isn't the slightest suspicion that they are designed for variety. The dress itself must be perfect, finished as though for short sleeves and the long decorative sleeves be on well-fitting guimps.

In fact, if you need a dress suitable for dinners and informal evening affairs, to have it made in taffeta or moire gives you a lovely short-sleeved dinner dress without any sleeves at all—and then you have one or two extra and very expensive sleeve sets and have three dinner dresses instead of one!

'Nif you are the least bit skeptical, let me tell you that La Chic Secretaire has such a dress, and though it originally had but one sleeve idea, it was by ripping these out and putting them on a guimp, finishing the short sleeves and then making two more decorative sleeve sets that La Chic Secretaire materially increased her wardrobe of dinner dresses—and gave us a big idea to experiment with and pass on to our deah readers!

* * * *

And when I ups and made Sister Dionne a dress like the one sketched, on a design of my own, but incorporating the several sleeves idea, I'm here to tell you that I think I am so-o-o-o-o smart because I made the entire dress out of 2½ yards of 40-inch material—and she weighing 170! And it being a long dress to the ankles, too, for dinners, and she being 5 feet 9 inches tall in shoes! 'N' when I tell you that there were only threads of the material left over, not even a scrap, you'll believe me—but when I tell you that the dress is a dream for fit and elegance you'll have to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for the leaflet which tells you how to make it to see for yourself.

As to the variety of sleeves, you have suggestions in this leaflet, but the gist of the leaflet is how to make the dress itself, easily and well, with guaranteed results. Then you make the dress, you see, and choose about three sets of sleeves—voila! You have four dresses instead of one and all lovely ones! Better send for that leaflet!

* * * *

And then with that nice 14-inch long and 2-inch wide braid she had a 1-inch thick and 28-inch long switch made! This fastens right in the center, of course, and each side braids into a nice flat sleek braid—which she wraps corona fashion around her head in a way that holds down all of the bobbed ends so that no one would ever dream that her beautiful hair was cut at all.

Voila! All of the comfort and easy-to-take-careableness of short hair, and all of the elegance and individuality of long hair with a very unusual and charming coiffure!

* * * *

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE PLAY OF THE DUMMY.

THERE is no word heard more frequently at the Contract table than the word "if." "If I had done this" or "if you had done that" are the starting points of many a heated post-mortem. These post-mortems are both interesting and instructive when intelligent, but the master player should so play his cards as to eliminate all postmortems on the play except the laudatory "Well played, partner."

This hand, played in a recent national championship contest by Mr. Barney Foster, of Chicago, merited that encomium.

North—Dealer.

The Bidding.

North	East	South	West
1NT	Pass	2♡	Pass
3♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

West had the opening from a peculiarly difficult hand and elected to make the deceptive lead of the Queen of Clubs. As almost every player would do, Mr. Foster read this as showing the Ace in the East hand and refused to play the King. This was sound play. West next followed with the Ace of Clubs which Mr. Foster trumped. Ordinary procedure in the handling of this hand would be to discard a losing spade on the established King of Clubs and then leave the fate of the declaration to the favorable location of the diamond King. Mr. Foster, however, adopted much more accurate methods. After winning the second trick, he led a small spade to the Dummy and followed with the King of Clubs upon which he discarded his loser in the spade suit. When West played a low club it was apparent that the club suit would break 4-4. Therefore, a small club was led and trumped in the closed hand. The next lead was a spade which was taken in the Dummy and Dummy's last spade led and trumped by the Declarer. Now Mr. Foster led a small diamond which was won with Dummy's Ace and a small diamond returned. He thus lost one club and two diamond tricks, but eliminated entirely the possibility of losing a trump trick, as it did not matter from which side the trump was led, nor where the Queen was located. By careful planning the luck of the finesse or the chance of an uneven break in the suit had been eliminated.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:50 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2:15 p. m. to 3:35 p. m. and from 8:45 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:45 a. m. and from 6:20 p. m. to 7:50 p. m.

The astrological signs of January 30 denote unusually good influences for health and freedom or relief from illness may be expected. All those who wield the pen will have a good day before them. Not a fortunate time for lovers, and true affection may be thrown away for a passing infatuation.

The child born on this January 30 will have a winsome, warm and an affectionate nature. It will be anxious to please, and will be very sensitive to rebukes or criticisms. It will be a thorough, but not a brilliant, student, and will take special interest in English and literature.

Born January 30, you have the tenacity and ear marks of a plodder and "safety first" person, and few of the attributes of a daring "go-getter" or "inevitable" man or woman. You do not have sufficient faith in yourself to gamble against the world's indifference. A comfortable, secure niche in life is what you are seeking; some place where you can carry on in a routine way work not requiring too much originality. You may be always depended upon to do your best, and to carry out instructions to the letter. Punctuality is a marked characteristic, as are also thoroughness and neatness. Swiftness is not in your line, but you gain speed by doing things right the first time.

You are studious, and will always be a great reader. You are a far better informed person than your general conversation would indicate. You seldom take the lead and you fall back too much on monosyllables to be an enlightening talker. You are not a natural money-maker, but you know how money talks and are an intelligent spender. Your tastes run to good and substantial things.

You will love with a slave-like devotion and will allow yourself to be greatly influenced—for or against your ultimate good—by the person to whom you are ready to give your untiring affections.

Successful people born on January 30:

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor of New York.

Frank (Gelett) Burgess, author.

George Herbert Fairclough, organist.

Ida Cogswell Bailly, lecturer.

Walter Damrosch, musical conductor.

Joseph Jastrow, psychologist.

Mrs. Slade Named As Y. W. C. A. Head

Other Officers Chosen by Organization at Its Annual Meeting.

Mrs. William Adams Slade, former general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., was elected president of the association yesterday and will head the new board of directors for the coming year. Mrs. William Hamilton Bayly, former president of the Washington Y. W. C. A. is honorary president.

Other officers were elected as follows: Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, first vice president; Mrs. Luke I. Wilson, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Lansing, corresponding secretary. Miss Louise Davidson was elected recording secretary and Miss Margaret Fox, treasurer, of the organization since 1911, was unanimously re elected.

100 Students Hit by Influenza.

Minneapolis, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—More than 100 University of Minnesota students are confined to the campus infirmary by influenza, its director said today. Some other students were ill also, but none was in serious condition and no immediate curtailment of classes was planned.

Rifle Association Selects Leaders

Work of National Group Defended at Annual Meeting Here.

Brig. Gen. G. A. Fraser, adjutant general of North Dakota, was elected president of the National Rifle Association yesterday at the annual meeting held at the Mayflower Hotel.

Maj. Gen. F. C. Ainsworth, U. S. A., retired, of Washington, was reelected first vice president; Karl T. Frederick, New Yrok, second vice president and Gustavus D. Pope, of Detroit, third vice president. Brig. Gen. M. A. Reckford, of Baltimore, was reelected executive vice president, and C. B. Lister, of Washington, secretary and treasurer.

Speaking at the dinner last night Mr. Lister said, "It was the N. R. A. that taught the services to shoot 25 years ago but there is a tendency now to consider the association as interlopers and parasites."

Dublin Recalls Police Pay Cut.

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The Free State government yielded to protests today and decided not to enforce a 5 per cent cut in the pay of policemen, which was to have been effective on February 1. The policemen's representative organization recently resigned after refusing to participate in a peace parley with government representatives.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me about the white worms which are in the soil in two of the pots of my house plants. These same plants are also troubled with white flies. What must I do to rid the plants of these pests?

ANNIE L. H.

These white, harmless - looking creatures are very different from the ordinary earthworms which crawl about the garden in summer. These worms eventually emerge into the air in the form of small flies called fungous gnats. They may be killed by watering the soil with lime water. This can easily be made by slacking a piece of quicklime, the size of a small teacup, in two gallons of water. Use only the clear liquid which is left after the lime has finished sputtering and the milky liquid has settled.

Why do my primroses flower so poorly and why are the flowers that do open so pale? This year I have them in a north window; last year I had them in a window facing the south. They have had the same amount of water and heat each season.

MABELLE M. L.

All flowers are more intensely colored when grown in full sun, such as they receive in a south window. In a north window they rarely do well. The flowers that may develop are sure to be pale in color.

Please tell me whether the calla requires a rich soil; also tell me of a good variety of calla. I have never been successful with these plants.

MRS. JOHN S.

The calla (Zantedeschia aethiopica) prefers a rich soil and is benefited while growing by a dressing of well-decayed manure. The Godfrey, because of its free-flowering propensities, is the best sort to grow.

My narcissus bulbs, which have been growing in pebbles in water, are now about through blooming. What treatment must I give them to insure the same beautiful blossoms next season as they had this year?

MRS. JEROME T.

Narcissus bulbs which have been grown in water are of no further use. Better discard them, as they will never flower again.

I have six pots of tulips buried in ashes in my coldframe. Is this the time to lift the pots and bring them into the house? I want to have them in bloom for a luncheon I mean to give in March. MRS. CLYDE McC.

Yes. Water sparingly until growth is established; then water generously.

I have a large Christmas cactus which has been most beautiful for weeks, now it has about finished flowering. After all the buds have opened, may I place it in a north window? I want the space it now occupies for some hyacinths.

HELEN F. T.

Yes. The plant will be entering its rest period and the lack of sun will benefit it.

I have a yellow genista which is just coming into flower. I have had it in a cool upstairs window facing the south. I have watered it only every other day. Can I now carry it to my living room, which is very sunny? Also, when it is in a warmer, sunnier place should it be watered every day?

MRS. WILLIAM F.

Bring it to a warmer place at once and begin to water it daily.

COLDS
must be driven out from within

The cold germ is not an ordinary germ but an invisible ultravirus. Science knows that it is a poisonous infection that gets into the system and multiplies rapidly—often causing other serious ills.

Internal infection must be destroyed and expelled from within.

CITY-WIDE NOVENA BEGINS WEDNESDAY

Fr. Coffey to Preach Daily at Church of Immaculate Conception.

A city-wide novena to Our Lady of Lourdes will begin on Wednesday and end on the feast of Our Lady of Lourdes, February 11, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

This novena will be preached by the Rev. Thomas J. Coffey of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, a noted preacher of that order. There will be two novena services daily in the church, the first at the 12:15 noon mass and the second at a 7:45 service in the evening.

Father Coffey will preach at both of these services daily. Veneration of, and blessing with, the relic of Bernadette Soubirous, will take place after all services.

In the National Capital Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the church, a replica of the famous original French shrine, the daily noon mass will be celebrated.

On Sunday, February 7, Father Coffey's sermon at the 5 o'clock service will be broadcast from the church over Station WOL by courtesy of the Washington Catholic Radio Hour.

An innovation will be introduced in the Lenten course, in which a five-minute sermon will be delivered after the 12:15 noon week-day masses, thus enabling many of the office workers of the city to attend. The Rev. Joseph V. Buckley, pastor of Saint Francis Xavier parish, will preach the week of February 15. The Very Rev. Justin McManus, O. P., prior of the Dominican House of Studies, will speak for the week of February 22. The Rev. Charles A. Hart, member of the Catholic University faculty, the week of March 7. He will be followed by the Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh, pastor of Assumption parish.

Catholic Radio Hour.

"Christ the Citizen" is the subject of Father Ignatius Smith's concluding sermon on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour tomorrow afternoon which will be broadcast at 5 o'clock from the Church of the Immaculate Conception through Station WOL.

Father Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the church and director of the hour, will preside at the service which includes the procession of the blessing of the sick at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the church.

Miss Florence Yocum, soprano, and Miss Ann Arlen, violinist, will be artists. Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard, organist, will direct the Boys' Sanctuary Choir in a group of selected hymns.

Wise Will Address Auxiliary Tuesday

Diocesan Group's Monthly Meeting to Be Held at St. Mark's Church.

Mrs. Hull T. Estabrook, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, is completing plans for the monthly meeting of the auxiliary of the diocese to be held in that church on Tuesday.

The Rev. Hulbert A. Woodfall will celebrate the Holy Communion and preach at 10 a. m., after which the meeting will gather in nine separate groups for the annual officers' conferences.

During the luncheon recess, Capt. George F. Wise, of the Church Army in the United States, will address the meeting on the missionary work sponsored by that organization.

At the business session, beginning at 8 o'clock, plans for cooperation with the interparochial committee on unemployment, recently formed at the call of the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, will be discussed. Speakers in the afternoon will include Miss Sallie Deane, of Richmond, Va., member of the national board of the auxiliary, and Mrs. Grafton Burke, who will tell of the work at the Hudson Stuck Memorial Hospital at Fort Yukon, Alaska.

Church Will Install Sunday School Officers

In the evening worship hour tomorrow at Concordia Lutheran Church the newly elected officers of the Bible school will be installed by the pastor and special recognition will be given to the members of the teacher training class who have completed the first year's work. Dr. J. S. Noffsinger will be the speaker in this service.

The officers of the Bible school are A. N. Schroeder, superintendent; Otto Volmerhaus, assistant superintendent; Mrs. Fred Robeson, recording secretary; Harry Parker, financial secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Parker, treasurer; Mrs. Fred Graebner, pianist; William Steiner, periodical secretary; Miss Ann Tresselt, birthday secretary; Miss Josephine Escherich, superintendent of the children's division; Miss Hilda Huefe, superintendent of the home department; Mrs. Adele Cheek, superintendent of the cradle roll.

Secretary of Missions At Covenant Tomorrow

Dr. Robert E. Speer, secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian board, will speak at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning at the 11 o'clock service. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock Dr. Speer will address the Presbytery of the City of Washington in the church.

This meeting will be in charge of Dr. Frank S. Niles, of the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, assisted by the moderator of the presbytery, the Rev. Godfrey Chobat.

Dr. Stockdale to Read "The Happy Prince"

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, minister of the First Congregational Church, will give a dramatic reading, entitled "The Happy Prince," at the evening hour's worship tomorrow.

Paul De Long Gable will accompany him on the organ.

"Fugitives of Fate" Volunteer Sermon Topic

"Fugitives of Fate" will be the subject of the sermon Capt. Arthur E. Wise will preach tomorrow afternoon at services of the Volunteers of America held in their Relief Mission at 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Lieut. Junia Ingram will assist Capt. Wise to conduct the services and will lead the musical program.

Arms Conference Sermon Tomorrow

Bishops McDowell and Freeman to Speak at Services.

In view of the approaching World Conference on Disarmament at Geneva a special service of intercession will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. This has been called by the committee on international good will of the Washington Federation of Churches. Its chairman, Dr. J. R. Sizoo, will preside, and the only address of the occasion will be delivered by Bishop William F. McDowell, the president of the federation.

Other clergymen who will participate are: Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, of Foundry Methodist; Dr. W. S. Abernethy, of Calvary Baptist; Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, of First Congregational; Dr. Harvey Baker Smith, of Columbia Heights Disciples, and Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, of Luther Place Memorial Church. A suitable resolution bearing upon the conference will be presented for action.

A similar service will be held at the same hour in Bethlehem Chapel of the Episcopal Cathedral, where Bishop James E. Freeman will preach an appropriate sermon. This will also be under the auspices of the federation, as Bishop Freeman is a member of the committee. It is intended that both services shall be distinctively religious, emphasizing the spiritual values for humanity, which are at stake in the Geneva conference. The public is invited to attend whichever service may be more convenient.

Rev. Clinchy to Discuss Encyclical of Pope

An answer of a liberal Protestant minister in Washington to the recent invitation extended by Pope Pius to all Christians to unite by joining with the Roman Catholic Church will be given tomorrow morning by the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, minister of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Hotel Will Be Scene Of Stewardship Clinic

LENT'S SIGNIFICANCE WILL BE BROADCAST

Nation-Wide Radio Hookup for Freeman Sermon on Ash Wednesday.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman will preach on "The National Significance of Lent" at 11 o'clock service on Ash Wednesday morning, February 10, in the Bethlehem Chapel of Washing Cathedral, and his sermon will be broadcast to a Nation-wide radio audience. The broadcast, which will be over the entire network of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., will be from 11:30 a. m. to 12 noon, and will mark the third consecutive broadcasting of the Cathedral's Ash Wednesday morning service.

Other services at the Cathedral on Ash Wednesday will be the celebration of the Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m., morning prayer and litany at 10 a. m., and the people's evensong at 4 p. m.

A series of Lenten services have been arranged at the Cathedral on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays in special observance of the Lenten season. On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays the addresses will be made by members of the Cathedral clergy staff; at the Wednesday services clergymen from the diocese of Washington will speak.

Besides the Lenten services, the fourth annual series of six week-end laymen's conferences will be held at the College of Preachers, which will be attended by Episcopalian laymen from Washington and nearby cities. At each week-end conference, which will last from Friday afternoon to Sunday evening, approximately 20 laymen will be in attendance, staying at the college as guests.

The leaders of the laymen's conferences will be Dr. William C. Sturgis, lecturer at the College of Preachers; Spencer Miller, jr., of South Orange, N. J., well-known sociologist; the Rev. Dr. R. K. Yerkes, professor at the Philadelphia Divinity School; the Rev. Charles Townsend, of Providence, R. I., and the Rev. Dr. Leicester Lewis, chaplain of the Episcopal Academy, Overbrook, Pa.

Mission Conclave Begins Tomorrow

Dr. Brockman, New York, to Preach at Mount Vernon Church.

Dr. Fletcher S. Brockman, of New York City, will occupy the pulpit at Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South, Massachusetts avenue at Ninth street northwest, as the great missionary conference opens tomorrow. At the evening service Mrs. W. G. Cram will be the speaker. Dr. Brockman has had a long and successful experience in the foreign field, and Mrs. Cram has also contributed greatly to the spread of the Gospel as a missionary to Korea.

The conference will be participated in by all churches of the Southern Methodist denomination in Washington, Alexandria and vicinity, and to which all others interested are invited, extends through Friday. Beginning at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and continuing each evening at 7, there will be classes in missions as follows: "Home Missions," taught by Dr. J. W. Perry, of Nashville, Tenn.; "The Bible and Missions," by Dr. Elmer T. Clark, also of Nashville, and "Korea—Land of the Dawn," by Mrs. Cram. Following tomorrow afternoon's session of the classes, there will be a missionary rally at 4 o'clock, with Dr. Brockman, Bishop McMurry, of Louisville, and Dr. Perry as speakers.

Each evening during the week at 8 o'clock there will be public addresses as follows: Monday, Dr. Brockman; Tuesday, Bishop McMurry; Wednesday, Dr. Brockman; Thursday (woman's rally), Mrs. J. W. Perry, president of the woman's council; Friday, Dr. J. W. Perry. The first ten minutes of the 8 o'clock hour each evening will be given to questions and answers.

Dr. Arthur Jennings Jackson, of American University, will preach at Eldbrooke Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow at 11 a. m.

At 8 p. m. a series of special meetings will begin under the direction of Glenn W. Wagner, assisted by Roy Abbott, director of music and Theodore Shaw, pianist. These meetings will be held each evening, except Saturday, beginning at 7:30. The Sunday services will begin at 8 p. m.

A special choir has been organized for these services and special numbers will be rendered each evening.

Vaughn Class to Hear Senator.

Senator Arthur Mills Logan, of Kentucky, is to give a timely message to the Vaughn Class of men at Calvary Baptist Church tomorrow morning. Senator Logan is a member of the Vaughn Class and has been attending Sunday school for 30 years.

Representative Browning to Speak.

Representative Gordon Browning, of Tennessee, will address the Harrison Bible Class, of Congress Street Methodist Church, tomorrow morning. His subject will be "Jesus Feeds the Multitude." H. E. A. Gutshall will teach the class.

WILL SPEAK

A dinner conference of Presbyterian ministers and elders will be held at Eckington Presbyterian Church Monday evening at 6 o'clock to hear Dr. Herman C. Webber, of New York City. In the group also will be the chairman of the every member canvass of the numerous churches in Washington Presbytery. Dr. Webber is a noted pastor, an author and a pleasing public speaker. In recent years he has specialized in church statistics, from which he draws a vitalizing interpretation.

CHURCH TO OBSERVE 130TH ANNIVERSARY

First Baptist, Organized in 1802 With 5 Members, Plans Program.

Completed plans and program for the 130th anniversary of the founding of the First Baptist Church, Sixteenth and O streets, which was organized in the year 1802 with five members, one a woman, are announced. The celebration will start on Sunday, February 21, with exercises at 11 o'clock in the morning and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and continue on each Sunday through March 20. There will be appropriate programs dealing with various phases and periods of the church's history also on the intervening Thursday evenings.

Prominent speakers of the Baptist denomination will participate in the celebration. Greetings will be brought from other evangelical churches. Typical scenes in the history of the church will be depicted in tableau form. The "music of other days," including the Scandinavian, will be sung. The other churches of the city will be represented. One program will be devoted to the work of the Sunday school, and another to the B. Y. P. U.

Washington's birthday and the bicentennial will form the inspiring background for the program on the opening Sunday, February 21, and also on the following Sunday. At the initial service Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, will speak on "Virginia and Religious Liberty," and in the afternoon Bishop William F. McDowell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will deliver an address on "The Spirit of Christ in the Life of the Republic." On the following Sunday morning, the Rev. Samuel Judson Porter, pastor of the church, will speak on "The Religious Undertone in the Life of George Washington."

To "the mother church of the 113 white and colored Baptist churches within the District of Columbia," greetings will be brought, both by the white and the colored churches. On Sunday afternoon, March 6, there will be a roll call of the 86 colored Baptist churches in Washington, and an address on "The Growth of Baptist Principles Among the Colored People of Washington," by the Rev. Walter H. Brooks, pastor of the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church.

Various phases of the church's activities during the past 130 years in promoting religious, educational and institutional agencies and in quickening missionary endeavor, will be treated at other meetings. One of the prominent speakers will be the Rev. W. J. McGlothlin, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, who will be here on Sunday, March 20, and in the morning will speak on "The Institutions Whose Founding Is Traceable to Members of the First Baptist Church of Washington," and at the afternoon service he will address the young people's gathering on "The Baptist Leadership of the Future."

Revivals to Continue At Wesley Zion Church

A revival meeting will begin at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church tomorrow and will continue throughout February. The Rev. W. Frederick Fisher, of Evanston, Ill., with a party of three musicians, will have charge of the service.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Henry D. Tillman, has made elaborate preparations for this revival.

Takoma Park Baptists To Hear About Mexico

Instead of the usual preaching service tomorrow evening at Takoma Park Baptist Church, an illustrated lecture on Mexico and South America will be given.

During February all of the evening services will emphasize some feature of the life of Gen. Washington.

Happiness of Church Dr. Rasmussen's Topic

Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, minister of Luther Place Memorial Church, will preach the third in a series of "Happiness Sermons" tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, when his theme will be "What Makes a Church Happy?"

The Rev. Frank H. Clutz, the assistant minister, will lead the discussion of the Senior Christian Endeavor Society in the evening before the regular worship hour.

Many Conversions at Services.

The evangelistic services being conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Harry L. Collier, at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets, every Sunday night are attracting capacity audiences, and many conversions are reported.

CITY ENDEAVORERS MEET NEXT MONTH

District Convention Will Be Held in National City Christian Church.

The District of Columbia Christian Endeavor Convention takes place February 18, 19, and 20 at the National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle.

Howard W. Ferrin, president of the Providence Bible Institute, will be the chief speaker. Mr. Ferrin is known throughout New England through the radio broadcasting chain of the Yankee network. He has addressed youth gatherings in and out of Boston numbering in the thousands, and Christian Endeavorers and youth of other churches of Washington will be privileged to hear this young man speak at 7:30 o'clock each night of the mass meetings.

On February 19 and 20, from 5:15 o'clock and leading up until the opening of the mass meetings at 7:30, classes will be held by leading ministers and religious workers of the city, and a wide range of subjects will be presented to the public. These classes will be given at the Vermont Avenue Christian Church and the annexes adjoining.

Mr. Ferrin will present a course in "Romans." A convention supper will be given from 6 to 6:30 at the Vermont Avenue Christian Church. This will take place between the class periods on Friday and Saturday.

A preconvention devotional service will be held Monday, February 8, at the Eckington Presbyterian Church, North Capitol and Q streets, at 8 o'clock. This service will be led in devotions by the Rev. C. E. Hawthorne, pastor of the Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church. The teachers at the convention will be present. The song service will be led by the convention song leader. Everyone is asked to attend this service.

Sermons on Washington At Georgetown Church

Beginning tomorrow morning and continuing through February, the Rev. Frank S. Niles, minister of Georgetown Presbyterian Church, will preach a series of story-sermons to children based on incidents in the life of Gen. Washington.

The subject tomorrow is "George Washington and the Little Elm Tree."

As a memorial to the late Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, for many years minister of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Miss Alsa Louise Raner, violinist, will give a special program of solos at the morning worship hour at Georgetown Presbyterian Church tomorrow. As prelude she will play "Andante," by Nardini, and "Romance," by Wieniawski. For the offertory number she will play "Adagio," by Ries. For the postlude she will play "Preislied," by Wagner.

Lutheran Church Teachers to Meet

Institute Will Hold Session Next Friday; Prominent Pastors to Speak.

There are 20 Lutheran Sunday schools in or near the City of Washington. All teachers and officers of these schools will meet next Friday evening in the twenty-sixth annual Lutheran Sunday School Institute. Sessions will be held from 5 p. m. until 9 p. m., in the Church of the Reformation, at Second and B streets southeast, Dr. John Weidley, pastor. The public is invited to the evening service, which begins at 8 o'clock.

The speakers at this institute will be the Rev. F. H. Chitz, of the Luther Place Church, and Dr. Lewis C. Manges, of Harrisburg, Pa.

Group conferences will be conducted by the following workers: Mrs. N. K. Gardner, Miss Grace Brame, Miss Martha Folk, the Rev. E. H. Meuser, Mrs. H. E. Beatty, the Rev. Charles Enders, Miss Frances Dysinger and Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen.

Dr. Sizoo to Lecture On Jonathan Edwards

Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, tomorrow evening will resume his Sunday evening studies on the religious leaders of colonial life. His theme will be "Jonathan Edwards, Puritan."

On Tuesday evening Dr. Sizoo will deliver a lecture with stereopticon slides and motion pictures at the Y. W. C. A. Auditorium at 8:15 o'clock. He will describe some interesting visits made during his journey through Germany, Hungary, Austria and Czechoslovakia.

Dr. Freeman to Attend St. Andrew's Reception

Bishop Freeman will be present at the informal reception which will be given Thursday evening by St. Andrews' Parish to their rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder, and his wife.

The Rectors Aid Society of St. Andrews is sponsoring a card party at the Roosevelt Hotel on Friday, February 5, at 8 p. m. The patronesses are Mrs. W. J. Harris, wife of Senator Harris; Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, Mrs. St. Pierre Gaillard, Mrs. David de Bose Gaillard and Mrs. Wilder. A large group have signified their intention to be present.

Central Presbyterians Plan Praise Service

At the evening hour of worship tomorrow at the Central Presbyterian Church the annual foreign mission praise service will be held. The Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley, of the Presbytery of the Potomac, will make the address. The Central Church has representatives in Brazil, China and Mexico who have gone out from this congregation: Miss Lucy Steele at Varginha, Minas, Brazil; Miss Katheryne Thompson at Kiangyin-Ku, China, and Dr. and Mrs. William Hollister at Kunsan, Korea.

Dr. Perkins Attends Retreat.

Dr. Frederick W. Perkins attended the thirtieth annual retreat of Universalist ministers at the Wayside Inn, South Sudbury, Mass., from January 24 to 27. He spent the remainder of the week in Boston.

MEMBERSHIP DUES URGED FOR CHURCH

Budget Method Practices in Denver Studied by Mount Pleasant Council.

A unique method of raising a church budget is being considered by the Church Council of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. The proposition was made at the annual business meeting of the church, when it was suggested that a scale of annual membership dues be arranged, similar to the system used by secular organizations, the dues to be paid monthly or semiannually, according to the desire of the member.

Such a system is in successful operation in a number of Western churches, it was said, one large church in Denver raising its entire budget by that method. There is said to be no record of any Eastern church using the system, and the proposal was referred to the Mount Pleasant Church Council for consideration.

Believing that in 1932 there will be a greater need than ever for the kind of Christian social service provided by their program for the year, the members of Mount Pleasant Church determined in their business meeting that there should be no retrenchment in their activities during the next twelve months. There will be expansion in the programs of most of the church organizations, especially the relief commission, on which the demands are increasing each week.

Reports were received at the annual meeting from church officers and the heads of twelve active organizations. According to the report of the church clerk there were 1,070 members on January 1, and the following officers were elected to fill vacancies due to expiration of terms: Deacons, Col. W. O. Tufts, W. T. Ballard, Kirk Holmes, Edward C. Joss; deaconesses, Mrs. Clarence Corby, Mrs. J. W. T Duvel, Mrs. Paul Richmond, Mrs. Rosalind Bagger; junior deacons, Channing S. Walker, Lowell B. Kilgore; junior deaconesses, Miss Hester Brooks, Miss Ruth H. Bennett, Miss Leonora Reed; clerk, Norton M. Little; assistant clerk, E. A. Freeman; treasurer, E. Irving Fulton; chairman, committee on evangelism, Mrs. W. A. Slade; chairman, committee on social service, Miss Katherine Lenroot; trustees, Percy H. Russell, Mrs. S. R. Jacobs, Dr. A. D. Call, A. D. McNair and G. H. Collingwood.

Christian Science Churches.

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from II Corinthians xiii:11: "Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you." Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins. Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.

"No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and His love is perfected in us." (I John iv:10-12.) The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus' teaching and practice of Truth involved such a sacrifice as makes us admit its Principle to be Love. This was the precious import of our Master's sinless career and of His demonstration of power over death." (Page 26.)

CHICAGO EVANGELIST WILL LEAD SERVICES

Three Weeks' Campaign Planned in Petworth Church.

A three weeks' evangelistic campaign will begin at Petworth Methodist Church tomorrow morning. The pastor, the Rev. Robert L. Wood, will preach in the morning, and Dr. B. W. Meeks will preach in the evening. Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Rev. Thomas S. Davis, pastor of the Anacostia Methodist Church, will preach.

The evangelist who will then take up the work and carry it on is Dr. P. Raymond Powers, of Chicago. He will arrive Tuesday and will preach that evening and every evening except Saturday. His subjects for the week are:

Tuesday, "The Revelation That Challenges Modern Man;" Wednesday, "Is the American Home on the Breakers?" Thursday, "What Is the Acid Test of a Christian?" Friday, "The New Pilgrim's Progress."

Dr. Powers is a Methodist preacher, a member of the Illinois Annual Conference and for many years a successful pastor. His plan of work includes not only the preaching services, which are common to most evangelistic services, but the use of individual members of the congregation to reach the entire community. This is his first engagement in Washington, though his work has taken him into all sections of the United States.

The four-year graduating class of stern High School, made up of 53 ls and 43 boys, received diplomas t night from Dr. Edgar C. Higbie, sident of Wilson Teachers College, exercises in the auditorium of the hool.

A novel address to the graduates, which they were pictured returnfor a reunion twenty years hence, s delivered by the Rev. A. H. Lus, headmaster of the National Cedral School for Boys.

"The proper preparation for this entieth reunion demands cultivaon of your physical condition, inllectual fitness, civic usefulness, and wholesome and fearless religious ," the headmaster said.

"In twenty years' time your faces ll reflect these qualities," he added. will be interesting to see whether e corners of your mouths are rned up or down; to determine hether your lips and the contour your faces indicate self-indulgence self-control; to note whether your s are evasive or straightforward.

Should Resolve on Fitness.

"You should resolve upon physical ness," Dr. Lucas continued. "At you should be in perfect physical ndition; at 60 you should be able play 36 holes of golf or five sets of nnis. You should resolve upon inllectual fitness by systematic readg which will cause you to be recogzed as well informed.

"A third resolution should be a finite belief respecting God. It ll be wise to adopt fixed religious abits to keep your spiritual growth breast of your body and brains."

Dr. Lucas observed that the resolun to carry out these objectives is ore important than conducting eat discoveries and participating in ats of personal daring and skill at e sacrifice of these attributes of od character.

The headmaster was introduced by ephen E. Kramer, first assistant perintendent of schools. The inocation was offered by the Rev. eorge D. Sampson, of the Wilson emorial Methodist Church. Gladys ssie Durrer gave the valedictory. lections were rendered by the hool orchestra.

188 Seniors Get Diplomas At Central High Exercises

A class of 188 gradautes, 113 girls and 75 boys, of Central High School, last night received diplomas from Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and heard an address from Representative John W. Boehne, jr., of Indiana. The Rev. William E. La Rue, pastor of the Takoma Park Baptist Church, offered the invocation, and Dr. Harvey A. Smith, principal of the school, announced the honor students. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, a member of the Board of Education, presided.

Representative Boehne, who entered Central High School as a sophomore twenty years ago this week when his father was in Congress, spoke on "The Man of Today and the Man of Yesterday." He told the graduates that the responsibility resting today on young men and women, such as themselves, is greater than that borne by any generation in the last 150 years. The men of yesterday, through great sacrifices, have paved the way for the accomplishments expected of the modern generation, he pointed out. The advantages of today are due to these pioneers, he added.

Representative Boehne remarked that two of the greatest men in the development of the United States Government, Hamilton and Jefferson, had contradictory political views, yet they were in the same Cabinet and both were striving to establish a stable government in harmony with the period in which they lived.

The youth of today could search for no better example than that set by such men of yesterday, the representative told the class. He observed that the present generation must work harder and faster than any previous one in order to keep up with the increased tempo of the world. The speaker paid a tribute to Dr. Wilson, who was principal of Central at the time he was a student at the school.

Tomorrow, Sunday, Jan. 31

Here, in one convenient section, you will find the history of automotive progress during the past year; learn of the new innovations that make the present day automobile more efficient—faster, quicker on the pick-up, more easily controlled and more economical to operate; see how individual manufacturers have kept pace with progress and how body and engine designs have been refined to create new impressions of motor car beauty . . . Don't fail to order a copy of tomorrow's Sunday Post!

A Double Page Spread of Automobile Pictures in the Rotogravure Section

The rich sepia tones of rotogravure printing give you an accurate picture of the year's most advanced models in automobiles . . . A splendid opportunity to select the type of car you will drive during the coming season.

8 PAGES of Clean, Delightful COLORED COMICS

"NIPPER" . . . . By Dwig

The adventures and pranks of a "real" boy and his youthful comrades as illustrated by one of the country's most noted students of child psychology. A comic that is truly funny.

"S'MATTER POP?" . By C. M. Payne

Poor "Pop" has a difficult time restraining the ambitions of Desperate Ambrose, but a little "hush" money usually restores tranquillity among the group of amusing youngsters. There's a laugh in every picture.

BUCK ROGERS—25th Century A. D.

A glimpse of what the future may present five centuries from now. A story that rivals Jules Verne in imagery and shows the possible achievements of science in exploiting principles and laws now coming into prominence.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

The CAPTAIN and the KIDS

R. Dirks, the originator of the Katzenjammer Kids, shows remarkable ingenuity in devising new tricks for the Kids to play on the long-suffering Captain—though the Captain has his innings, too.

WINNIE WINKLE the Breadwinner

GASOLINE ALLEY by King

"THE GUMPS" by Sidney Smith

Andy Gump, Min, little Chester and Uncle Bim need no introduction to any one in the United States. Their laughable experiences and adventures appear every Sunday, exclusively in The Washington Post, as well as in week-day editions.

In addition to the page features named above there are additional strip cartoons at top or bottom of pages; these include: Hawkshaw, The Detective; Honeybunch's Hubby, Looie Blooey, Footprints on the Sands of Time and Old Doc Yak—all in full color printing . . . The cleanest, most entertaining comic features it has been possible to assemble.

FARM ORGANIZATION URGED IN MARYLAND

U. S. Officials and Others Advise Cooperation at Rockville Meeting.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Farmers were urged to organize and cooperate in order that the farming industry can be brought to the level of other industries in an address by C. B. Denman, member of the Federal Farm Board before the thirteenth annual meeting of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau at the Rockville, Md., Courthouse. Mr. Denman said that every industry that has prospered has done so by control of its production.

He said that the Farm Board purposes to encourage farmers and their children to operate farms and produce an adequate supply of food for the Nation's commerce while providing a decent payment for the farmer. Accurate information on the supply and demand should be obtained by the farmer and only those articles which are salable should be grown.

Marketing Methods Urged.

Dr. F. B. Bomberger, assistant chief of the division of cooperative marketing of the Farm Board, told the meeting that cooperative production is even more important than cooperative marketing. If the supply of foods is kept within the confines of the demand, the selling problem will take care of itself, he said.

Frank M. Payne, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, spoke on "The Necessity of Organization," and James W. Davis, president of the Maryland Federation, spoke a few words of commendation on the efforts of officers of the county bureau.

State Agent Reichert, of the Farm Bureau Automobile Insurance Co., talked on the need for insurance.

Directors Are Elected.

The following directors were elected at the meeting: Laytonsville District, Ulysses Griffith 4th; Clarksburg, R. L. Hickerson; Poolesville, James D. Byrd; Rockville, W. T. Clagett; Colesville, G. R. Canby; Darnestown, Thomas C. Darby; Bethesda, R. C. Riddick; Olney, Calvin Bready; Gaithersburg, Lee M. Howes; Potomac, Chester Clagett; Barnesville, W. W. Hodges; Damascus, E. S. Walker, and Wheaton, D. W. Simpson, all reelected except Mr. Byrd, who succeeds J. F. Allnutt.

The directors at large were reelected as follows: L. A. Darby, J. W. Jones, P. L. Snyder, Hobart Hutton, George C. Fry and Thomas C. Kelley. The directors will meet at a later date to elect officers.

Delegates to the annual convention of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation were elected as follows: Osburn Stabler, G. R. Canby and Thomas C. Kelley, delegates, and Ulysses Griffith, Hobart Hutton and E. S. Walker, alternates. The annual luncheon was held at the Hungerford Tavern in Rockville.

Man Not Guilty In Juvenile Case

Fairfax Court Frees Brent on Appeal Against Guilty Verdict.

Logan Brent, a 42-year-old colored man, of Merrifield, Va., was found not guilty of a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 16-year-old white girl yesterday by a jury in the Fairfax County Circuit Court. The verdict was returned following two hours of deliberation. The trial was conducted behind closed doors before Judge Walter T. McCarthy and a jury of five men.

The case was heard on an appeal from the decision of Judge A. C. Ritchie, of the county juvenile and domestic relations court, last spring. Brent was found guilty in that court and sentenced to the State penitentiary for one year and fined $500.

There was a great deal of agitation throughout the county at the itme of Brent's arrest. A fiery cross was burned one night not far from his residence. Some weeks later Melvin Stevens, a 28-year-old well digger, who was considered an important witness in the case, was shot down near his home one night. It later developed, according to the county authorities, the shot which killed him was accidentally fired by one of his own party.

$25,000 Damage Suit Filed in Auto Collision

Hattie Benjamin Bland, 307 Milton avenue, Clarendon, Va., yesterday brought suit for $25,000 damages from Francis H. Duehay, of 1624 I street northwest, because of an automobile accident November 24, last.

The suit, filed by Attorneys George D. Horning, jr., and John A. Huff, charged that an automobile driven by Duehay was traveling on the wrong side of the Highway bridge when it crashed into an automobile in which Bland was riding.

"THE RAINBOW TRAIL." Fox picturization of the novel by Zane Grey, adapted to the screen by Philip Klein; starring George O'Brien, supported by Cecilia Parker, Roscoe Ates, Robert Frazer, Niles Welch, Minna Gombell, J. M. Kerrigan, James Kirkwood, Laska Winters and Alice Ward. Directed by David Howard. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

The extent to which clean-cut youthfulness, a flashing smile and a sense of humor can be made the medium of a vast and unfailing popular appeal is being demonstrated at the Fox Theater this week by James Dunn, overnight star of "Bad Girl," "Sob Sister," "Over the Hill" and "Dance Team," who yesterday attracted and delighted great throngs eager to greet him upon the first day of a week of personal appearances.

Unfortunately, the attack of laryngitis that necessitated the deletion of his two songs from the act in Philadelphia the past week, still imposes that restriction upon his activities and the Dunn voice is not heard. There is hope held out, however, that by the early part of next week Jimmie will be singing again. In the meantime, the vocal contributions to the turn are being made by Willard Singley, a popular personality, who has become a fixture at the Philadelphia Fox house.

Mr. Singley opens the goings-on with a song or two and then introduces Mr. Dunn, who agreeably displays his geniality and then, as a serious bit, reenacts the doctor's office scene from "Bad Girl." It is as successful and as diverting a personal appearance as any screen star has made in Washington, and in view of the large number who have been seen here during the past few months, that is saying much.

Having gone into the Dunn personality at some length in Wednesday's issue of The Post, I shall not now repeat all that was there set down. I will, nevertheless, go so far as to reiterate that Jimmie Dunn is a grand boy and that you will like him no less than you have anticipated from his pictures.

On the screen, the major feature for the week is another of the Fox vehicles for the aggrandizement of Mr. George O'Brien as a de luxe hero of the wide open spaces. And this time those spaces are wide open and no mistake. The action of the picture is made to transpire in and about the Grand Canyon of the Colorado in the most picturesque areas the State of Arizona is able to boast.

"The Rainbow Trail," from the viewpoint of the devotee of "Westerns," has everything—gorgeous natural settings, fast action, furious riding, ne plus ultra villainy and a group of helpless, hopeless and beautiful women to make an excuse for it all. That, and Roscoe Ates' expert stuttering as a source of almost constant laughter.

George O'Brien, in this one, seems to me to go actor a bit more than he did in "Riders of the Purple Sage," for example, but he still does a good, workmanlike job, even if occasionally a little too broad "a" for the period, the locale and the tempo of the story.

His new leading woman, Cecilia Parker, is a wide-eyed blonde with pulchritude almost to throw at cats! The old swimming hole sequence is rendered mildly exciting by the glamor of her person. But aside from any consideration of purely physical allure, Miss Parker acquits herself creditably as an ingenuous young person who seems to know what it is all about.

There are more subsidiary features on view this week than you can shake a stick at—Ethel Merman, that blazing singer of torch songs, in a Paramount semiscenic subject, "Roaming;" the Fox Movietone News, in which M. Berenger, former French Ambassador to the United States, delivers himself of a most ominous declaration of France's intention in the matter of German inability to pay, and pay and pay; a Mack Sennett talking comedy, with Arthur Stone and a swell cast, "The Girl in the Tonneau," but with all these "you ain't seen nothin' yet," as Al Jolson would say, until you have viewed Walt Disney's devastating cartoon comedy, "In the Bird Store." Here, ladies and gentlemen, is the funniest, most inspired and most magnificently lunatic thing of its kind that has come along in months.

Fanchon & Marco's "Circus Days" idea, with the best elephant act that has been seen in recent years, and a host of other entertainers direct from under the big tops of show business; orchestral contributions and the customary house features bulwark a bill that is, from beginning to end, a front-runner.

COLUMBIA

"DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE." Paramount picturization of the story by Robert Louis Stevenson, adapted to the screen by Samuel Hoffenstein and Percy Heath, featuring Fredric March, Miriam Hopkins and Rose Hobart, supported by Holmes Herbert, Halliwell Hobbes, Edgar Norton, Arnold Lucy, Col. MacDonnell and Tempe Pigott. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Ever since Quasimodo's deformed body lumbered through the vaulted corridors and inmost recesses of the Cathedral of Notre Dame, actors have valiantly struggled to surpass the hideousness of Lon Chaney's creation. Mr. Chaney himself reached his peak in "The Phantom of the Opera," and since that time Bela Lugosi's Count Dracula and Boris Karloff's monster in "Frankenstein" have been the outstanding contributions to this phase of histrionic art. Now there is a new mark at which to shoot—Fredric March's impersonation of Mr. Hyde, the malevolent half of Robert Louis Stevenson's immortal tale.

So completely repulsive is this March delineation that the earlier efforts pale by comparison, and the characters themselves well nigh become paragons of virtue.

Through the media of masterfully applied make-up and multiple exposures, the transformation is effected. Each successive change, working its independent effect on the doctor until finally it becomes involuntary, grows stronger and stronger, with the external manifestations becoming more and more evident.

Miriam Hopkins, as the consort of Mr. Hyde, who eventually falls victim to his insatiable hunger for blood, does a truly remarkable piece of acting, her blond beauty making an unforgettable contrast with the ominous blackness of Mr. Hyde. Rose Hobart, as Dr. Jekyll's trusting fiance who can not quite fathom his strange idiosyncracies, is fine. The remaining members of the cast give the principals admirable support.

Adding a grateful note of levity to the occasion, the silly symphony version of the familiar story of "The Ugly Duckling" serves an admirable purpose. A new release of the Paramount News is the other subsidiary.

PALACE

"LOVERS COURAGEOUS." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presentation of an original screen story by Frederick Lonsdale, starring Robert Montgomery, supported by Madge Evans, Roland Young, Frederick Kerr, Reginald Owen and Alan Mowbray. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

When the cinema presents a really fine translation of a famous play by a famous author, it is an event of moment; but when the screen reflects an excellent drama written especially for it by a renowned dramatist—well, that becomes a signal for great rejoicing.

This is just what Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has done with "Lovers Courageous," a never-before-acted drama. With a company picked with an eye to the role and directed by one who achieves most telling results with the least obvious effort, this fast-moving play, with some of the most piquant dialogue yet written for the screen, leaves little, if anything, to be desired in the way of swell entertainment.

The story is of a meandering potential playwright who falls in love with a daughter of a high-ranking naval officer in South Africa. To cut short the liaison, Mary is sent back to England, where she gets ready to marry her fiance. On the wedding day a small present from Playwright Willie flames the smoldering spark of her affection and she goes to him. On their marriage she incurs violent parental disfavor, but with the proviso that she may, when in the straits of destitution, return. The play-writing business does not go so well, and the family resources dwindle until, in desperation, Willie asks the admiral to take his daughter back. In the throes of his life's tragedy, Willie pens his magnum opus, which on being produced proves to be a hit. Learning that his wife has been ill, he goes to his father-in-law's house and joins her, from whom, as the picture ends, he will never again be separated.

Robert Montgomery, as the budding playwright, does a beautiful piece of work, reading his lines, pregnant with wit and wisdom, in a laconic manner that adds depth to the wisdom and lightness to the wit. A dreamy, pensive lad, this dramatist, a role made right to Mr. Montgomery's measurements and one that adds greatly to his histrionic stature.

As the wistful-eyed, devoted lover and wife, Madge Evans is charming, carrying her part with restraint and depicting a courage of no less heroic proportions than that of the star. Roland Young has another of his characteristic parts as a naval attache. Reginald Owen does Miss Evans' what-'o lord with perhaps a wee bit too much cockney, yet entirely without being misplaced. Beryl Mercer is Mr. Montgomery's sweet tempered mother. Alan Mowbray does the impresario with becoming smoothness. Frederick Kerr is excellent as Miss Evans' father.

Without question, "Lovers Courageous" is in the vanguard of stories written directly for the screen. Here is a collection of types as beautifully delineated as you would wish to see, aided and abetted by typical Lonsdale humor, with repartee of the highest order coming right on the heels of most serious dialogue, a telling combination that never degenerates into banality.

"Stepping High" holds forth on the stage, featuring William and Joe Mandel, "comedy" acrobats; the Lucky Seven Trio, a group of colored tap dancers; Flo Mayo, trapeze artiste; Miles and Kover, adagio dancers; and the Chester Hale girls in four pleasing routines.

"Bimbo The Robot," an animated Talkartoon, and releases of Screen Snapshots and the Hearst Metrotone News round out the bill.

RIALTO

"THE UNEXPECTED FATHER." Universal Pictures' presentation of a story by Dale Van Every, starring "Slim" Summerville and ZaSu Pitts, supported by Cora Sue Collins, Dorothy Christy and Claude Allister. Directed by Thornton V. Freeland. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Don B. Reed.

A new child star rises in the midst of the comedy of "The Unexpected Father" to prevent it from becoming one of the real hilarity farces of the season. Not that the child star detracts from the value of the production, but rather that she injects into an otherwise nonsensical story a bit of pathos that is just as effective as the humor of the two stars.

"Slim" Summerville and Zasu Pitts need no introduction to those who like their laughs. But little Cora Sue Collins, the child involved in making "Slim" an unexpected father, may here be presented as one of those kids who make your heart warm and bring that lump to your throat when she begins to suffer.

The story is that of a suddenly rich oil prospector who becomes engaged to a girl of a gold-digging family. On his way to meet her there is a slight accident out of which Jasper Jones inherits a child, an orphan, who calls him "Daddy." He hires Polly Perkins as a nurse, only to learn that Polly (Miss Pitts) is nurse for dogs and cats. An attachment results in keeping her and their mutual affection for the child ripens. But Jasper has a tough time explaining the child to his fiance, Dorothy Christy, and her family. Only the expert advice of his "gentleman's gentleman," played by Claude Allister, saves early embarrassment.

Mr. Summerville and Miss Pitts are delightfully droll in their roles. Each can be more expressive through the use of hands than many of the better known stars with all their ability. An excellent supporting cast adds no little to the humor of the piece and the touches of youthful reactions by the Collins lass furnish just the necessary contrast to the comedy.

Auxiliary attractions are worthy of more than passing mention if for nothing else than their variety. All are good, as well making up a highly commendable bill. They include "The House of Mystery," a Street & Smith detective story with a few chills and a thrill or two; an issue of Strange As It Seems," by John Hix; a decidedly funny Sennett comedy, featuring Harry Gribben and Babe Gordon, in "The Pottaville Palooka," and the Universal newsreel, with Graham McNamee newscasting.

Man and Wife Hurt In Highway Accident

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Baggett, of Alexandria, are in the Memorial Hospital, Danville, Va., suffering from injuries received when the automobile in which they were driving was in collision with one occupied by W. R. Wilson and his daughter, Miss Annabelle Wilson, of Harmony, N. C.

Mr. Baggett suffered internal injuries and his wife a fractured knee cap. The accident occurred about 10 miles from Danville.

METROPOLITAN

"THE SPECKLED BAND." First Division picturization of Conan Doyle's famous story, featuring Lyn Harding, Raymond Massey, Angela Baddeley, Athole Stewart and Nancy Price. Directed by Jack Raymond. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Those groans and sighs you hear, those tremblings you feel, are poor old Conan Doyle turning over in his grave. For although England sends us this week an entertaining, nicely-made production of a particularly shivery Sherlock Holmes' adventure, you'll never guess what she's gone and done to her most famous sleuth.

Sherlock has gone modern, blyme blime if 'e h'aint. Those nice, stuffy, messy old rooms in Baker street have gone modernistic. Desk phones have replaced the violin. Typewriters tick away just outside the sanctum sanctorum, and gone forever are the cap, the "elementaries," most of the deductions, and all of the curl to the famous pipe's stem.

Regardless of these changes, which come as rather sudden shocks to members of the Holmes' cult, you'll probably like the picture and also the unassuming, quiet charm of Raymond Massey as the revamped Holmes. It is a far better picture in almost every way, photography, direction, and, in some cases, acting, than the earlier British Holmes' picture, "Sherlock Holmes' Fatal Hour," though it hasn't as much of, or as familiar a Holmes. It does need speeding up.

"The Speckled Band," as most every one probably remembers, tells of the mystery and horror surrounding Helen Stoner, a young English girl living with her eccentric uncle in a gloomy old Manse outside of London. From the moment of her sister's sudden and unexplained death, she feels herself in deadly peril, yet can find nothing tangible to investigate until she announces her intention of marrying. Then events take such rapid, frightful turns that Holmes and his slow friend, Dr. Watson, must be called in.

Indian servants, haunting music, stern-faced housekeepers, Gypsies and the Speckled Band—all such mysterious affairs are typically tangled in the tale.

A bit more obvious in its unfolding, a trifle more robust in its violent tempers than many American mysteries, it is nevertheless more than capably acted throughout. The young Sherlock of Massey's is, as we have said, interesting and forceful. Dr. Ryiott, though at times too blustery and villainous, is excellently handled by Lyn Harding, so reminiscent of Montagu Love. Angela Baddeley is attractive (though far plumper than our anemic ingenues) and sufficiantly terrified as the harassed Helen Stoner, though at times inclined to pose. Nancy Price is foreboding enough as Mrs. Staunton.

The three-quarters-of-an-hour filmization of the Rose Bowl, New Year's Day football game between Tulane and Southern California, will enthrall football fans, but will certainly bore those to whom a pigskin is just pig skin. For the plays of that game, which gets so much more interesting as it goes along and more thrilling if you forget the final score, are shown not once but often twice—natural or double-quick speed and then slow-motion. Except for a few instances, the slow-motion alone might well suffice. The running comment is clearly and efficiently handled, and some of those runs!

$100 Dress Theft Reported.

Herman Schaecter, clothing salesman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., reported to police that a sample case containing $100 worth of dresses was stolen from him while he was handling a business deal in a downtown department store.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

JIMMIE CAGNEY, Paul Lukas, Ricardo Cortez, Joe E. Brown, Clive Brook and Warner Oland are the male stars purportedly proposed by the feminine patrons of the Earle Theater to take part in the February Leap Year Frolic—which sounds just a little press agenty, if you ask me—in a recent voting contest which closed last night.

The idea of the Leap Year Frolic was suggested a few weeks ago by a distaff patron of the Earle and was avidly leaped upon with a low growl by the management as a swell novelty in the way of designating certain months the media for the successful salesmanship of many pictures. You know—"Holiday Hoorah Month," "January Jubilee," "March's Magnificent Movies," and all the rest of them.

Well, anyhow, the Earle went for the idea in a big way and, therefore, will present the pictures that they would have presented anyway in the following order:

James Cagney, in "Taxi," the week of February 6; Paul Lukas and Ricardo Cortez, in "No One Man," February 13; the cavern-mouthed Mr. Brown, the week of February 20, in "Fireman, Save My Child," and as an added attraction the bicentennial reel, "Washington, the Man and the Capital;" February 27, "Shanghai Express," with Clive Brook and Warner Oland.

But wait until you hear who the feminine supporting players are! Loretta Young, Carole Lombard, Juliette Compton, Evalyn Knapp, Lillian Bond, Anna May Wong, and Marlene Dietrich.

Did I say "supporting player" in describing a list that includes Marlene Dietrich? Tsk, tsk, tsk! She has supports, but certainly is not supporting!

As you may have gathered from Wednesday's column—well, then, you should have read it!—and as you may, from cursory remarks made in other columnar inches of today's paper, this Jimmie Dunn fellow, appearing in person at the Fox, is a pretty cagey guy. You can ask Lou Brown, of the Fox publicity department, and all the news photographers in town if this is not so. And they probably won't tell you! Me, I have no such compunctions—accent on the punc, if you like, and spell it with a "k," for all I care!

You will recall, or maybe not, that Jimmie was first scheduled to arrive in town at 11:30 yesterday morning, then at 11:05 and finally at 8. Well, all of the boys were on hand at 8 to welcome the stranger to our gates, and all that sort of rubbish, but, even by dint of much racing up and down the train shed and concourse, were unable to dig up any Jimmie Dunn. Odd, I mean. The fella just had to be there somewhere—but wasn't!

So Lou and his bulb-pinchers came back uptown and began to call numbers. They finally located Jimmie sound asleep in his hotel, where he had been for hours.

At the last minute he came down on the Fanchon & Marco section, bringing in the "Circus Days" unit long before he was supposed to arrive in the Capital. I told you he was smart!

And what a fine sap I would have been getting up at that hour, needing beauty sleep the way I do!

In the latest issue of the Fox Movietone News, currently on the screen, former French Ambassador Berenger launches the bitterest and most vitriolic attack that has been heard against those who favor some recessions in the matter of German reparations. M. Berenger declares that his government is going to have that pound of flesh, or else!

More important than that, however, in the view of the amusement seeker, will be Walt Disney's "In the Bird Store" cartoon comedy. This should be awarded something or other handsome by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. What a rib-cracker and button-buster—all extraordinarily synchronized with bird whistles and cat-calls, the cat, of course, being the Noah Beery of the occasion!

Capt. Billy Bryant and his "Show Boat" troupe are treating blase Broadway to a glimpse of drama as it was played for its grandparents, says Noel Thornton, of the A. P.

Leaving his boat tied up for the winter, he has deserted his customary route along the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to offer his players in New York in "Ten Nights in a Barroom" and "East Lynne."

Broadway landlubbers are receiving the sailor-actors with enthusiasm, and one of the features of the performance comes between acts, when the audience mingles with the actors backstage, where near-beer is served.

Capt. Bryant personally is scoring the biggest hit with his between-the-acts speeches. He pokes fun at the plays, his performers and himself.

He said the reason he was giving "East Lynne" was because he had a $16 advance sale, and if the advance got to $24 he would play "Strange Interlude."

Capt. Billy likes New York, but admits that the big city still holds many terrors for him and his troupers. He says, in his naively humorous way, that "only two of my actors had ever been on a train before we went to play our first engagement on dry land.

"And they can't forget they're not living on a boat anymore. I caught one of them carrying a bucket and rope into his hotel, thinking he could get water by letting it down from his window.

"Two others argued they ought to get special rates, as they brought their own bedding. Another went fishing at the base of Queensborough Bridge and caught a speedboat which jerked him in after it."

When you start pulling your scallions I'll be glad to swap you a little lettuce! And they call this winter!

PARENT-TEACHERS INDORSE HALL PLAN

Washington Lee High School Group in Arlington Backs Educational Program.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST. Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Unanimous indorsement of a resolution supporting the educational plans of Dr. Sydney Hall, State superintendent of public instruction in Virginia, was given by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Washington Lee High School at its meeting held in the school auditorium last night in Arlington.

The association made special mention in the resolution, favoring Dr. Hall's financial program as it applies to the teachers' salaries and the appropriation for the work of parent and teachers organizations. Copies of the resolution will be forwarded to State Senator John W. Rust and Delegate Hugh Reid.

Mrs. Helen E. Samuels, president of the Vocational Training Association of Washington, addressing the meeting, urged the parents not to select a vocation for their children, but to let them choose the work or profession that they would like best.

The program included solos by Mrs. Sadie Gibson French, accompanied by Miss Eleanor Furr, and a number of selections by the Washington Lee Troubadours under the direction of Miss Madaline Whitlock, director of music of the school.

W. E. Burgess Rites To Be Held Monday

Friend of "Mother" Jones, Late Labor Leader, Dies During Visit.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 o'clock for Walter Eugene Burgess at his Maryland home, where "Mother" Jones, famous labor leader, spent the last days of her life in 1930.

Mr. Burgess died at the home of a friend in Hyattsville Thursday, at the age of 57. While visiting Thomas Miller, of Hyattsville, he was stricken with a heart attack and died before the Washington Rescue Squad could respond.

Both Mr. Burgess and his wife, Lillian May Burgess, were friends of "Mother" Jones, and she celebrated her 100th birthday at their home on the old Powder Factory road in northern Prince Georges County. The Burgess' watched over her and cared for her during her last illness shortly afterward.

Mr. Burgess is survived by his widow and two brothers, Thomas, of Washington, and George, of Chillum, Md.

Kiwanis Club Would Save Eighth District

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club has adopted a resolution opposing the proposed elimination of the Eighth Congressional District, and also one opposing the bill introduced in the State Legislature by Delegate J. Fred Birrell to increase the membership of the city council of Alexandria from five to nine members, six to be named from wards and three at large.

The committee framing these resolutions was composed of Harry Hammond, Thomas Dyson, John G. Graham and R. M. Colvin.

MASONS PLANNING WASHINGTON FETE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

A large number of visitors will be entertained at the annual banquet of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons, the lodge over which George Washington presided as the first worshipful master, and which takes its name from him. The banquet will be served in the city armory the evening of February 22, at 6:30 o'clock, following a stated communication of the lodge in the Masonic Temple on Cameron street.

The arrangements for the banquet are being handled by Dr. S. Nelson Gray, worshipful master of the lodge, and J. Edward Shinn, past master, who has had charge of this annual feature for the last 25 years. Members of the lodge may obtain tickets for the banquet from C. Page Waller, secretary, until February 15, after which any remaining tickets will be available for members of other lodges who are residents of Alexandria.

Members of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association, which has charge of the building of the memorial temple to Washington, on Shooters Hill, will be guests at the banquet.

The new temple will be dedicated on May 12, and on that night Alexandria-Washington Lodge, in which the temple project originated, will hold its first stated communication in the lodgeroom in the memorial temple, which will be a replica of the room in which Washington presided over the meetings of the lodge. The master mason degree will be conferred on this occasion by Washington Lodge, of St. Louis.

Dr. Gray has appointed a committee to work in conjunction with the grand lodge of Virginia in arranging for the dedication and other ceremonies. The committee, which has headquarters in the Scottish Rite Club of Alexandria, is composed of E. J. Skidmore, chairman; Dr. John T. Ashton, Reuben J. Schooley, Charles E. Tennesson, J. Edward Shinn, C. Page Waller, C. Philip Helshley, Dr. Thomas B. Cochran, C. F. Swetnam and W. Selden Washington, all past masters of Alexandria-Washington Lodge.

John G. Faircloth's Sentence Postponed

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 29.—A stay for 15 days was granted today on the 15 months prison sentence of John G. Faircloth, convicted of aiding Clarence F. Shatz, cashier of the First National Bank of Mount Rainier, Md., in misapplying its funds. The stay was granted by Judge John J. Parker, of Charlotte, N. C., of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, according to word received here by Simon E. Sobeloff, United States district attorney.

Faircloth, former president of the Mayflower Publishing Co., Washington, was convicted in the United States District Court here. He appealed. The conviction was sustained by the Federal Circuit Court, and the stay has been granted so that he can apply to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari.

Memorial Rites Set For Elmeda Ansell

A memorial service for Elmeda Ansell, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Samuel T. Ansell, will be held tomorrow afternoon in All Souls' Episcopal Church at 4 o'clock. Miss Ansell died last month when she was en route to Manila, P. I., to visit friends.

The Washington branch of the Vassar Alumnae Association, in which she took active part since her graduation from Vassar in 1925, has arranged the service. A musical program will be given.

GEORGE Q. PEYTON DIES.

Confederate Veteran Succumbs at Rapidan, Aged 87.

George Quintus Peyton, aged 87, died yesterday at his home at Rapidan, Culpeper County, Va., from the infirmities of age. He is survived by his second wife, Mrs. Ettie Holliday Peyton, and one son, George William Peyton, by his first wife, who was Miss Hulda Holliday; three brothers, Francis Bradley Peyton and Alexander Newman Peyton, of Charlottesville, and Philip Barbour Peyton, of Alexandria.

Mr. Peyton was a son of the late William Snyder and Willieann Newman Peyton, of Rapidan. He was a Confederate veteran and was captured and kept in a Union prison the last year of the Civil War.

The funeral will be at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, with burial in the Presbyterian Cemetery, Rapidan.

C. A. SANSBURY FUNERAL.

Rites for Forestville Youth to Be Held This Afternoon.

Funeral services will be held today at 2 o'clock for Charles Arthur Sansbury, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin P. Sansbury, of Forestville, Md., who died in a Washington hospital Thursday after an illness of about three days.

The services will be held at the Forestville M. E. Church and burial will be in the church cemetery. Death was attributed to infantile paralysis.

Shriners Honor J. H. Kretchner.

J. H. Kretchner, president of the Alexandria Shrine Club, has been appointed as representative to the potentate in this section. Mr. Kretchner was notified of his appointment yesterday by J. Edward Rose, jr., potentate of Acca Temple of Virginia. The local Shrine Club will meet at 8 o'clock Monday evening, when the program will be in charge of Harry F. Kennedy, William H. Meeks and Harry H. Newton.

Sentence Given for Using Car.

A sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction was meted out to Gus Simmons after he had been convicted yesterday in Marlboro Police Court on charges of unauthorized use of an auto. Simmons, who lives in Allentown, Md., is said to have taken a car belonging to Arthur Kroll and used it for joyriding.

HERE'S WHAT WE THINK OF THIS PICTURE:

IF WE were a newspaper critic reviewing "Lovers Courageous" we'd write: This picture will please just about every normal man and woman in town. Robert Montgomery has the best role of his career and Madge Evans makes the most lovable, beautiful sweetheart imaginable.

"Lovers Courageous" is the kind of love story not often on the screen these days. There's nothing "stagey" about it—it's natural, human, lovable. It's about two young people who love each other desperately, normally. They are brave about their troubles. And you get an intimate, "inside" acquaintance with their young married life. It is wholesome, fine, inspiring! It's not wishy-washy! Plenty of spicy dialogue but never nasty. Even when Madge Evans says to Bob Montgomery: "Let's stay home and have a baby!"—you'll not blush. Because it's done so sweetly, so naturally, so beautifully. It's a happy thought! I liked "Lovers Courageous" immensely. Let me know if you agree after seeing it, together with the Capitol Theatre, New York, Revue that features William & Joe Mandel and eight big acts and features.

THE SATURDAY FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS PAGE

Appearing Each Week in The Washington Post

BEST BUDGET PRIZE IS OFFERED BY POST

How Much Does It Cost to Feed Family a Week, Topic of Award.

How much does it cost to provide your family with food a week?

The Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post desires to discover the cost of feeding families of various sizes a week. Readers of this page can assist in this survey by submitting their weekly food budgets. Be sure and state the number of persons, adults and children, fed under this budget.

The best budget received will be awarded a special book prize. Entries may be signed with initials only, if so desired, but they must be accompanied by correct addresses, which will not be published without the consent of the senders.

In order to make this Budget Contest truly effective, be sure and place the amounts and prices of foods consumed and also where they are purchased. Each budget must contain at least one article purchased from the advertisers of the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post.

GINGER CAKE.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

½ cup butter or lard (Piggly Wiggly)
½ cup sugar
2 eggs (Sanitary)
½ cup Brer Rabbit molasses
1 teaspoonful of soda
1½ cups flour (Gold Medal)
½ cup of cold water
1 teaspoonful ginger
1 teaspoonful cinnamon
Scant ½ teaspoonful of salt

Cream butter and suggar together, add eggs, one at a time, unbeaten and beat all together. Combine soda and molasses together and add to first mixture. Mix spices, flour and salt together and sift into mixture, alternating with cold water. Pour into well greased pan and bake in moderate oven 35 minutes.

For chocolate icing, ¾ cup confectioners xxxx sugar, blend with enough warm milk to make a thick creamy substance; melt 2 squares Baker's chocolate with teaspoonful of butter (Sanitary), and add to sugar mixture, stirring well to blend all together. Spread on ginger bread.

MRS. E. GIBSON M'GEE.

VEGETABLE OMELET.

3 Sanico eggs
½ cup chopped Peter Pan peas (Sanitary)
½ cup chopped Blue Ridge lima beans.
½ cup chopped Blue Ridge lima beans
Salt and pepper
Gobel's Bacon—as much as needed

Beat egg yolks until thick. Beat whites until stiff and fold into yolk, add salt and pepper. Fold in chopped vegetables. Turn into a frying pan with a little of the bacon fat. Cook slowly until slightly browned on the bottom. Then put into a moderate oven until firm. Fold and place on a hot platter and serve with Gobel's bacon.

(Mrs.) LENA POWERS.
3002 Rodman street northwest.

"SCOTCH TASTIES."
(Honorable Mention.)

¾ cup Land o' Lakes Butter (standard)
2-3 cup old-fashioned brown sugar
2 cups Sanico flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg (Rockingham) white and yolk beaten separately.

Cream butter, adding the sugar gradually. Add sifted flour and vanilla and mix until smooth. Then fold in the beaten egg white. Roll thin on well floured board and cut into fancy shapes; brush top of each cookie with well beaten egg yoke. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for ten minutes.

ELIZABETH BOLAND.
3715 Jenifer street northwest.

(Honorable Mention.)

¾ cup graham cracker crumbs, toasted.
¾ cup raisins, seeded and chopped.
1½ cups brown sugar.
2¼ cups hot water.
½ cup vinegar or lemon juice.
3 tablespoons Land o' Lakes butter

Mix these ingredients in the order given. Cook for 10 minutes. Cool. Put into a paste-lined pie plate and cover with one-half inch stripes of paste placed one-half inch apart to form a lattice top. Trim the edges evenly, moisten and put a strip of paste all around the edge of the pie. Bake about 40 minutes. Have the oven hot for the first 15 minutes, then reduce to moderate until done. Six portions.

PASTE.

Seven tablespoons Land o' Lakes butter, 1½ cups Self-Rising Washington Flour. Cold water to make a stiff dough. Work butter into the flour, add water by spoonsful. Mix quickly. Chill and roll out.

MARIE E. MORAN.
2416 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

CRUMB PIES.
(Honorable Mention.)

Pie crust.
2 cups flour (Washington Self-Rising).
1½ cups sugar.
½ cup milk.
½ cup butter (Land o' Lakes).
2 eggs, beaten (Sanico).

Line three deep pie plates with pastry. Mix flour, butter and sugar together, and rub them into crumbs. Take out one cup of these crumbs to sprinkle over top of pies and add eggs and milk to remainder of crumbs. Divide into plates of pastry, sprinkle over with crumbs and bake in a moderate oven 20 to 25 minutes.

Miss Henderson Wins Post $5 for Ice Box Lemon Pie

This week's Post $5 award was won by a recipe for a creation which spends its incubation period in the refrigerator and after only a brief sojourn in the oven emerges as a full-fledged pie.

It is called "ice-box lemon pie" by its creator, Miss Margaret Henderson, of 2755 Macomb street northwest.

A dessert which should please every one, most especially those persons particularly addicted to a liking for pie, is the result of compounding this formula.

A peculiar and pleasing factor in its making is that there is no crust to mix and roll. The crust is almost "ready-made;" but read the recipe which follows:

ICE-BOX LEMON PIE.
(Awarded $5 Prize.)

1 box vanilla wafers (Piggly Wiggly)
5 lemons
6 eggs
2 tablespoons butter
2 cans condensed milk (Borden's)
3 tablespoons confectioner's sugar

Butter two pie pans well, then cover with thick layer of finely crushed vanilla wafers. Beat together egg yolks, lemon juice, and grated rind of (two) lemons. Stir in condensed milk and pour mixture into lined pie pans. Cover with meringue made of stiffly beaten egg whites and sugar and leave in ice box three or four hours. Just before serving place in oven to brown meringue. This makes two medium-sized pies.

MISS MARGARET HENDERSON.
2755 Macomb street northwest.

Hungarian Goulash.

½ pound mutton
½ pound pork
3 slices bacon
1 onion, chopped
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Few caraway seeds
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon allspice

Cut the meat in cubes. Cut the bacon in small pieces and fry with onion until brown. Add the beef, pork, pepper, and caraway seeds and cook slowly 15 minutes. Add the mutton and cook 15 minutes longer. Add hot water to cover meat. Add the flour mixed with a little cold water, the paprika, and allspice. If desired, potatoes cut in cubes may be added 20 minutes before serving.

New Way to Serve Fish.

Halibut, salmon or any other delicate fish may be used.

1 cup bread crumbs
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Few drops Worcestershire sauce
2 eggs
1 1-3 cups cooked fish

Cook bread crumbs with milk about 10 minutes, or until slightly thickened. Add butter and seasonings. Remove any particles of bone or skin from fish and mash with fork until smooth. Beat eggs until light and add with fish to first mixture. Fill greased timbale molds and bake. Serve hot with parsley sauce or shrimp sauce.

Parmesan Eggs.

4 eggs, separated
4 tablespoons Parmesan or other dry cheese, grated
½ tablespoon salt
4 tablespoons flour

Beat egg whites until stiff. Combine flour, cheese and salt. Fold into stiffly beaten egg whites. Place in mounds in buttered baking dish, or buttered Pyrex platter or on slices of toast. Make a small well in the top of each mound, carefully place an unbroken yolk into the well, and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) ten to twelve minutes, or until egg is set. Garnish with parsley if desired.

Banana Bread.

One cup sugar, ½ cup butter, 2 eggs, beaten light, 1½ tablespoons sour milk, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 cup coarsely chopped nutmeats, ½ teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 large bananas, 2 cups flour.

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, then bananas which have been put through sieve, and liquid ingredients. Add nuts and sifted dry ingredients. Blend thoroughly and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 45 minutes. Makes 2 medium size loaves.

Eggless Mayonnaise.

1 teaspoon powdered sugar
¼ teaspoon mustard
½ teaspoon salt
paprika
Cayenne
¼ cup chilled evaporated milk
1 cup chilled salad oil
2 tablespoon vinegar

Mix dry ingredients in cold bowl. Add evaporated milk. Beat well. Add oil a little at a time, beating each addition in thoroughly. After ¼ cup oil has been added, beat in the vinegar, then finish adding oil.

Scrambled Eggs, Oysters

4 eggs
½ pint oysters
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
2 tablespoons cream
2 tablespoons butter.

Beat eggs and add cream, seasoning and oysters. Melt butter in skillet and pour in the egg mixture. Cook slowly until done, stirring occasionally to form eggs into soft, fluffy rolls. Serves six.

Dutch Apple Pie.

Nutmeg
1 cup evaporated milk
1½ cups sugar

Turn apples into pie tin lined with plain pastry. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Place strips of pastry across pie to form cross bars. Boil milk and sugar to a thick syrup about ten minutes. Pour over pie. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) ten minutes, then a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 minutes longer, or until apples are tender. Yield: One pie.

Beets Piquant.

1½ tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup beef broth or water
½ cup evaporated milk
2 cups diced beets
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Freshly cooked or canned beets may be used. Prepare a sauce of the butter, flour, broth and milk. Add chopped beets. When hot, add vinegar, sugar and salt, and serve at once, garnished with chopped parsley. Yield, six servings.

Scalloped Potatoes, Ham

1 slice ham 2-inches thick
2 cups thinly sliced potatoes
1 1-3 cups boiling water
2-3 cup evaporated milk

Remove outside edge of fat from ham. Cut fat in small pieces and put in bottom of a casserole. Brown ham on both sides in a hot frying pan. Lay ham on fat, then pile potatoes on top. Add water and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Reduce to slow oven (300 degrees F.). Add milk and continue coking until potatoes are tender.

Nut Bread.

1 egg
1 cup sugar
½ cup evaporated milk
½ cup water
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup nuts

Beat egg. Add sugar and continue beating until light colored and fluffy. Add milk and water. Sift flour, then measure. Resift with baking powder and salt into first mixture. Add nuts with last few stirs. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) about 1 hour. Yield: 1 loaf.

CAPABLE MARKETER GIVES TIPS ON MEAT

Tells Mrs. Housewife Some Valuable Truths About Wise Selections.

"Fresh young lamb is pink."

"Pork and veal, also, are pink in color, and fresh beef is bright red."

"The most nourishing cuts of meat may be tough."

"Tender cuts of meat are smooth, while tough cuts are rough-fibered."

"Some of the good values in meat today are boneless chuck, three-corner and bullion beef roasts, leg of lamb and pork loins."

The capable meat marketer gave Mrs. Justa Housewife the above pointers as he slapped and skewered, with masterly touches, the nine saddles of lamb destined for the most Important Place in Washington. Nowhere in the Capital is there more authoritative information about meat than that from this marketer, whose business is large and whose customers include food connoisseurs, many of whom are notables of the Capital.

"Don't feel that for your family's best nourishment you need buy a porterhouse steak," the meat authority said. "When a doctor wants a nourishing beef broth for a patient, he suggests using a cut from the beef neck. The neck is the strongest muscled part of the beef."

"What is the best cut of beef, from an economical standpoint, that you can sell me today?" Mrs. Housewife asked.

"Boneless chuck," the meat dealer said. "We remove all bone, tie up the chuck roast and then weigh the meat, charging but 25 cents for a pound. It is high-quality meat, some of it from prize beef from Omaha, Nebr., exhibitions. Boneless rump, costing 30 cents for a pound, is another good value. Then three-corner rib roast, pork loin and leg of lamb, the freshest and best we can get, are but 25 cents a pound. And today we'll sell legs of lamb from the same lambs I'm cutting now" (the lambs he was cutting were prepared for a special dinner for 96 persons in important political circles) "for only 25 cents a pound."

If the housewife wants the final assurance that she has the best part of lamb, beef or pork, she will ask if it is the right or left side cut. The left side of all animals used for meat is more tender than the right, for the animal invariably uses its right legs and side more, making them tougher than the left legs and side. The most used part of any creature is its toughest part, the marketer explained. All sheep and cows sleep on the right side. The position of bones and fibers in the meat will show to most cuts of meat whether they are from the right or left side.

Spareribs, Sauerkraut.

4 pounds spareribs
1 tablespoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
2 medium-sized onions
1 green pepper
1 teaspoon horseradish
½ cup parsley
½ cup water
1 No. 2½ can sauerkraut

Cut spareribs into pieces suitable for individual serving. Rub with salt, pepper and flour. Melt butter and brown spareribs in it. Mix finely chopped onion and green pepper with horseradish and water, pour over spareribs in kettle, cover and simmer until tender. It will take approximately 1½ hours. Drain and heat sauerkraut and serve with spareribs. Sprinkle chopped parsley over the sauerkraut.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Humble everyday foods, such as beans, hominy, buckwheat and barley—makers of men, if you please—are about to dislodge the more soulful spring flowers from the first place the meanderer has given them several times. While winter stays with us the sturdy foods should have an important place.

Beginning with the navy bean, over which the meanderer rhapsodized last week when one could buy two pounds for 9 cents, the same navy bean, in the same place, is now three pounds for 10 cents! Some other beans, not so common, therefore a little more interesting, are fava beans, for Italian or Jewish cookery, at 15 cents for a pound; Spanish, or pinto bean, 10 cents a pound; white kidney beans, two pounds for 25 cents, and black turtle soup beans, 18 cents a pound. All these beans are in a special food shop in an immense market in the northeast part of Washington.

Six varieties of buckwheat grits were enlightening to the meanderer in the same northeast market. Three varieties are roasted and the other three unroasted, each variety a different size. They sell three pounds for a quarter. The buckwheat grits are prepared in the same manner as farina. In some homes the buckwheat cereal is cooled, and after it has become solid, is cut into small pieces for soups and other dishes. Millet seed, a cereal; kimmel seed, for soups and meats; nahit or chick peas and four sizes of barley were also in the cereal corner of this interesting Northeast market.

Wild rice should be mentioned in the cereal list. Wild rice is the high-hat variety of rice and costs 75 cents for a pound. It is served with game dinners. The meanderer found it in a corner of a big central market where there is always something more than the usual everyday foods.

"Delphiniums blue," surely as charming as those Mr. Milne fancied, are ready for flower lovers in a downtown market. A bunch of several delphiniums is one dollar.

Apples in the bushel basket offered so cheaply now are graded fancy, No. 1 or utility, the housewife should know. The highest prices are asked for the fancies, of course, but often No. 1, or very carefully selected apples are low priced. The meanderer bought some No. 1 Delicious apples for 85 cents a bushel in the farmers' section of the immense Northeast market, where she spent several hours this week. In the same section of the market there were Grimes Golden, Stayman Winesap and Black Twig apples for 75 cents a bushel, and York apples for cooking for 60 cents a bushel. Such prices are possible when the apples are brought direct from the apple orchards, as were these apples. The enormous apple crop and the embargo in some countries on American apples have forced down the prices. One apple grower, well known in the South, is said to have 90,000 bushels yet to dispose of.

English mint sauce, with the crushed mint leaves showing through the bottle, is a choice bit offered by a fancy goods dealer in a big central market. He also sells mushroom sauce. Onion salt of high grade is another unusual item in this shop.

Cheese connoisseurs will like a shop in the immense Northeast Terminal Market, where Italian cheese and other food from Italy are sold very reasonably. Here's a list of Italian cheese more complete and lower priced than any list of such food the meanderer has found: Roman cheese, 90 cents a pound; Parmesan, 80 cents; Gorgonzola, 80 cents; Scamozza and Rigotto, Cottage cheeses, 50 and 60 cents, respectively, and Provolona, 50 cents. Olive oil sells there for $2.25 a gallon. Salami is but 50 cents a pound, and there are low prices on prostiutto or Italian ham and mortadella, Italian bologna.

Some meat prices in this Northeast market just mentioned almost belong in the "Strange As It May Seem" column. They include pork, veal or shoulder lamb chops, two pounds for 25 cents; loin of lamb, 25 cents; veal cutlet, 25 cents; fresh ham, 14 cents; fresh shoulder, 10 cents; bacon, two pounds for 25 cents; round steak, 22 cents; porterhouse and sirloin, 30 cents and hamburger, 10 cents.

Strawberries in one market are 25 cents a quart, though the general open market price this week was 30 cents. In the market featuring strawberries at 25 cents, spinach costs but 5 cents a pound.

Salty black olives from Italy are but 25 cents a quart in the Northeast market the meanderer visited. Freshly grated coconut at 45 cents a pound neighbors the black olives, and in the same shop horseradish, newly grated—in fact, so freshly grated that its owner was crying about it—is pure and undiluted with turnips and sells for only 25 cents a pound.

STOCK PRICES DROP IN HEAVIER MARKET

Delays in Rail-Wage Accord Are Blamed; Turnover Is $1,528,855 Shares.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Although able to reduce its extreme losses, the stock market closed heavy today, doubtless discouraged by delays at the Chicago rail conference.

Far Eastern affairs found their reflection in offerings of Japanese bonds, a sagging yen and finally, during the final hour, in a bidding up of copper and steel stocks, a move which could easily be attributed to speculative quarters which were anticipating a possible demand for such materials should the Chinese situation take a more serious turn.

However, rails had a weak closing and the market generally was inclined to follow them. Net changes averaged into a decline of .07 of a point. Transactions totaling 1,528,855 shares were considerably larger than yesterday's.

Losses Up to 3 Points.

At their lows prominent issues showed losses of 1 to 3 points. Those were reduced or canceled in the fifth trading hour coincident with a 2-cent rally by wheat and the firmer appearance of the metals. There was little activity in the late dip; rather, the market seemed tired of trying to rally and eased off peacefully.

Fractional net losses prevailed in United States and Bethlehem Steels, Allied Chemical, General Electric, National Biscuit, Case and Woolworth. American Telephone made up two-thirds of a 3-point drop.

Consolidated Gas lost 1, while in the fine rails Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific were off about 1 to 2. When the month began Wall street believed the railroad wage question would proceed more promptly to a settlement than has been the case.

Effect of Rail Delay.

Although delays occasioned by bargaining were expected, it was felt the negotiations would move rather quickly and their duration has rather tried the patience of speculative quarters, which have governed their market operations by the day-to-day news from Chicago. In some brokerage houses the question has recently been raised as to how much of a market boom the acceptance of a cut would prove to be.

Business trends during the first month of the year have failed to stimulate enthusiasm, but the financial community had been well prepared for negative results, and so is probably not unduly disappointed. There have been some scattered gains, although these have mostly kept below seasonal standards.

Bradstreet's, reviewing the current week, said business was not showing "any definite signs of an upturn," although the deep pessimism often noted in recent months was less apparent. Dun's pointed out that employment was improving slowly, that wage readjustments in several industries were being effected and that overproduction of goods was "much less menacing" than during 1931.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Rapid onset of a subzero wave, with millions of acres of domestic winter wheat unprotected by snow, startled grain traders today, and prices jumped quickly.

Anxiety about hostilities in Shanghai did much also to hold grain. Big buying on the part of houses with Eastern connections was a feature of wheat trade at the last.

Until late in the day, a rising trend in wheat values which had shown itself from the outset was held more or less in check by weakness of the stock market. It was only after reports were received that temperatures were down to 5 below zero in Northwestern Kansas, where wheat was without a snow blanket, that the wheat market took decisive command. Then came advices that the frigid wave had overspread most of the plains sections, was working Eastward rapidly, and had penetrated as far South as Oklahoma.

Sellers who earlier had been aggressive on wheat price bulges, went into retirement during the final hour, and a pronounced scarcity of offerings made purchases more and more difficult. Up to time the market closed, there were no reports of snowfall of consequence in the Southwest. Meanwhile, crop experts pointed to likelihood of even greater menace east of the Mississippi River, where temperatures 15 above zero or lower would probably do permanent damage to wheat prior to an unusually advanced stage of growth.

Chances that live stock feeding would increase owing to low temperatures had a bullish effect on corn and oats. Furthermore, primary receipts of both grain continued much smaller than a year ago.

Provisions sympathized with downturns in hog values, but later were steadied by grain strength.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, May, 59@59⅛; 61½@61¾; July, 59⅞@59¼, 62@62¼; September, 60¾, 63⅜. Corn, May, 40¾@40⅞, 41⅜@42; July, 42⅜@42¾, 43¾.

Cash grain:

WHEAT—No. 3 yellow hard, 57.

CORN—No. 3 mixed, 36½@37. No. 4 mixed, 36⅛; No. 2 yellow, 39; No. 3 yellow, 34½@37½; No. 3 white, 37@37½; No. 4 white, 38½.

OATS—No. 2 white, 25¼@26¼; No. 3 white, 24½@26.

RYE—No sales.

BOND MARKET SAGS IN QUIETER TRADING

Selling Flurry in Rails Sends Loans Down; Japanese Issues Decline.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Bonds continued their sagging tendency today in a quiet and orderly market. Prices were lower in practically all classes of securities, although trading became dull on the downward trend. The average for 60 Corporate Securities declined 6-10 of a point and sales totaled but $10,990,000.

A selling flurry in the rails caused many of the recent fast movers to shed from 1 to 8 points. There were some recoveries near the close, but, for the most part, the transportation mortgages were unable to sustain any substantial rally.

Disturbing news from Shanghai on the Sino-Japanese situation brought a wave of liquidation in Japanese bonds which sold down from 1 to 6 points at one time. Several of the Nipponese loans, however, came back sharply in the last hour. This was particularly true of Oriental Development 6s which finally showed only a net loss of ¾ of a point. On the other hand Great Consolidated Electric Power, Tokyo Electric and Tokyo City Obligations lost from 1 to 6 points net. Japanese Government 6½s were off 2½ points.

Other sections of the foreign list also exhibited softness. French, British, Italian and German Loans closed lower. Some of the Argentine issues were firm, the Government 5s moving up 3¼ points.

2,500 SEE EASTERN ALSO WIN THRILLER WITH BUSINESS HIGH

Final Gun Halts Late Rally by Central Against Leaders.

Stenogs Fail to Hold Slim Lead at End, Bowing, 33-29.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THERE ain't, as you probably have heard once or twice before, no justice, and rarely has this bromide been exhibited more plainly than in yesterday's high school basket ball series when Central and Business were virtually eliminated from serious series consideration by Tech and Eastern, respectively. Tech beat Central, 39-37, and Eastern beat Business, 33-29, and both games might well have gone the other way.

Tech's slim hold on first place grew no stronger despite its victory, for Eastern maintained its dangerous position just behind as a result of nosing out Business. Tech and Eastern meet on February 9 in the final game of the series.

But getting back to yesterday's brilliant battles, the two of them sent about 2,500 fans into solid hours of frenzied shouting, as the tides of fortune shifted about from one head to another, and breath-taking shots skimmed through the baskets from impossible angles.

Central Rally Expires With Gun.

Few in the big Tech gym yesterday there were who did not believe Central would at least have tied the score against Tech had not the gun exploded when it did. Tech went into the last quarter leading by a score of 36-22. Gene Swift, Central's ablest guard, was out on personal fouls at the start of the quarter, but Central's remaining aces, Burke, Keyser and Bryant remained, a trio of triple threats. Fred Thomas, sterling Tech guard, went out after five minutes of hot play, and Central began to pick up.

Burke shot five fouls in two minutes, to evolve a score of 39-31 in Tech's favor, and then as Tech strove vallantly to preserve its lead, Central rushed doggedly into the freezing act. Keyser, tall Central center, snared a ball and shot from the middle of the floor, for 39-33. Smith, a moment later, did the same, 39-35, and Sidell, Swift's sub, shot brilliantly on the dead run along the sidelines. Central was raring; it had a hot hand which raised the temperature of the gym 10 degrees, and caused the fans to raise the roof. With a few seconds left of the game, Tech appeared to enjoy no fate other than seeing Central draw abreast. There was a scramble under the basket. Keyser was jumping against a little guy, and if Central got the ball—good night.

The gun.

Hard Luck Story By Business Again.

Business High School must have been inculcated under an unkind star. When the sports history of Washington is written a solid chapter must be given to the myriad times this school has been beaten near the end.

Yesterday the little Stenogs, playing without the services of Joe Sherman, went out after Eastern and played a whale of a passing game, intermixed with brilliant shooting. They led the big Easterners 9-7 at the quarter, were tied 13-13 at the half, on a tremendously long shot by "Bones" Courtney, bandaged Eastern player, and were in the van by 20-18 at the start of the fourth. Eastern grew warm-handed all of a sudden. Barney Kane, forward, threw a one-handed shot from the side, shot one from the foul line and saw this followed up by Waters' foul shot.

Jack Bayliss and Carroll Shore, rival guards, promoted the score to 25 to 23 in Eastern's favor. Bayliss gave Eastern a 27-to-23 lead, but a foul basket by Cavanaugh and a mile-long pot by Esenstad, brought the score to 27 to 26. Carroll Shore, who never misses his foul shots missed two at this point, with the end of the game in sight. It was a cruel setback for Business, but the Shore put the team back in the game with a dribble through the entire Eastern team, and a thrilling snowbird, after Kane had made it 29 to 26.

Edelin Relieves Situation.

Eddy Edelin, playing his first series role, as a substitute for Bernie Phillips, pulled Eastern out of a bad situation by bursting into a scramble for the ball beneath the Eastern basket, snatching the leather balloon off the floor and plunking it in. Kane Waters and Esenstad traded fouls in the last few seconds.

The Tech-Central game produced more fouls than any single game of the series. Thirty-nine times were the boys charged with roughing each other. Central converted 13 of its 23 tries from the foul stripe and Tech 9 of its 16. The game was not particularly rough, and it seemed the official might well have been less stringent.

Fred Thomas perhaps was the visible edge between the two clubs. Not much is known of this Tech guard as a marksman, but yesterday, while Billy Burke was passing, shooting and guiding his team splendidly, Thomas slipped away from the Central captain and sank 12 points.

Burke Regains Leadership Of High School Scorers

Billy Burke, playing his last game of the series for Central, battled his way into the leadership of the high school series tossers yesterday by sinking three field goals and nine foul shots to bring his scoring mark to 68 points. He replaces Carroll Shore, of Business, who dropped to second place with 66. Shore scored 12 points yesterday.

Anthony Latona, idle yesterday, saw himself deposed as holder of third place by Everett Russell, Tech, who scored 13 points to boost his mark to 54. Latona, who won the scoring sweepstakes for Western last year, is fourth with 50.

College Boxer Dies From Overexertion

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Innis R. Calman, of Birmingham, Ala., 21-year-old Emory University sophomore, died today from overexertion in an interclass boxing tournament at the university last night.

Physicians said he died from a cerebral hemorrhage caused by the excitement and attendant overexertion and that his opponent was in no way to blame as no specific blow precipitated the hemorrhage.

Calman collapsed during the third round of the match and his opponent was declared winner by a technical knockout.

Special to The Washington Post.

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 29.—H. W. D. Nicholson, of Washington, D. C., was defeated in the third flight final round in the Miami Beach Championship Golf Tournament over the Lagroce Golf Club course here today. He succumbed to Ray Kilyhau, of Great Neck, N. Y., by 3 up and 2 to play. Nicholson played well during the early stages of the match, and managed to hold his opponent on even terms at the end of the first nine holes. However, he lapsed in his putting on the incoming journey and lost out on the sixteenth hole, where he missed a five-footer.

Hilltop Trackmen Preparing for Indoor Season

Gallaudet Victor At Philadelphia

Jensen Leads in Defeat of Temple Pharmacy College, 38-28.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 29.—Gaining a 10-point advantage in first half, 21-11, the Gallaudet College basket ball quintet turned back the Temple College of Pharmacy, 38 to 28, in the first game of their visit to Philadelphia at Conwell Hall tonight.

Gallaudet found that it could stop all but one of the Temple players, Al Jedoff accounting for 20 of the points chalked up by the Philadelphians. He hit the strings for seven field goals and six fouls.

Jensen at forward was high scorer for the Gallaudet invaders, registering 6 times from the floor and adding two foul goals for a total of 14 points. The Washington collegians accounted for sixteen field goals against ten for Temple's druggists.

Tomorrow Gallaudet meets La Salle.

Londos' Airplane Spin Conquers Kotsonaros

Philadelphia, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Jim Londos retained what title recognition he holds as a wrestler tonight by turning back the challenge of George Kotsonaros, of Hollywood. Londos pinned the Westerner with an airplane spin and body slam in 37 minutes 51 seconds.

KIRILENKO WINNER.

Zaharias won the first fall with a body pin, and Kirilenko took the next two. Kirilenko weighed 216 pounds; Zaharias, 230.

Crowley Ends Bid For Post at Iowa

Withdraws as Candidate; Armstrong Now Leads Coaching Field.

Iowa City, Iowa, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—University of Iowa athletic officials announced tonight that negotiations with James H. Crowley of Michigan State to come here as head football coach have been definitely terminated.

The statement, issued by Dean C. C. Williams, chairman of the board in control of athletics, bore out rumors, current for several days, that Crowley was not available for the Iowa coaching job.

Crowley, the statement said, wired that he wished to withdraw his application a few days after he visited here for an interview with the Hawkeye athletic officials.

He was considered as the outstanding candidate for the post, having almost unanimous support from both officials here and alumni.

Crowley's withdrawal establishes Ike Armstrong of the University of Utah as perhaps the outstanding prospect for the job. Armstrong interviewed Iowa officials here today. George Little, former University of Wisconsin athletic director, also has been given consideration.

The athletic board will meet Monday and may make its decision then.

TEXAS OPEN TOPPED BY KIRKWOOD

6 Birdies on Card of 70 Tops Sarazen by One Stroke.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 29—(A.P.).—Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia golf professional, neglected his celebrated trick shots today long enough to shoot six birdies for a 34-36—70. The score was good enough to lead the $2,500 Texas open field at the end of the first eighteen holes of the 72-hole trek.

Kirkwood started with a birdie three, finished the first nine with a birdie four, shot two consecutive birdies on the first three holes of the back nine and walked in with a score one under par.

In 1924 Kirkwood won the Texas open. Today he moved to the front again, but only one stroke ahead of the redoubtable Gene Sarazen, New York professional, who toured the Brackenridge Park course in 34-37—71.

Sarazen shot three birdies in the par 36 front nine, but his chance to lead the first day field glimmered when Old Man Trouble struck him with three straight fives on the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth holes. He gained control at the fourteenth and shot home one under fours for a 37. He carried a gallery esitmated at 1,500 persons.

Japanese Star Slows Down.

Yesterday the tournament sensation was Tomekichi Miyamoto, open champion of Japan, who tied the course record with a 66 and with his partner, Tom Rue, of San Antonio, won the amateur-pro event with a 64 for a new course record. But the Japanese star was slightly off line with his approach shots today and was seven strokes behind Kirkwood with 39—38—77. He still retained

Closing Spurt Against Brooklyn K. of C. Barely Fails.

Special to The Washington Post.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HALL, Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Georgetown University's basket ball team lost a 29 to 27 decision to the Columbus Council K. of C. team in a rough and tumble game on the Knights' floor here tonight.

The Hilltoppers made a game bid in the closing minutes of the game and came within a point of tying the score. The Columbus team, desperate to hold the lead it had never yielded throughout, began to stall for time. It was while Georgetown was trying to break this defensive formation up that Jack Crowley fouled Ed Keating. Keating made the point that assured the Casey's victory.

Georgetown played without Jim Murphy, its star center, and Capt. King, both of whom are on the sidelines with injuries. Even so the Hilltoppers were aggressive throughout and came back several times after trailing by big margins.

Carolan Conducts One-Man Rally.

Ed Keating threw the first basket for the Casey team, and they kept up a barrage that built up a 7 to 2 lead. The Knights also had a 14 to 9 lead when Georgetown put on its first spurt. Carolan threw a basket and a foul and Crowley another foul to pull the Hilltoppers up to the short end of a 14 to 13 score at half time.

Carolan's sharp shooting kept Georgetown in the game in the second half. He made 10 points in all, once pulling the score up from 28 to 22, and 28 to 27 unaided, except for one field goal by O'Neill. It was Georgetown's sixth straight defeat.

Harry Rice in Group Sold to Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Acquisition of four players was announced today by the Minneapolis American Association Baseball Club, whose new manager, Donie Bush, arrived yesterday.

The additions are Outfielder Harry Rice, Baltimore; Second Baseman D'Arcy Flowers, St. Louis Cardinals, and Pitcher Rosy Ryan, recently with Toledo and the New York Giants, and Third Baseman Foster Ganzel, of Louisville. Bush said other deals were pending.

Wrigley Retained Boyish Belief Great Baseball Club Was an Honor to a City

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—A week or so ago I received a request for information from a young author who wished to write a biography of William Wrigley, jr., for a magazine. He was well equipped to write this piece except that he had never met his subject and didn't know any more about him than most people knew. Always glad to see a young author make a few dollars, I would have supplied the desired information but for the fact that I happened never to have met Mr. Wrigley, either, and knew him only by reputation.

But did Ludwig know Napoleon?

Mr. Wrigley was a rich man who retained to his dying day his juvenile belief that a champion ball club brought honor and glory to the city on which it was based, even though there might not be a player on the team with a legitimate residence in town. He was also intensely loyal to his town, a sort of loyalty which is pretty widely low-rated these days. Nevertheless, he was a Chicagoan to the same extent that a Frenchman is a Frenchman.

So, when his business was completely developed, a prodigy of management and advertising, dealing in a nonessential commodity which sells for a nickel at retail in good times and bad, he bought the Cubs and made an undertaking with himself to bring a world series champion to Chicago. He spent millions of dollars trying, and though he also took in millions of dollars in the course of this attempt, the question whether he spent more than he earned has nothing to do with the case.

Offhand, I should say that he must have made some money on the Cubs, one way and another, but the fact remains that that wasn't his object. He thought it would be a great thing for Chicago to have a world series champion team, and if the spending of some more money could have achieved this without stifling the competitive element in baseball, he would have spent the money.

There are some other rich Chicago men of similar mind. John Hertz, the taxicab magnate, who was a sport department office boy in the newspaper business and then a fight manager, came by his opinion of the importance of sport quite naturally. His sport now is horse racing, and he thinks a great horse track, second to no other horse track in the world, will confer lasting good on his home town. That is his primary interest in the Arlington Park track in Chicago, a plant which cost millions of dollars and which will not pay any profits to the backers.

Old George Getz, the retired coal magnate, is another such. For a long time it has been a hobby of Mr. Getz's to collect aoudads, gnus, emus and other outlandish beasts and wild

Olympic Rift Results in Ban On U. S. Bobsleigh Leader

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—An audacious display of lese majeste tossed the pre-Olympic scene into turmoil for a few hours today and provided the citizens of Lake Placid with a counter-irritant to renewed worries over the weather.

Out of a clear sky that the citizens had been watching for signs of more snow, Ralph J. Ury, chairman of the registration committee for the Adirondack district of the Amateur Athletic Union, summarily banished Jay O'Brien, head of the Olympic bobsleigh committee and seven others from participation in the North American and A. A. U. bobsleigh championships, now scheduled for Sunday and Monday.

It was a bold move, the equivalent of a secretary hauling off and firing his boss, and it dazed for a few hours members of the Olympic bobsleigh committee and even the head of the entire winter Olympic organization, Godfrey Dewey, of New York.

Ury told the Associated Press that temporarily he had banned the participation of O'Brien and the luckless seven because they had no traveling permits from their home A. A. U. districts certifying them to compete in another district.

He named with O'Brien the follow-

Record Denied Gar Wood By 3-100 of One Second

DETROIT, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Three one-hundredths of a second, the tick of a watch, or six-tenths of a nautical mile per hour—that's how far Gar Wood missed undisputed claim to a new world water speed record on each of his two dashes over Indian Creek at Miami Beach, Fla., Wednesday.

The figures are Dick Leavell's, and he owns the timing device used in Wood's record attempt, which has been pronounced an apparent national record. It failed of a world record, W. D. Edenburn, Detroit, chairman of the Yachtsmen's Association racing committee, said, because it did not exceed by half a nautical mile per hour the record set by Kaye Don at Lake Garda, Italy, last July.

Leavell said that Wood's speed of 110.785 statute miles an hour, if figured on the basis of nautical miles, was 5 feet, 2½ inches short of an undisputed world record.

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Gar Wood's Miss America IX was ready at her dock today for the veteran racer to send her over the Indian Creek course again in search of a new world's speedboat record.

Lowered at the nose by minor changes in the hull, the Miss America on her next run is expected to cut through ripples instead of bouncing over them.

Wood said the hull changes probably would step up the Miss America's speed by another mile an hour.

Baer Defeats Levinsky in Dull Bout

Coast Heavy Annexes Decision; No Knockdowns Recorded.

10,000 See Battle; Chicagoan's Famed Right Fails.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Max Baer, variously known as the California Adonis and the Livermore Butcher Boy, came back to Madison Square Garden tonight after a year's absence to pound out a dull ten-round decision over King Levinsky, of Chicago, clown prince of the heavyweights.

The decision was unanimous, the two judges and Referee Gunboat Smith deciding Max had sunk his right into the king's ribs sufficiently to counter-balance the occasional wild swings that Levinsky managed to plant on the Californian's handsome countenance.

It apparently met the approval of the crowd of 10,000, which had few opportunities to cheer during the 45 minutes of mingling and refused to get excited over a decision or anything else. There were no knockdowns.

According to the Associated Press score sheet, Baer, who enjoyed a nine-pound weight advantage, had a margin in five rounds, two went to Levinsky and three were no dice. The only mark that either bore of the battle was Levinsky's left side, which was a deep red from the constant thumping it received during the interminable clinches.

Baer Not Impressed By Right.

Levinsky's most formidable weapon, the looping right that floored Tommy Loughran three times recently and has carried the former fish peddler into the front rank of the heavyweights, made slight impression on Baer. For the first few rounds the Chicagoan got it over every now and then, but in the latter stages Baer brushed it off with his glove and waded in close to punish Levinsky to the body.

The pair did most of their serious fighting just before the bell ended each round. With about ten seconds to go, they would heave to and stand swinging them from the hips. Three times they continued after the bell and the referee had to pry them apart.

As a result of tonight's victory, Baer advances near the head of the class in Promoter Jimmy Johnston's tournament of the alternates. He probably will meet the winner of next week's fifteen-rounder between Pauline Uzcudun and Ernie Schaaf, the survivor of that scrap to fight Steve Hamas. Max may, if all goes well with him, have the privilege standing as chief alternate for the big bout in June between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling.

Retzlaff Stops Joe Woods.

In the semifinal bout of the evening Charley Retzlaff, tall Duluth heavyweight, was awarded a technical knockout over Joe Woods, of Los Angeles, in the seventh round. A stiff right opened a cut over Woods' eye, bringing a flow of blood, and Referee Smith stopped the bout after 2 minutes and 14 seconds of fighting. Woods, half a head shorter than his opponent, had put up a rattling good fight, flooring Retzlaff for a nine count in the fourth round.

14 Colleges Entered In C. U. Indoor Meet

Fourteen colleges already have signified intention of placing teams in the Catholic University indoor track carnival, scheduled February 27, Coach Dorsey Griffith, in charge of arrangements, announced last night. This number lists besides Catholic and Maryland Universities, the University of Virginia, William and Mary, Navy, Princeton, Temple, Villanova, Lehigh, Lafayette, St. John's, of Annapolis; Panzer Institute, Seton Hall and Richmond. Less than half this number competed in the meet last winter, and Griffith said the indications point to the most successful event of its kind ever held by the Brookland institution.

J. C. C. Wrestlers Face Hagerstown Y Tonight

The Jewish Community Center wrestling team meets the Hagerstown Y. M. C. A. tonight at the J. C. C. gymnasium in eight matches. The Hagerstown boys are seeking their first local victory, having been downed by the local Y. M. C. A. several weeks ago.

The matches start at 8:30 o'clock. Bennie Bortnick will referee.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

The untimely death of William J. Wrigley, who tossed his chewing gum millions into the baseball market in an unsuccessful effort to bring a world championship to the Chicago Cubs, reminds this column that baseball's money bags are controlled chiefly by a heterogeneous element which played an insignificant part in pioneering the game.

The line-up of magnates in the American League is in point with the present roster of owners including only two men, Clark Griffith, of the Nats, and Jack Quinn, of the Red Sox, who rose from the ranks of baseball players to the control of a big league club. Last year there were three, but Charles Comiskey passed on during a twelve months that claimed no less than a dozen important figures in the baseball vale.

Beyond the manufacture of the official balls for both leagues, the Shibes of Philadelphia, owner of the Athletics, had no playing connection with the national game, and so on down the list with the exception of Griffith and Quinn. The Nats' president, a famous pitcher in his day, probably is outstanding among the baseball-made magnates. Quinn, a former infielder, was never a star.

Peruse the remainder of the list of the American League magnates and we find Col. Ruppert, of the Yankees; Philip de Catesby Ball, of the Browns; Navin, of the Detroit Club; Charles Comiskey, jr., of the White Sox, and the Bradleys, of Cleveland. None of them ball players.

Col. Ruppert's brewery millions poured into the Yankees' exchequer brought him the fruits that Wrigley so unsuccessfully sought. The Yankees, during Ruppert's control, have won six league pennants and four world titles as contrasted to Wrigley's one lone league championship and disappointment in the world series of 1929 against the Athletics.

The Bradleys have not stinted the Cleveland Club since they took over the franchise four years ago, but only once have the Indians finished above the second division. The rich Van Sweringen railroad interests comprise the Bradley fortune, but it has been of little use in the pennant races since the magnates refuse to part with talent for cash.

Concerning baseball's nonbaseball owners, the quip was once made in the case of Barney Dreyfuss, long owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, that Dreyfuss has spent 30 years in baseball and never threw a baseball.

A story of a dinner party at the Wrigleys in which the hosts served chewing gum of a rival concern unknowingly, reminds Fred Lieb, well-known baseball commentator of the New York Evening Post, of a similar incident in which Col. Ruppert was the innocent victim.

A group of New York baseball writers at Plattsburg in the spring after the United States entered the World War, invited Col. Ruppert to bring his Yankees to the camp for an exhibition game with the post team.

After the game, Col. Ruppert, Bill Donovan, then his manager, and the writers who accompanied the expedition, returned to New York in two automobiles. Bill Farnsworth, Sid Mercer and Damon Runyon were riding in the first car and it got a start on the second, in which Ruppert was riding.

Arriving at a small up-State town, where it had been decided to have refreshments, the occupants of the first car naturally drifted to the bar. Remember, this was 1917, in the 2 1-3-per cent beer days.

"What kind of beer do you use here?" asked one of the writers.

"Rupperts," was the reply.

"Well, I'll tip you off to something," said the sports writer. "In the car in back of us is Col. Ehret, the big brewer from New York. Now, he'll probably ask you what kind of beer you use here. Tell him Ehret's. If he inquires about Ruppert's, say you did use it but found it unsatisfactory. He'll probably leave you a $10 tip when he leaves."

Shortly afterward Col. Ruppert arrived in the second car. The innkeeper greeted him warmly, "How do you do, colonel?"

"How dare you?" said the baseball owner.

Sure enough, Ruppert inquired whose beer was on tap.

"Ehret's," said the bartender. "Used to use Rupper's, but the boys around here didn't like it, so I put in Ehret's."

"What's that you say about my beer?" demanded Ruppert.

Why, aren't you Col. Ehret?" said the startled inkeeper.

"No, I am Ruppert," said the Yankee owner."

About this time guffaws of laughter came from the other side of the room.

"But those fellows over there said you were Ehret. It is Ruppert's beer that I use," explained the bartender.

That, of course, eased the situation, and if is said that the innkeeper got his "ten."

Mills' Riding Scores for Gelding

Falters in Stretch But Wins Under Strong Handling.

Scotch Gold Shatters 7-Furlong Record to Win Sixth.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Pop Gaffney, a 5-year-old, which made his first start last November, kept his Florida record clean by scoring his third straight victory in the McKinley Claiming Handicap, 7-furlong headline attraction here today.

Hank Mills brought the gelding home by a length in a drive with Jaz Age, the favorite. Full Dress was third, three parts of a length farther back. The winner returned $9.20 for $2.00, and ran the distance in 1:24 4-5.

Mills had plenty of work to do in guiding his mount to victory. After breaking the son of Jim Gaffney on top, Hank let him step along and draw into a length lead over Jaz Age, but around the bend the T. S. Young representative tried to bear out and Mills gave him a crack over the head with the whip to keep him in.

Winner Zigzags Down Stretch.

Going wide around the turn and losing ground, Pop Gaffney then pulled in to the middle of the track where Jaz Age, Ellice and one or two others were making their bids. Despite the winner's zig-zag tactics, he had enough left to hold Jaz Age through the final stages under strong handling. Full Dress closed ground very fast in the last furlong to land Show Money as Ellice tired.

Scotch Gold, a gray 3-year-old colt flying the silks of the Howe Stable, treated the patrons to one of the most brilliant displays of speed ever seen in Florida when he ran 7 furlongs in 1:23 2-5, to win the sixth race by three lengths. The son of Duncan Gray—Rhindegold clipped two-fifths of a second off Playfole's track record. Trombone took the place from Regula Baddun by seven lengths.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOUBLE HEART, $6.70, $3.00, $2.40; GLENSIDE, $4.20, $2.80; BLACK WATCH, $2.80.

DOUBLE HEART, taken back off the pace rounding the far turn, went to outside of leaders making turn into home stretch and, assuming an easy lead in final furlong, drew away without effort at end. GLENSIDE had a lot taken out of him forcing the pace. BLACK WATCH broke fast and hugged the rail from the start. The others were never factors.

SECOND RACE—Two furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. Opa Locka Purse. For maiden 2-year-old fillies. Start poor. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:52½. Winner, J. F. Patterson's ch. f. (2), by Campfire—Ima Baby. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:23 3-5. (Equals track record).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OH BABY, $11.20, $3.60, $3.70; MINTWINA, $2.10, $2.40; MISS BROOM, $2.40.

OH BABY broke free and clear and sprinted away from her field first sixteenth. She tired badly at end and had to be hard ridden to stall off MINTWINA. Latter broke in the air but, recovering quickly, went after the leader. She finished full of courage and was gradually gaining. MISS BROOM bore over to inside at end. LAST BID went well for a furlong.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:19. Off at 3:23. Winner, George D. Widener's b. s. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR SAINT, $3.80, $2.40, $2.50; PARTISAN, $2.50, $3.90; MR. DICK, $4.50.

WAR SAINT, quick to find his stride, went to the front and drew away in early stages. He was driving hard all last furlong to stall off PARTISAN. Latter began slowly and worked his passage up on the outside. He swerved over to inside in stretch run and was gradually gaining on the winner. MR. DICK saved ground all the way and wore down the tiring SHASTA LOVER, last furlong. Latter was used up following the pacemaker. BOREALIS showed flash of early speed. APPLECART was blocked at turn out of back stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:47. Off at 3:55. Winner, Mrs. M. Colford's ch. c. (3), by Purchase—Whim. Trained by M. Colford. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:45 4-5, 1:12.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MY PURCHASE, $6.20, $2.80, out; JAMBALAYA, $2.80, out; SUN TEATIME, out.

MY PURCHASE went to front with a rush and drew away into a safe commanding lead first furlong. He always held his opposition safe and was in hand at end. JAMBALAYA, hustled along entire journey, moved up going to half-mile pole, but weakened rounding far turn. SUN TEATIME was pulled up at start. She closed ground in early stages, but was tiring at end and driving hard to stall off NORWALK.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,500. McKinley Claiming Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:25½. Winner, T. S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POP GAFFNEY, $9.20, $4.40, $3.20; JAZ AGE, $4.00, $2.80; FULL DRESS, $4.40.

POP GAFFNEY outbroke his field and drew away first furlong. He bore out entering the home stretch and carried JAZ AGE out with him. He hung on with good courage when put to a drive. JAZ AGE, taken to outside of leader rounding the far turn, closed full of courage and was gradually wearing the winner down. FULL DRESS was blocked in stretch run when the leader bore over to inside. ELLICE met with interference. THE GEN tried to bear out rounding far turn.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. Miami Springs Purse. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:52. Off at 4:53. Winner, Howe Stable's gr. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOTCH GOLD, $4.20, $3.40, $2.80; TROMBONE, $3.80, $2.90; REGULA BADDUN, $3.40.

SCOTCH GOLD outran his field from the start, raced in hand all the way and had something in hand at end. TROMBONE responded gamely to punishment, but could never get to the leader. REGULA BADDUN was used up racing with the winner in early stages. He tired badly and was driving hard to stall off ON SIR. Latter was unable to untrack himself in early stages.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:17. Off at 5:17½. Winner, W. C. Weant's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COADY, $12.70, $6.90, $5.90; BATTY, $5.60, $5.20; TYPHOON, $8.20.

COADY, off slowly and outrun for six furlongs, gradually moved up approaching head of stretch and, responding gamely to powerful urging, caught BATTY and held her safe in drive to wire. BATTY could not keep up swift early pace, but reached contending position at half-mile pole and worked way to the front turning for home, but could not withstand winner's challenge, although holding on well. TYPHOON was always well up and finished well. SUN MASK and BOSAFABO were used up racing together in battle for early leadership.

—Hialeah Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29.—The feature tomorrow is the Hialeah Highweight Handicap. The secondary feature is the Shenandoah. FLYING HEELS, if he stars in the Handicap, will be compelled to carry 140 pounds, if in the Shenandoah, only 128. JUDGE SCHILLING, also in both races, with 127 in the Highweight Handicap, gets in the Shenandoah with 119. FLYING HEELS probably will start in the Handicap and carry his high impost, for VANDER POOL has a chance to beat him in the Shenandoah, and there is less opposition to be met in the feature for the fast son of Flying Ebony. He is selected to win, even with the anchor of 140 pounds. JUDGE SCHILLING, should he sidestep a meeting with VANDER POOL, would become the most formidable rival of FLYING HEELS in the Handicap. HIBALA should hold the others safe.

FIRST RACE—LINE OF FIRE looks best in the first race, having won a few days ago for the first time in months; he will have to meet no faster horses in this than in the other contest. ELIZABETH FOX, winner last time out, should be the contender. JAMES RIVER should improve. LINE OF FIRE beat Rabble in 1:13 2-5.

SECOND RACE—HELIOS should repeat in the second race for 2-year-olds, having equaled the track record in winning Monday. TRANSEN will furnish the chief opposition, and won last week. CHILTENNY has the edge on the others of the large field.

THIRD RACE—MARTINELLI is selected for the third race. He won his last start, beating Vacation in fast time. TOREALONG is a much improved horse, and is rated the contender, having beaten Outburst in his last start. SHOWDOWN is probably best of the others.

FOURTH RACE—In the Shenandoah, fourth race, VANDER POOL looks best, even if FLYING HEELS starts, for the Moore colt is reported to be on edge, even if he lost his two previous starts in the South. FLYING HEELS and JUDGE SCHILLING will furnish the opposition.

SIXTH RACE—MEMORIES DEAR deserves another chance, and she is selected to defeat PORT HARLEM in the sixth event. The race will be between the two, with PORT HARLEM the favorite. Both were beaten in their last starts, but both finished in the money. MY SIS, at her best, should get third.

SEVENTH RACE—OUTPOST may beat TANCRED in the last race of a good half-holiday card. His victory over Roane Antelope would give him a good chance in this. TANCRED will be the favorite and a keen contender.

G.U. PREP 12-11 VICTOR OVER ST. JOHN'S

Garrett Park Five Led by Nee; Scanlon Saints' Star.

GEORGETOWN PREP SCHOOL'S court team startled the scholastic world by turning back the "Little Cadets" of St. John's by the small score of 12-11 at Garrett Park yesterday. Both teams resorted to close guarding tactics, with Georgetown holding the upper hand in the infrequent scoring.

St. John's trailed, 8-5, at the half, but rallied in the final two periods to bring the score to 12-11 just before the whistle blew. Mike Scanlon, diminutive Cadet guard, was poised to make a long shot just as the whistle sounded ending the fray. Scanlon was the big gun in the Vermont avenue aggregation's attack, ringing up 6 points. "Little Pete" Nee's 5 points were high for the winners.

Skinkers Face Second Test Against Passons

Unless they show a radical reversal of form Skinker Eagle basketballers likely will experience their second setback in as many weeks when Passon professionals are engaged at Bolling Field armory tomorrow.

Last Sunday, the Passons, scoring virtually at will during the first half, decisively outclassed the District professional champions. Though rallying in the stretch, Skinker's proved unable to atone for a poor getaway.

Preceding the Skinker-Passon contest will be a promising Government League game bringing together Census Enumerators, loop leaders, and Bolling Field. Play starts at 2 o'clock.

Washington-Lee High Defeats Oakton Quintet

The Oakton High School Basket Ball Team suffered its first defeat in sixteen games when it bowed to the Washington-Lee High School tossers by a score of 23 to 18, on the latter's floor last night. Rosenberger was best for the winners, while Thompson shone for Oakton.

Bliss Five Wins, 34-16, In Baltimore Contest

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 29.—Having the edge all through the contest, the basket ball squad of the Bliss Electrical School, Washington, breezed along to take an easy 34 to 16 victory over the Strayer, Bryant and Stratton College contingent here this afternoon.

After the locals rallied and came within 2 points of tying the count in the second half, the invaders opened up and scored 16 consecutive points.

A. A. U. TOURNEY PRODUCES SCHOOL STARS

Best Players Grew Up in Contests

Eagles to Defend Girls Senior Class Title; Seek Games.

THE present high school basket ball series reads like a roll call of District A. A. U. tossers. In the series line-ups each Tuesday and Friday are many youths who found their first real competition in the big amateur tournament annually sponsored by The Post.

In fact, there are almost enough boys now in the high school limelight who took their first steps in A. A. U. competition to make up another high school series, 23 experts, in fact. They are spread out on all five teams and play feature roles twice a week before thousands of fans.

On the league-leading Tech Team there is Everett Russell, Bernie Reichardt, Jim Reed and Mario Gregorio, virtually the first team.

Eastern boasts of Barney Kane, Bernie Lieb, Bones Courtney, Ben Zola and Al Waters, all of them regulars and all members of the team which held the title last year with Central.

Swift Made Good In Series.

Central has Gene Swift, Saks and Scheinermon, all three of whom played on peewee teams in 1926. None weighed over 100. Also among those who have played in A. A. U. tournaments from the 100-pound stage up is Nee, of Georgetown Prep; Gallagher and Scanlon, of St. John's, and Fitzgerald, of Gonzaga.

Business has a raft of players this year whose die was cast in Post tournaments. Shore, Sherman, Tipton, Scher, Fox and Curtin are the bulk of these. Tipton was on the Arcadians, 115-pound champions the year before last.

Western's outstanding players know what A. A. U. competition is. Anthony Latona, Everett Buscher, Bi'l Payne, McPherson and Stehman play every year in this tournament, and like the others literally grew up in it.

A surprising number of husky youths have played in A. A. U. tournaments since they were unable to make a scales read 100 even by jumping up and down. The former hundred-pounders are Reichardt, Reed, Lieb, Courtney, McPherson, Swift, Saks, Scheinermon and Scher.

There is no need to repeat that the tournament The Post annually sponsors is a proving grounds for basket ball glory. A kid who makes good in this competition makes good in each succeeding step in his athletic life.

Eagles Girls to Defend Title.

The Eagles, senior girls champions of the last tournament, and long a power in girls ranks around here, will defend their title again, it was announced yesterday by Lucille Limback, star of the team.

The Eagles gained the championship last year by downing the favored Als A. C. team in the final round.

Miss Limback is handling the Eagles' schedule and wants games. She may be reached by calling Emerson 9101.

Registration for the tournament in the unlimited, 145 and 130 pound classes closes Monday night with Mr. Fyfe at the Boys Club.

ing bobsleighers; Eddie Eagan, former intercollegiate boxer, and Clifford Gray, of New York; Albert B. Ashford, jr., and Howard S. Lipson, both members of the team of Hunter Goodrich, of Milwaukee; Harry Grayson Martin, of New York; John N. Trainer, former Harvard tackle, and Gerald Norman Burke, of New York.

Dan Ferris, secretary of Amateur Athletic Union in New York, said he had never before heard of such a thing, but promised Dewey that proper certification would be sent here immediately to restore O'Brien and the rest to good standing in time for the national championships. Ury replied that that would satisfy him.

Behind the entire move, however, was seen the first open evidence of discomfiture of local bob sleighers over the manner of choosing the United States bob team. Because of lack of snow and ice, three four-man teams and three two-man teams were picked by the Olympic committee headed by O'Brien without tryouts.

O'Brien Picked Self On Team.

O'Brien picked the teams of Fiske and Goodrich and named himself to ride with Fiske. Local experts insist, however, that there are several more teams in these parts that can beat both Fiske and Goodrich.

In a way it was a day of bitterness and a controversy between American and foreign bobbers and weavers developed out on the big run, on Mount Hoevenberg, to match the angry feeling generated in town by Ury's action.

Trying the course for the first time, the foreign teams were accused by the Americans of using brakes on the turns, something very illegal in bob running, amounting almost to chicanery.

The foreign entries denied it, but the Americans said there were ridges left on the turns by the foreign brakes and they could prove it.

To top off a bad day, the weather turned warm again and rain started falling late in the afternoon. Unless the weather tightens immediately, and snow falls, the A. A. U. and North American bob run championships may be abandoned.

The Olympics proper open Thursday, February 4.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

WHEN John Verrazano, a Florentine navigator, landed at what is now the Battery, in New York, in 1524, he was greeted by the native Indians. He presented them with a quantity of liquor, and many of them became drunk. After that, they called the island Mannaha-ta, meaning "place of drunkenness." The Indians, in turn, were called Manna-ha-tans.

Water can be weighed without scales, but you must know the volume of the water. Then an object, the specific gravity of which is known, is floated in the liquid. The water displaced will weigh the same as the object, and the weight of all the water can be determined in this manner. For instance, if the object is placed in a full glass of water, and half of the water is forced out of the glass, the weight of the full glass is twice the weight of the object.

You can easily tell which of two like volumes of water is the heavier in the same manner. The deeper the object sinks, the lighter the water, and vice versa.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

MINTE PAINT went into the lead in the second half race of the Building Contractors League by winning all three from D. C. Butcher, the former leader of Arcadia, last night. The latter team dropped to fourth. The Paint crew hung up a new set mark for the loop with a total of 1,766. Mike Kapneck, anchor man, rolled a set of 404, and Mike Vitale a set of 377, which included a game of 146.

In the other matches Standard Art Marble and Rosslyn Steel gained 2-1 victories over A. W. Lee and Massapomax Sand. Heffron rolled a set of 1,635 and won a trio from Southern Asbestos. Evans Plumbing, Fuller Stone Plant, and Todd were one up on Moyer, Smoot Sand and George A. Fuller.

Reeside's 348 set, was a big help to Chevy Chase, which had a tough time to win the odd game from Manor in the Golf Clubs loop at Silver Spring. Sullivan, of Indian Spring, and La Bille, of Beaver Dam, shared the individual game prize with 129 each. Argyle scored over Beaver Dam by one game, and Indian Spring shut out Congressional.

Kinnihan's 148 game and 390 total for the three, topped the scoring in the Typothetae League at Lucky Strike. Washington Typographers copped the team prizes with 685 for high game and 1,659 for the set.

An Irishman, by the name of Maloney, walked off with the major honors in the Arcade-Sunshine League at Lucky Strike. He dented the duckpins for a game of 135 and set of 371. Rug Department's 534 and 1,514 took the team honors. Laundrymen dropped a pair to Rug, Dry Cleaners took two from Service, and Hat Department was completely frozen out by Cold Storage.

Pirrone chukked 1,511 pins off the alleys to bag all three with Goldsmith in the Jewelers League at Columbia. Art Metal and R. Harris Seniors also won clean sweep victories, the goose eggs going to Desio and R. Harris Juniors. Kahn, Castleberg, Gault No. 2, the Jewel Shop and Heller Plating scored odd-game wins over Limon, Steiner-Baum, Person-Crain, Gault No. 1 and Blustein. Heller Plating's 526 game was high for the evening. Lordich's 134, for Blustein, and Bachschmidt's 344 for R. Harris Juniors were the best individual scores recorded.

Ross and Dusteroff were the stars of the Washington Gas Light League at Convention Hall last night. The former rolled a game of 139 to aid Accounting in its three-game win over Collections, and the latter toppled 356 sticks in his three games, as Fitting Department rode to a 2-1 win over the Officers. Meter Shop defeated the Ladies in three games, rolling a game of 550 and set of 1,561. In the other matches Columbia Heights and Georgetown scored one-game wins over West Station and Industrial.

Connecticut Stars Beat D.C. Bowlers

Tronsky Sets New Record of 2,004 Pins for Fifteen Games.

Willimantic, Conn., Jan. 29.—Washington bowling stars fared poorly on the first day of their Northern invasion tonight at the home of the Connecticut Blue Ribbons, winning only one singles match, losing another, and also two doubles and a team match. Nick Tronsky, Blue Ribbon ace, hung up a new national record for 15 games when he totalled 2,004 pins while rolling in two singles and a doubles match. The old mark of 1,916 was held by Barney Spinella, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Despite his record-breaking performance, Tronsky lost to Astor Clarke in the first match of the day, 709-679. Even with this 30 pin victory Clarke dropped the ten-game match to his opponent, the first block of which was rolled in this city several weeks ago, by a margin of 8 pins.

In a three game team match Temple lost by 73 pins to the Blue Ribbons. The score was Temple, 1,736; Blue Ribbons, 1,809.

CITY'S GLORY WRIGLEY'S INCENTIVE

fowl from unfrequented portions of the earth and confine them in a private zoo for his own pleasure and the amusement of his neighbors. Then, a few years ago, having time on his hands and, of course, plenty of money, Mr. Getz chanced into the big, clumsy arena in the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial fair grounds of a very rainy night to watch Gene Tunney raise a big, purple egg-plant on Jack Dempsey's left eye for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Mr. Getz looked around at all the people and thought of all the newspaper publicity which was carrying Philadelphia date line that night and decided that the best thing he could do for Chicago would be to bring the return match to his home town. Mr. Getz did that one year later, and though I still doubt that the Tunney-Dempsey fight at Soldier Field, with its attendance of 100,000 and its receipts of not much less than $3,000,000, conferred any lasting prestige or spiritual or material benefit on Chicago, Mr. Getz sincerely thinks so. That is why one still sees George Getz bobbing up at the more important prize fights and prize fight managers' conferences in New York to try to bid in a big one for Chicago.

However, Mr. Getz Is Pennsylvania Dutch.

However, Mr. Getz is Pennsylvania Dutch, and he is not such a spender as Mr. Wrigley was and Mr. Hertz is, so he has been trying to achieve his ends by less abrupt methods. Moreover, the prize fight talent are such a frowsy lot—and their word is absolutely no good, though it be sworn to and signed for on documents fully aforesaid—that Mr. Getz would be very foolish to stake any of his money on a mere promise to perform. He is tall, with broad shoulders, and he looks slightly like John Pershing.

It has been a long time since I thought of any world series ball club as representing the city in which its operating corporation happened to do business. Among Mr. Wrigley's Cubs of 1929, who won the National League pennant but sorely disappointed him losing the world series, there were Rogers Hornsby, of Texas; Hack Wilson, of Martinsburg, W. Va.; Pat Malone, of some Ohio town, and so forth.

With the exception of a slight momentary boom in the hotel and night club business, the immediate material benefits to a city of Chicago's great size and turnover were too small to be calculated, because the out-of-town attendance must have been small, considering the local demand for tickets.

Love of the Game Was Wrigley's.

But Mr. Wrigley was not interested in profits from the team itself, so he could not have been interested in the incidental profits which the team's success might confer on other business men. He was a true-believing fan, and the honor and glory which he received for Chicago in such an event could not stand analysis any better than the wonderful thing called love.

I have thought that Mr. Getz, when he has tried to arrange big fights with the idea that they might glorify Chicago, has unconsciously indicated a pretty poor opinion of Chicago, because the city seems much too important to be affected one way or another by such incident.

"But," I have heard him say, "can't you see that if it's big, Chicago ought to have it?"

Wringley in baseball, Getz in prize fights and Hertz in the racing game all seemed to have the same general idea. They could have gone pseudo-European or pseudo-New York with their money, but they thought of making Chicago the National Capital or capital of the world in the sports which took their attention.

The attitude of these millionaires is almost pure sportsmanship. To such a fan as Wrigley, with his Chicago loyalty, if his ball club had won a world series last fall it would have mattered just as much at the time as victory in a 100-yard dash matters to a kid in a high school meet for the county championship. He was still a kid competing for a leather medal when he died.

BETHESDA FIREMEN TRAVEL.

The Bethesda Firemen travel to Indian Head tonight to engage the Marine team of that post. The team will leave from Fourteenth and S streets at 6:45 o'clock.

G. W. AND MD. PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Colonials, Old Liners Seeking to Extend Winning Streaks.

TWO local collegiate basket ball teams will see action on home floors tonight while the same number will perform out of town. The unbeaten George Washington five meets Lynchburg (Va.) College in the H Street Gym, beginning at 8 o'clock, and Maryland's Southern Conference champion team engages Virginia Poly in Ritchie Coliseum at 8:15.

In the other games, Georgetown plays Army at West Point, Gallaudet tackles La Salle in Philadelphia, and Strayer vies with Bridgewater at Bridgewater, Va.

G. W. Seeks Eighth Straight.

George Washington, regarded by many fans as the strongest collegiate quintet in this section, will be seeking its eighth consecutive victory at the expense of Lynchburg. Coach Jim Pixlee will employ the same line-up that has done the bulk of G. W.'s successful campaigning thus far, namely, Parrack and Burgess, forwards; Hertzler, center, and Zahn and Chambers, guards.

Maryland hopes to annex its sixth straight win and its fifth Southern Conference triumph against V. P. I. The Blacksburg Team bowed to the Shipleymen last year, 36-to-16. Ronkin and Chalmers, forwards; Vincent, center, and Berger and Buscher, guards, will start for Maryland.

Central High Swimmers Defeat Loyola, 54-21

Central High School's swimm g team scored its seventh victory of the season at the expense of the Loyola High School, of Baltimore, winning by a score of 54 to 21 in the Central tank yesterday.

Takoma Five Defeats Bethesda; Nears Title

A successful free throw in the final five seconds of play by "Tiny" Lizear enabled the Takoma-Silver Spring High School basket ball team to gain an 18-17 victory over Bethesda High School in a bitterly contested game played at Silver Spring yesterday. By its victory Takoma virtually clinched the 1932 high school championship of Montgomery County, with none of the future opponents regarded seriously.

A capacity crowd witnessed the game.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 179

THE above picture shows another old landmark of the District that has given away to the march of progress and is now just a memory. This was the old Emergency Hospital on Ohio avenue and Fifteenth street northwest.

The hospital moved into this building in 1889 or 1890 and occupied it until August, 1915, when their new building on New York avenue was finished and they moved there.

The hospital was incorporated in 1882 and occupied several sites before they moved in this building. After they evacuated it the building was used as the House of Detention, and they occupied it until a few years ago, when it was torn down to make way for the new Commerce Department Building.

After moving into their present quarters, the hospital progressed to such an extent that an additional building had to be built, and it is now considered one of the finest institutions of its kind in the city.

CREDIT UNIONS BILL MEETS OPPOSITION OF DISTRICT BANKS

SERIOUS COMPETITION FORESEEN BY ADDISON

Roberts Says Amendments Suggested Would Prove Fatal to Groups.

Unexpected opposition from the District Bankers Association dealt a temporary setback yesterday to Senator Arthur Capper's bill to set up credit unions in the District, at hearings before the Senate District committee.

Action on the measure, which would incorporate cooperative organizations for the purpose of loaning money to members at low rates of interest, was deferred following testimony by Francis G. Addison, jr., chairman of the law and legislative committee of the bankers association.

"This type of bank may seriously compete with the savings department of existing banks," Mr. Addison said. "This is not the time to lend encouragement to any agency that would weaken rather than strenghten the banking situation in any part of the country."

Capper Takes Issue.

He proposed amendment of the Capper bill to extend the same taxes to credit unions that now apply to banks, and to prohibit collection of deposits, substituting stock ownership in their stead. He asked that the Comptroller of Currency be given absolute jurisdiction over the unions, instead of the Commissioners.

Assistant Corporation Counsel W. A. Roberts told the committee that credit unions "can not live" under the tax and stock ownership amendments proposed by Mr. Addison.

Senator Capper, who presided at the hearings, took exception to the witness' statement that incorporation of the unions would be injurious to banks. He intimated on the other hand that the unions "would encourage savings and habits of thrift." A similar position was taken by President E. H. Tucker, of the Northeast Citizens Association.

"The personal element enters into this thing," Senator Capper said. "Instead of lending in a cold-blooded business way, here are people who get together and try to develop a more desirable plan."

Thousands Held Victimized.

He argued "the town is full of 'blue sky artists' who are preying on the class of people that these credit unions would tie up with," adding that "thousands of Federal workers have been victimized by grafters."

Mr. Addison admitted there is some "bootleg" loaning by out-of-town organizations that carry out their contracts across the District line, but contended that passage of the small-loan bill sponsored by the Russell Sage Foundation would remedy this situation.

Supporting Mr. Addison at the hearings were Corcoran Thom, president of the American Security & Trust Co.; H. H. McKee, president of the National Capital Bank, and L. P. McLachlen, president of the McLachlen Banking Corporation. Other members of the committee opposing the credit union bill were W. W. Spaid, of W. B. Hibbs & Co.; Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, and Joshua Evans, jr., president of the District National Bank.

Bank Taxes Stir Dispute.

Mr. Addison contended that District banks already are overtaxed as compared with banks throughout the rest of the country. He said the ratio of taxes was 5.1 to 9.3 in 1928 and 5 to 9 in 1929.

The retort of Senator Hamilton F. Kean (Republican), New Jersey, who charged the bankers here were "asleep" while credit union legislation was agitated on the hill during the last three years, said he could cite companies that are taxed 33 per cent on every dollar they take in. Senator Capper said "the Kansas farmer" is taxed 29 per cent on every dollar he receives.

Before taking up the credit union hearings, the Senate District committee voted to approve three bills. These measures would give the District government the same power of taking possession of condemned property following filing of a declaration of taking, now enjoyed by the Federal Government; would enable Federal and District governments to interchange jurisdiction of public lands for administrative purposes, and enable foreign universities doing business here to operate with names barred under earlier legislation.

Judge Raps Buses In Freeing Woman

Coaches' Downtown Parking Blamed for Her Passing Car on Wrong Side.

The downtown bus parking problem again came to the fore in Police Court yesterday when Judge Isaac R Hitt dismissed a charge of passing a street car on the wrong side and thus freed Mrs. Margaret K. Hill, of 1750 Sixteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Hill testified that in front of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing several buses were parked. These machines, she said, effectively blocked the street, and the only way to pass them was to pass a street car on the wrong side. She did this and was arrested by Policeman C. L. King who required her to post $10 collateral.

Judge Hitt held that it was unreasonable to permit the buses to take up so much room that the street was blocked and he said that Mrs. Hill was justified in passing the street car in order to get by. Last Saturday he took occasion to rap the large amount of space that has been set aside in the downtown areas for the larger buses, freeing a man who had been arrested for parking in one of the spaces, where it was testified there was enough space for half a dozen buses to park.

2 Holdup Suspects Are Brought Here

Police Seek Third Man in Robbery and Shooting of Israel Finkelstein.

Two colored men, who, police say, admit the shooting of Israel Finkelstein during a holdup early Wednesday, were brought here from Baltimore by Washington detectives after several persons from Old Germantown, Md., had failed to identify the men as those sought in the recent murder of Horace Waters, aged merchant of the latter place.

Police last night sought a third man, who they believe participated in the shooting and robbery of Finkelstein, who is said to be recovering at Sibley Hospital. It was planned to have the men at the police line-up tonight on the theory that a number of other recent armed robberies may be cleared up. A number of persons, victims of holdups recently, have been asked to come to the line-up to view the men.

The men held on investigation charges are Carl McKemmer, 25, and Horace Turner, alias James Gray, 25. Both are said by police to have served prison terms on robbery charges.

UTILITY BOARD FIXES NEW ELECTRIC RATES

$540,000 of Sum Available for Reductions Is Allowed Business.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday fixed the 1932 rates for the seven commercial schedules after a series of conferences with officials of the Potomac Electric Power Co. The domestic rates in Schedules A and K were announced prior to the adjournment of the public hearing early this week.

Approximately $540,000 of the $860,000 available for rate reductions was applied to the commercial schedules. No opposition outside the commission was offered to the proposals of the power company relative to these schedules.

The commercial rates, which become effective Monday, are as follows:

Schedule B—Used principally for battery charging, electric motors, welding, and the like, 3.9 cents per kilowatt hour. Minimum charge of $2 a month.

Apartments and Offices.

Schedule C—For separately metered public lighting service and motors in apartment houses and office buildings, 3.8 cents for the first 400 k.w.h., 3.1 cents, for the next 1,450 k.w.h. and 2 cents for all current in excess of 1,850 k.w.h. a month. Minimum charge is 75 cents.

Schedule D—General industrial lighting and motors: 3.8 cents for the first 450 k.w.h., 3.4 cents for next 1,500 k.w.h., 3.1 cents for next 1,800 k.w.h., and 2 cents for all in excess of 3,750 k.w.h. Minimum charge of 75 cents.

Schedule E: Used for any commercial purpose where demand is not less than 20 kilowatts; fixed charge of $2 per kilowatt for the first 100 kilowatts and $1.30 for each kilowatt in excess of 100; energy charge of 1.9 cents for the first 13,750 k. w. h., 1.2 cents for the next 25,000, 0.7 cents for the next 150,000, and 0.6 cents for all in excess of 188,750 k. w. h.

High Tension Service.

Schedule F: Used for high tension where demand is not less than 20 kilowatts; fixed charge of $1.60 per kilowatt for first 100 kilowatts and $1.10 for all in excess of 100; energy charge of 1.5 cents for first 13,750 k. w. h., 1 cent for next 25,000, 0.6 cents for next 150,000, 0.5 cents for all in excess of 188,750 k. w. h.

Schedule G: For industrial motors; fixed charge of $1.60 per kilowatt for first 100 k. w. h. and $1.10 for excess; energy charge of 1.5 cents for first 13,750 k. w. h., 1 cent for next 25,000 k. w. h., 0.6 cents for the next 150,000, and 0.5 cents for all in excess of 188,750 k. w. h.

Schedule G: For industrial meter service; 3.9 cents for the first 93 hours and 3 cents for all in excess.

Schedule H: Commercial heating and cooking service; 3.9 cents for the first 10 k. w. h. and 2 cents for all in excess.

The rates for electric street lighting service remain the same as last year.

Four Given Limit On Liquor Charges

Maximum Sentences Are Meted in Drive to Halt Rum Activities.

Four maximum sentences for violations of the prohibition law were meted in Police Court yesterday when Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart asked for stiff sentences so that he could break up activities on Washington street northwest.

Theodore Morton, 29 years old, and Rosie B. Snipes, 35 years old, both colored, were fined $1,000 each, with the alternative of spending 60 days in jail. They were convicted of second offense possession.

Granville Ewing, 41 years old, and Charles King, 21 years old, both colored, were fined $500 each, with 30 days in jail as the alternative. They were convicted before Judge Gus A. Schuldt for first offense possession.

Cigar Store Man Puts Armed Thief to Flight

An attempted holdup of a cigar store at 2129 P street northwest early yesterday was repulsed when the owner, David Dimond, struck at a lone white bandit, who, brandishing a gun, demanded the contents of the cash register.

Dimond told police the man, of average size and dressed in dark clothing, entered shortly after midnight and asked for a package of cigarettes. When Dimond turned to get the cigarettes, he said, the man produced a gun and demanded money. Dimond said he struck at the man who turned and fled.

DANGERS FROM HUNGRY PEOPLE ARE STRESSED

Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes Is Guest of Honor at Workers' Rally.

No salary reductions!

Share what we have with those who have not!

These two slogans were advocated for adoption by Washingtonians for 1932 by Frank J. Hogan, president of the District of Columbia Bar Association, in a talk made at yesterday's Community Chest report meeting at the Willard Hotel.

Attracted by a number of "key" children from the various private and parochial schools, Mr. Hogan digressed for a moment to speak directly to them.

Calling attention to the fact that the Chest campaign is lagging, Mr. Hogan appealed for more enthusiasm among the workers and declared that "certainly this great Capital of the Nation can not possibly fall down in this hour of need."

Other Cities Worse Off.

Mr. Hogan pointed to an "increasing tendency in our community to overlook the fact that we are better off than any other city. He said that this tendency must be combatted "especially among the well-to-do people, who must realize that they and their families are inseparably wrapped up in the welfare work of the city. Other cities have cut wages and have reduced forces, causing a great increase in suffering. There is great danger in hunger, not alone for the hungry, but for the well fed, for there are few persons who are going to see their loved ones dying of starvation while others have plenty without taking some action." He referred to history for examples.

"Don't get the idea that I am an alarmist," Mr. Hogan said, "but it is not the nature of human beings to go without while others have. In contentment civil strife dies. In want it blooms gloriously."

Following the invocation by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of the Washington Cathedral, and community singing led by Cyril Mee, Chairman Edward F. Colladay introduced the day's guests of honor, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, wives, respectively of the Chief Justice and two Associate Justices of the United States Supreme Court. He also presented Gov. Thomas E. Campbell, chairman of the governmental unit and the members of the liaison committee of that unit, consisting of Dr. Herbert Brown, of the Bureau of Efficiency; Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, in charge of public buildings and grounds, and Maj. D. J Donovan, auditor of the district. The latter three had been making a study of the work of the Chest, on which Dr. Brown made a brief report on the findings of the committee.

Visiting Workers Introduced.

Mr. Colladay then introduced D. W. Weist, director of the Scranton Community Chest, and Charles Alspach, director of the Community Chest of Reading, both of whom are here to study campaign methods.

Report of the schools unit, of which Sidney F. Taliaferro is chairman, showed $3,073. The Special Gifts Unit, of which Clarence A. Aspinwall is chairman, reported $14,560. The Group Solicitation Unit reported $35,754.64 through Lloyd B. Wilson, chairman. The Metropolitan Unit, of which H. L. Rust, jr., is chairman, reported $38,355.11.

Chairman Colladay announced the total for all units for the day was $91,743, an improvement over the day before, but still far below the general average. Yesterday's total, added to the $1,897,878.20 previously reported, brought the total to date up to $1,989,621.24, or $611,378.76 short of the goal of $2,601,000. This means that the Chest workers must average a little over $200,000 a day if the Chest goal is to be attained, as planned, by Monday night.

100 Per cent Gifts Listed.

Organizations which have contributed 100 per cent to the Chest, as reported yesterday, include: Community Chest personnel, Southern Building employes, Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, Salvation Army, Firestone Tire Co., Washington Milk Bottle Exchange, Homer Building employes, Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., Commodore Hotel, Continental Hotel, St. Joseph's Home and School, Wilkins Rogers Milling Co., Gude Brothers, George A. Simonds, Associated Retail Credit and Washington Shopping News.

The ten highest sections of the group solicitation unit to date follows: Section 2, division 103, J. E. Anderson, captain, $15,538; section 4, division 102, M. H. Rittenhouse, captain, $10,566; section 6, division 102, Harry Blake, captain, $8,446; section 13, division 103, Dr. G. E. McCann, captain, $5,929; section 5, division 102, Leo Eynon, captain, $5,887; section 6, division 101, G. A. Stott, captain, $5,389; section 5, division 106, L. P. McLauchlen, captain, $5,252; section 6, division 106, C. R Kurtz, captain, $4,737; section 7, division 103, B. A. Harlan, $4,711, and section 8, division 103, E H Frame, captain, $4,486.

The highest totals yesterday of each region of the metropolitan unit, are as follows: Division 223, of region 23, Thomas J. Groom, captain, $2,170; division 221, of region 22, John W. Hardell, captain, $2,591, and division 214, of region 21, Woodson Houghton, captain, $5,006.

Charge Account Fraud Count Is Faced by Girl

Arraigned in Police Court on charges of false pretenses, Inez Green, 22 years old, of 948 L street northwest, yesterday demanded a jury trial. She will be tried next week.

Police said the woman went to stores and charged goods to other persons. Three credits were alleged to have been obtained by her under the accounts of Mrs. Jean Howard, 1014 D street southeast; Retta Donaldson, 2013 New Hampshire avenue northwest, and Mary Moloney, 726 Seventh street southeast.

YOUNG "KEY MEN" GREETED

GAS KILLS SLEEPER AT TOURISTS' CAMP

Third Death in Several Weeks Causes Change to Steam Heat.

Believed to have been a victim of illuminating gas poisoning Paul E. Richardson, about 40, of Rome, Me., was found dead in his cabin by a porter of the tourists' camp who was making his costumary rounds.

Upon receiving no response to his knock the porter entered the cabin in which a gas stove was burning with the windows tightly closed. After the fire rescue squad had worked nearly an hour in a futile attempt to revive him Richardson was pronounced dead by Dr. Zoretskie, of the Casualty Hospital staff.

Because this is the third of a series of similar tragedies during the last few weeks, Capt. Ray C. Montgomery, superintendent of the park police announced yesterday that the use of gas for heating in the camp will be abandoned. This step is necessary, Capt. Montgomery said, on account of the unfamiliarity of some rural visitors with the heating equipment.

Plans have already been approved and construction on the new steam heating plant will begin soon. It is expected that the installation will be completed within a month. All cabins have been equipped with ventilators since the previous fatalities along with signs warning the inmates against use of the gas heaters without proper ventilation.

An inquest will be held at the District morgue by Acting Coroner Magruder McDonald to probe Richardson's death.

$3,500 Damages Sought For Injured Minor Son

A $3,500 damage suit was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Harry L. McCormick, sr., of 102 Pershing avenue, Colmar Manor, Md., for injuries a minor son, Harry L. McCormick, suffered in an automobile mishap September 16 last.

The suit alleges that an automobile driven by Minnie C. Bright, of 1118 E street southeast, cut sharply across the path of an automobile in which young McCormick was a passenger, and that in an ensuing collision the boy lost most of his teeth and suffered serious damage to his mouth. The accident happened at Thirtieth street and Bladensburg road, northeast.

SENATORS APPROVE HONOR TO NEVADAN

Library Committee Acts on Newlands Fountain for Chevy Chase.

Erection of a memorial fountain in Chevy Chase Circle, with appropriate landscape treatment, was approved yesterday by the Senate library committee, which voted to report favorably improvements proposed in a resolution by Senator Simeon D. Fess (Republican), Ohio.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, and Chairman Charles Moore of the Fine Arts Commission, appeared in support of the measure, already favorably reported by the House library committee.

Action on the Roosevelt Memorial Association's gift of Analostan Island to the United States Government for a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt was postponed, after the association asked certain changes in the bill now before both houses.

The memorial group is anxious that the island be preserved always in memory of the late President, and in order to so word the bill to give this assurance, the committee delayed passage. Col. Grant testified that the island will be kept as nearly as possible in its natural state, with approaches confined to foot bridges rather than automobile highways. Secretary Herman Hegedorn, of the Memorial Association, said bridle paths are planned on the island in keeping with Col. Roosevelt's outdoor pursuits.

The Chevy Chase Circle memorial fountain would be erected entirely from donated funds, under the bill approved yesterday. The fountain, of simple design, would be in memory of the late Senator Newlands. Col. Grant would be authorized to carry out the plans.

9 Zoning Change Plans To Be Heard by Board

Nine proposed changes in the District zoning regulations and sixteen applications for rezoning will be heard by the District Zoning Commission next Wednesday morning beginning at 10 o'clock, in the boardroom of the District Building, it was announced yesterday.

Several of the suggested changes in definitions of zones have to do with various classes of garages. Most of the applications are for changes from residential to first commercial zones.

DAVISON MADE HEAD OF ENGINEER BUREAU BY REORGANIZATION

May Succeed Gotwals if He Is Retired Because of Disability.

SEVERAL OTHERS TO GET PROMOTIONS IN SHAKEUP

Centralization of Work Is Given as Reason for Changes.

Maj. D. A. Davison, who has been acting Engineer Commissioner since Maj. John C. Gotwals became ill last June, becomes virtual dictator of the District engineer department under a complete reorganization plan approved yesterday by the District Commissioners. Should Maj. Gotwals be retired because of physical disability, Maj. Davison probably would succeed him, whereas if the Engineer Commissioner returns Maj. Davison still holds the post of executive officer, who directs the activities of the department.

The shakeup creates another vacancy for an Army officer with the rank of assistant Engineer Commissioner, which must be filled by the War Department, and provides for the employment of a director of the department of construction at a salary of $6,500 with a step-up to $7,500. This post has already been given to Harold W. Baker, director of the Rochester, N. Y., department of public works.

Capt. Hugh P. Oram, who has heretofore held the rank of assistant Engineer Commissioner, relinquishes both this post and his Army rank to take the job of director of the department of inspection and executive officer of the District Zoning Commission at an increase in salary. He also will start at $6,500.

Two Other Promotions.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst and H. B. Gordon both are promoted, though their salaries of $7,500 remain the same. Capt. Whitehurst moves from the office of chief engineer of the highway department to be director of the department of highways, and Mr. Gordon is promoted from the rank of sanitary engineer to that of director of the department of sanitary engineering.

Roland M. Brennan, as chief clerk, also becomes a more important figure in the new line-up though he also is retained on the same salary.

The personnel classification board is understood to have refused to raise the salaries of the four new directors to $8,000, as recommended by Maj. Davison.

To offset the salaries of the two new employes necessitated by the reorganization, several subordinate officials are discharged.

Purpose of Reorganization.

Municipal Architect A. L. Harris suffers a $500 cut in salary and loses one of his assistants, W. B. McGrew, who has been receiving $3,800. W. E. Atkinson, who has been getting $2,500 as inspector for the board for the condemnation of insanitary buildings, is also dropped.

In explaining the purpose of the reorganization, Maj. Davison called attention to the numerous duties of the engineer commissioner and the growth of the engineer department's activities. He pointed out that under the old set-up the assistant engineer commissioners have often had to take over the duties of the department heads.

An engineering project board is also established with the three assistant engineer commissioners and the four directors. The executive officer will be chairman. This board will provide the engineer commissioner with information and advice as to the administration of the engineer department.

American Legion's Ball Draws 2,000

Official and diplomatic circles were well represented last night at one of the most colorful social events of the season—the annual ball of the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion, held in the Mayflower Hotel.

Among the guests were Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, senators, representatives and other Government officials. Also occupying boxes were representatives of the Diplomatic Corps.

The ballroom was decorated with flags of the allied countries and transformed into a typical Grand Salon du Paris. More than 2,000 persons passed the receiving line, headed by Maj. E. H. Hale, chairman of the ball committee.

Auto Tag Deadline Is Extended 2 Days

Now Is Placed at Next Tuesday Midnight; 20,000 Due.

Due to the closing of the Traffic Bureau for the last two days while two safes were being moved from police headquarters, the District Commissioners yesterday extended the dead line for 1931 automobile license plates until midnight Tuesday. The action was taken upon recommendation of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

Approximately 20,000 Washington automobile owners have not yet applied for 1932 tags, according to traffic officials, and a last-minute rush is expected the first two days of next week.

Closing of the Traffic Bureau has not halted the mailing of title certificates to applicants, however, and neither was the actual tag distribution to holders of the certificates halted at the Ford Building at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue.

Rudolph's Estate Will Go to Widow

Bequests Made to Other Relatives; No Estimate of Fortune's Size.

Mrs. Amy M. Rudolph, widow of Cuno H. Rudolph, former District Commissioner and a civic leader here for many years, will receive the bulk of the estate of her husband, his will, filed in District Supreme Court yesterday, showed. The will was not accompanied by a schedule showing the size of the estate.

Mr. Rudolph, who died January 6, directed that a niece, Adele T. Kanne, of Baltimore, be given $10,000 in cash, and the home at 2411 Linden avenue, Baltimore. A grandnephew, W. Rudolph Kanne, is given the income from a trust fund of $10,000 with the instruction that the money is to be used for his education.

The grandnephew is to have half of the fund when he is 21, and the other half when he is 28. A $40 monthly allotment is made to August Roeder, sr., a brother-in-law, and the Children's Hospital is to have $5,000 with which it is directed to equip a room and name it for Mrs. Rudolph. The will, filed by Melvin Marques, deputy register of wills, was dated November 19, 1923.

Industrial Students to Dance.

The "Club of Thirteen" of the Industrial Students League will hold a dance and card party tonight at the Hotel Continental. A number of special features will augment the program.

DRAMA GUILD PLAY, SEE NAPLES AND DIE, SMASHING SUCCESS

ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE WATCHES PRESENTATION

Possibilities of Piece Fully Exhausted by Various Players in Hit.

Before a rather distinguished gathering in the Wardman Park Theater, the players completely exhausted the possibilities of Rice's play in a truly professional manner.

There were no outstanding stars, except perhaps to say that all of the actors combined to make the play outstanding. The "play was the thing."

As the title clearly indicates, the scene is near Naples. It concerns the difficulties of a young American girl in getting estranged from a Russian prince husband whom she married to save the honor and integrity of her wedded sister.

Characters Capably Portrayed.

To this is added the cares of explaining the situation to her American sweetheart. The last is done very capably, but the author is forced to have the prince killed by bullets from two Roumanian conspirators, when he is inadvertently in the way.

To attempt to give honors to any of the actors would be impossible. All of the characters were equally capably portrayed.

Dorothy Crosby and Edwin C. Berryman were the girl and young man for whom the bullets solved the problem. Mannix Walker was especially amusing as the moronish but shrewd and conniving prince.

Thomas M. Cahill, as Hugo von Klaus, the prince's retainer and henchman, was interesting. Marguerite Young played a seductive servant girl at the inn where the entire action of the presentation was laid.

Other Members of Cast.

The innkeeper and his wife were played by Robert D. Chase and Grace Peters Johnson. An English painter and an American guest were portrayed by Ray C. Montgomery and Ida Garrett Mattingly.

Eileen Fowler pleased as Kunegunde Wandl, with whom Mr. Berryman had formed an affinity. The Roumanian general was played by Maurice Jarvis, and the two conspirators who killed him and the prince were Robert A. Halsted and James Otis Porter.

Helen A. Sheckels was excellent as the sister for whom all the difficulties were attempted. Other parts were taken by Eldred Wilson, Howard Whitfield and Mitchell David.

A bit of color, the singing of Neapolitan songs by Harry Angelico, enlivened the period of waiting for the first curtain. The play was directed by Denis E. Connell. It will be presented again tonight.

Seating the distinguished guests will be Miss Helen Sprague, commander; Miss Edna McIntosh, past president Victory Unit; Mrs. Mary Tatspaugh, Commander Jacob Jones Post; Miss Emily Carey, commander Belleau Woods Post; Mrs. Willette Preston, Le Chapeau Departmental 8 et 40; and Miss Eunice Dessez, past commander Jacob Jones Post.

Bill Seeks Boost In Plumbers' Fee

Mary Norton Advocates District Charges of $25 to $50.

Master plumbers and gasfitters, who now pay a permanent $3 license fee in the District, would be assessed from $25 to $50 annually for licenses under a bill introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey.

District Commissioners estimated the bill, if passed, would net the District from $6,250 to $13,500 a year. Licenses granted for the $3 fee would be revoked under terms of the measure.

A provision for reciprocity between the District and other cities in accepting credentials was inserted. The Citizens Advisory Council approved a similar bill here in 1926, but recommended that the license fee not exceed $25.

Capital Girl in Wellesley Choir.

Miss Bernice G. Safford, daughter of Mrs. Clare W. Safford, 3339 Mount Pleasant street, is a member of the Wellesley College Choir that will broadcast Monday over the Columbia Broadcasting system from Station WNAC, Boston, Mass.
